ELIMINATING CURVES

TWO DANGEROUS PLACES TO BE MADE SAFER BETWEEN CHESTERTOWN AND CENTREVILLE

In a short time two dangerous curves in the Chestertown-Centreville State Highway will be eliminated and motorists who heretofore have always traveled this highway in great dread of these places which have caused many accidents, will be able to go along their way in a care free manner.

The long steep and dangerous hill-curve at Church Hill better known as Medical Hill, will shortly pass into history. The State Roads Commission has already begun work at this place and the high bank is being cut away.

Brown's Corner on the highway between Chestertown and Church Hill, was another bad curve. Here the motorists' view of the road was not blotted out by a high bank, but the curve was so very sharp that most every motorist was forced to use his brakes in making the sharp turn. The curve has been greatly eliminated and concrete is being poured in the new road that has been cut.
