SNOW STORM VISITS KENT

Last Saturday, a snow storm, driven by a strong Northwest wind, threatened to envelop Kent County in one of the worse blizzards of years, but in the afternoon the storm broke leaving the low protected places blanketed with two or three feet of snow while the open wind swept spaces were almost clear.

Traffic was blocked in a number of places between Chestertown and Elkton particularly in the vicinity, of Kennedyville, and was not opened until late Sunday afternoon although the State Roads forces worked continuously with snow plows and gags of men. The Pennsylvania Railroad was compelled to send a snow plough to Chestertown in order to break the drifts in a number of the deep cuts so that the local train could make the run.

Traveling along the state highways on Monday from Chestertown north, you could go for miles through country that showed only about three inches of snow and then pass through cuts where the snow was banked three and four feet deep. Some farm lanes were banked with two and three feet of snow while others were absolutely clear. It was truly a freak snow storm.

AN ENJOYABLE BANQUET

The Sudlersville group of Churches, consisting of Sudlersville, Crumpton, Barclay and Salem, Henderson, Marydel, Millington and Galena gave a banquet in Galena, Wednesday evening, January 12, in honor of Miss Margaret Ilisley, the Elementary Expert now working in their midst in behalf of religious education.

The banquet was served by the Epworth League of Galena to one hundred guests, met for the avowed purpose of welcoming Miss Ilisley into their midst and of assuring her of their great interest and faith in the work she is undertaking.

The program was as follows:

1. Music—Led by Mr. Charles B. Chance, Sudlersville.
2. Greeting—Rev. Ivanhoe Wilis, Galena.
3. Response—Rev. Otis Jefferson, Crumpton, Chairman of the Group.
4. Toastmaster—Rev. O. E. Jones, presented—Rev. Otis Jefferson.
5. Next Steps in Religious Education—Dr. Albert Perry.
6. Duet—Marie and Elizabeth Biddle, Crumpton.
7. 'How It Happened That We are Here'—Rev. O. E. Jones.
8. "Why We Are Here"—Rev. F. A. Lindhorst, Director of Religious Education.
9. "What I See"—Miss Margaret Ilisley, Elementary Expert in Religious Education.
10. Greetings from Conference Board of Sunday Schools—Rev. F. C. McSorley.
11. Benediction—Rev. H. N. Bailey, Marydel.

A FINE SHOWING

In the advertisement of the Third National Bank which will be found on the fourth page of this paper is shown some interesting comparisons of the deposits in the various banks of this county. The deposits in the Third National show a remarkable increase of business, especially so when taken into consideration that the tomato and corn crops of this section were almost a complete failure the past year and that the a large percentage of the corn has not yet been marketed. This bank's motto is: "The bank where you feel at home" and the large business of this institution proves the motto correct. An interesting feature is that the Bank at the close of business December 31, 1926, the total resources amounted to $1,746,000.00.

SPORTS OF WEEK

WASHINGTON DOWNS MUHLENBERG—MARYLAND AND CATHOLIC UNVERSITY OPPONENTS THIS WEEK—OTHER SPORTS NOTES

Washington College had little difficulty in defeating the strong Muhlenberg College team on Saturday night on the local floor. Although without the two stars of the team, Carroll and Dumschott, theWashington five worked with tremendous power, lacking, of course, the exquisite finish of the regular five. The score was 35-22.

Muhlenberg scored first on a foul, but Washington, playing almost "inspired" basketball, were after them in a fashion that denoted they were out for victory. Giritis began running wild on the floor, and Muhlenberg was absolutely unable to keep him from the basket, while Washington's guards were blocking the visitors way to the goal at every turn. The first half found Washington well in the lead and in a fair way to victory.

Washington opened the second half with a rush and soon began to draw away from Muhlenberg, who were no match for Washington's rejuvenated five. Toward the middle of the second half Coach Kibler sent in his second string men, who held their own fairly well with the visitors.

Muhlenberg has a mighty good team. The night before they came here they played a tie game with Swarthmore and have made a good record elsewhere. The fact that Washington so easily defeated them speaks well for Washington's five.

Washington's five has been hard at work this week preparing for the University of Maryland game, which took place last night. Tonight the Catholic University, of Washington, will meet the Washington five on the floor at the capital city.

Next Saturday night, January 29, Washington will play the Loyola Basketball team on the local floor. This should be one of the best games of the season.

The great advantage of swimming as a means of livelihood is that one victory is enough. There was no need for Gertrude Ederle to swim the English Channel a second time. Nor will anybody call upon George Young to paddle from Catalina Island to the California mainland again just to prove that his first crossing wasn't a lucky fluke. As far as money-making is concerned, these famous swimmers either can take to the water or leave it alone. It will have no appreciable effect on the bank account. Vaudeville engagements and other profitable enterprises will bring George Young more than the Toronto lad ever dreamed of when he set out for California in a lide-car.

It begins to loo kas though Tex Rickard will put through that elimination contest for a Tunney opponent as he planned originally. Pete Reilly and Jack Delaney were inclined to linger on the outskirts, but now that they have jumped into the lists, the eliminating can begin.

(COMMUNICATED)

HOW CAN I HELP OUR FIRE DEPARTMENT?

On Saturday, January 15th, Church Hill was visited by a disastrious fire. Fire Companies from Chestertown, Easton, Centreville and Millington responded to the call for additional help.

It was snowing hard, blowing and very cold, but the boys of the respective companies stuck to the task of checking the fire as quickly as possible, which was only accomplished after despatching extra hose to the scene in order to get sufficient water pumped from the mill stream, fully a quarter of a mile distant.

These men were all volunteer Firemen, without pay of any kind, they risk their lives, their health and their day's pay in many cases to serve others, who are in need of help when a fire suddenly takes place.

These men need encouragement, the public's good wishes and support and the glad hand at all times, visit their meetings, call on them and show in person you are thoroughly interested in their duties. You will be welcome I am sure.

At this particular fire in Church Hill, one of the members of a certain company came to one of the homes in the town, so cold he was hardly able to remove his Rubber Coat, which was coated with ice, his hands were stiff with the cold to such an extent he could not unfasten the clamps and not only this, but his water proof laced boots were full of water, his stockings soaked and his feet next to frozen. The man was furnished hot coffee, towels and dry stockings by the ladies of Church Hill, showing that they, whose property was not damaged by the fire, were trying their best to provide comforts to others.

In the above particular case, the writer was an eye witness as also a witness of others who were suffering severely wth the cold. This was not the only incident of hardships, but it was all over the entire town, every man doing his duty.

Let those who are not particularly interested in such work take a joy ride on a Fire Truck on a cold day going at a speed of from 45 to 55 miles per hour and in some instances even 60 miles per hour and if they think it is a warm job, then they had better buy a few palm leaf fans when the truck stops.

And right here what do you think of your own Firemen, when they responded to the gasoline gutter fire Thursday morning? did they do good work?, can they be depended upon? they have been tried many times but in this particular incident they more than proved their worth.

Visit their meetings and show by your presence you are proud of men who are ever ready to do their duty and help others.
