Farmers, List Your Repair Needs

It would be hard to find a farmer who at some time or another had not lost valuable time waiting for necessary repair parts. Take this territory and total up the time lost in this way and it will astonish you. And all because repairs are not odered as early as they should be.

There is no better time than right now—just before the busiest season on the farm—to go over your machines carefully, make a list of repairs you are likely to need and send it to us. With this list in our hands, we can order our stock so as to be prepared to meet every call promptly.

Repair part service is a necessary part of our business. We realize what it means to you in time and money to get what you need at once. Help us to help you by making up your list now and sending it in to us.

POULTRY NOTES

ITEMS THAT WILL HELP OUR READERS WITH THEIR POULTRY PROBLEM

With the arrival of the new year, many wise poultry breeders will begin to centre their minds on the production of early chicks. Eggs will be put to incubate in many parts of the country, knowing poultry men being aware that the early hatched bird either catches the judge's eye, puts on flesh of a highly profitable kind, or, if of the male geader, develops in o fit subject for the breeding pen of 1928. When rightly understood and mastered, the production of early birds may be regarded as one of the most remunerative branches of poultry culture, but, be it said, the pursu t is not for those of the thin skinned order.

Early chicks pay the biggest money. Ask the man who knows! As the season advances the profit per chick goes down steadily, so that every day lost after the height of the season means less money in your pocket. The line of profit per chick starts very high in January and continues high until late February or early March, after which it makes a line like an easy toboggan slide as it approaches the base line of Zero profit. Why make the mistake of waiting for cheap chicks? January and February chicks are the cheapest in the end. Place your order for eggs or chicks as early as possible this year. Buy from well established breeders or hatcherymen. Each year sees a great improvement in the quality of poultry as advertised and most of the risks have been removed, so don't hesitate to buy hatching eggs or ready-made from guaranteed advertisers.

For many years, up to some fifteen or sixteen years ago, poultry specialists in the vicinity of our large Eastern markets produced the greater part of the better quality table poultry obtainable in our "best markets." Even in Buffalo, which counts itself one of our "leading Eastern cities," it was difficult in 1910 to buy really prime quality poultry for the family table. Within comparatively recent years specialty growers in what we call the Middle-West have been shipping to Eastern markets fine quality chickens that are sufficiently excellent to provide competition, which keeps our Eastern specialists "up on their toes," but old-timers still contend that the specially grown Eastern soft-meated chicken has the better of it and many buyers appear to agree with them, the big demand and high prices obtainable for this product being cited as proof.

January is the natural time to look ahead and plan for the New Year. Here is a budget of coming events that will call to mind many things in your business that might escape your attention. It gives you a good chance to take your "Foresight" out for a little exercise.

Unless chicks are comfortably brooded and kept dry, warm and contented, no method of feeding will be productive of the best results. In all of the tests which we have made we have found that we can raise a much larger per cent of chicks, and we lavoid diarrhea and other chick troubles If we begin to feed both chick scratch grain a good grade of starting feed, in mash form, after the chicks are 48 to 72 hours old. We give first feed about 72 hours from the time the first chick hatches. We keep the temperature beneath the hover at about 95 to 100 degrees. We also have a cool spot or separate scratching room for the chicks so that they can get away from the heat when they wish to do so. All feed for baby chicks should be low in fiber con tent. If you have any evidences whatever of bowel or other chick ailments, we would not recommend the use of a moist mash. See that the chicks become hungry at least once a day. Feed the fine chick scratch morning and night. Begin to give some tender succulent green feed after the chicks are five or six days old. Keep the chicks quiet, warm, and comfortable for the first four or five days, feed sparingly during this time. If you have chicks that have been poorly hatched, or show evidences of weakness from any cause, add about a pint of cod liver oil to each 100 pounds of the mash, and also add five pounds of tallow fat melted and thoroughly mixed into the mash. Feed this for a few days and you will see a wondertut improvement in your chicks. If you experience trouble in raising chicks, try this method.

There is nothing on the farm that pays better than poultry. Millions of city folks on back lots, general farmers and men specializing in poultry and egg production are making good with their poultry when they use the right methods.

Human ingenuity can be depended upon to take care of the mechanical needs of every changing custom.

In due time, after railroads replaced stage coaches, the sleeping car and the dining car made their appearance. They were necessary to the growth of railroad travel and the need was promptly met.

So with our new baby chick industry, made possible in the first place by incubators and brooders of mammoth proportions, the next problem was the ready disposal of the vastly increased production of these great hatcheries.

Disposal here, as nearly everywhere else, involves the problem of safe transportation. The government mail service and the express companies eagerly offered their carrying facilities, but live chicks are decidedly "perishable goods," that require special transportation safeguards.

Right here the value of association work found an apt illustration. For the national hatchery and poultry associations, after extended investigation and study, adopted a uniform standard of sizes for poultry boxes for carrying 25, 50 or 100 chicks. They also worked out certain practical recommendations for insuring the necessary strength to resist the hazards of transportation.

Under the best of conditions a large number of chicks develop almost to maturity, then due in the shell. Results at the Kansas State Agricultural Experiment Station over a number of years show that out of every 100 eggs set, ten are infertile and about thirty of the fertile eggs fail to hatch.

The more important reasons for this high death rate in shell are: (a) low vitality of breeding stock; (b) improper care and management; (c) faulty incubation, and (d) certain physical changes which take place during the last days of incubation.

Now You Can Wax-Polish All Your Floors and Linoleum

Easily--Electrically--ten times faster than by hand.

Gleaming wax floors are no longer a luxury—NOW you can have their radiant glow in every room. The new Johnson Wax Electric Treatment makes WAX the most ecomonical of floor finishes. This treatment takes only a few minutes—there is no hard work—no stooping or kneeling—no messy rags and pails. It won't soil or roughen your hands! And it saves you all the bother and expense of frequent refinishihg.

This Johnson's Wax Electric Treatment is so easy anyone can use it. Just spread on a thin coat of Johnson's Polishing Wax with a Lamb's-wool Mop. This cleans as it waxes. Then run the Johnson's Electric Polisher over the floor and let ELECTRICITY do all the work. This Electric Floor Polisher is much easier to run than a vacuum cleaner—it glides along silently, smoothly, leaving a path of beauty behind it.

It makes no difference whether the floors are old or new—of wood, linoleum, tile or composition. Nor how they are finished—with varnish, shellac, wax or paint.

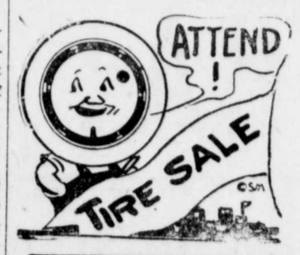

You can rent this Electric Floor Polisher for $2 00 a day and in just a short time give all your floors and linoleums this beautifying wax treatment.
