CRIES IN THE NIGHT

Citizens of Chestertown were startled last Saturday night when cries of "Wuxtra, all about The Big Murder," were heard through the residential section of the town, and after paying five cents for a paper they read of a murder and suicide at Grasonville, Queen Anne's county.

John Komanda, retired tailor, living on a chicken farm, near Grasonville, shot and killed his wife and a few hours later went into the woodshed and killed himself.

The bodies were discovered sometime later by a son, Henry, who found his mother dead at the kitchen table and investigating found his father dead from a shotgun would in the head and a shotgun lying near his body.

The Baltimore Sun heard the story and sent a special truck load of papers to Queen Anne's county, and while passing through Chestertown the newsies sold a large number of papers featuring the story of murder and suicide which seems to be the thing demanded by the newspaper reading public.

WASHINGTON IS REMEMBERED IN WILL

The Washington College Bulletin had a page recently headed "Are You Willing" and has from time to time urged that public spirited persons remember the college when they draw up their wills. In response to that call the college has been notified by a friend that the sum of $12,000.00 will go to the institution at his death to be used as a Loan Fund for ambitious students.

FIRE COMPANY PLANS BANQUET

The Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company is laying plans for its annual banquet to be held next month.

Committees are being named by President William G. Smyth, with Theodore H. Wood as chairman of the dinner committee and it is proposed to invite every active and inactive member of the company, as well as representatives from eight or ten of the companies from the larger peninsula towns. Covers will be laid for 200 guests and a typical Eastern Shore turkey dinner will be served.

At the regular weekly meeting of the company this week it was suggested that the inactive members of the company, numbering 142, be organized into an effective adjunct of the fire company, and a committee, composed of President Smyth, Mayor Charles N. Satterfield, George F. French, the Rev. Charles L. Atwater and Thomas D. Bowers, was appointed to discuss the advisability of such a move and report at a future meeting.

BEBE DANIELS KNOWS NO MASTER

According to fiction, sheiks always carry their fair consorts far off into the desert. Well. Bebe was the granddaughter of a sheik and the only way she could woo the man she loved was to get him away from the little blonde hussy he persisted in following around' So—but see "She's a Sheik" Bebe Daniels' latest Paramount comedy. In it, vivacious Bebe is said to be more active and funny than ever.

Richard Arlen is the lad who gets kidnapped and Josephine Dunn the blonde. William Powell contributes another of his inimitable characterizations as a Sahara Arab while Clarence Badger has rolled everything into what is said to be one of the year's best farces. At the Lyceum on Wednesday, Feb. 1st.

SPORTS OF WEEK

WASHINGTON'S QUINT SWAMPS ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE IN SOMEWHAT LISTLESS FASHION—GALLAUDET TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT—OTHER NOTES OF SPORTING REALM.

BY POLK T. BRAMBLE

Local fans are interested in the prospects for a big basketball game tonight, when Gallaudet College will play on the local floor. Gallaudet has a fairly good aggregation, but there is no one who expects anything but a somewhat easy win for Washington. Perhaps it will be by ten points, but more likely by 20 to 30.

After winning from the best Virginia teams, the Maryland State Basketball team went down before the somewhat mediocre John's Hopkins team the other night. All of which goes to show the element of great uncertainty in basketball. However, the best team will usually win, as in every other contest.

Next week a big week on the local Collegians basketball schedule. Mt. St. Mary's will be here with their fast team next Friday night in one of the most important games on the schedule. Drexel is here on February 8. Mt. St. Mary's has one of the strongest teams in the state.

When Gene Tunney was fighting his way up to the top he met as many as two dozen opponents in the course of a year. He was nobody in particular. Just a young fellow trying to get along in the world and keeping his hand in at his trade.

Now he is a champion. He recently said that he wanted to fight three times this year, and, whether he meant it or not, it was a revolutionary statement. Tex Rickard, who has made it his business to stage most of the modern heavyweight champion battles, was outraged when he heard the news. He could draw $2,000,000 for one heavyweight championship a year, but he [illegible]bted that he could draw much [illegible] than that for three heavyweight [illegible]pionships, and there would be three [illegible]es as much trouble and expense.

That was Ric[illegible]d's attitude, but he seems to have w[illegible]kened on it. There may be a compromise on two fights for Tunney. This is supposed to be a liberal allowance for a heavyweight champion. An ordinary fighter would be ruined by such lack of exercise at his trade. But perhaps a champion thrives on a different diet.

The Washington College basketball team met St. John's College on the latter's floor at Annapolis on Friday evening, and went off the floor easy winners, 36—13. There was nothing to the game but Washington from beginning to end, although St. John's started the scoring. Then they began a freezing game, evidently try to keep Washington from piling up an overwhelming score.

Passing the ball, at time for as long as two minutes, and until they got the shots they wanted, the Washington five kept their hosts bewildered.

The effective way in which Dopson tossed a blanket over MacCartee, the St. John's ace, had a lot to do with Washington's easy victory. MacCartee had scored 60 points in his last three games. Dopson let him down with a single goal from the field. The fact that their star was unable to reach the hoop, no doubt, had its effect on the morale of the rest of the team.

The floor was slippery and the fast Washington forwards, Giraitis and Carington, had considerable trouble making their cuts and pivots. The heavy scoring was done by Jacobs, after he had relieved Usilton near the close of the first half, and by Captain Cavanaugh.

St. Johns's College, of Philadelphia, brought a fairly good basketball outfit here on Saturday night, and they put up the best game possible. But their best was not good enough for Washington and they went down, by a margin of over 20 points. The fact is, every ordinary observer of the game knew they were in for a beating from the tip off. It was as certain as destiny, and fate, and everything else like that. Consequently, the fans lost interest as the game progressed. They realized it was a case of a slow, painless death, right under their eyes, like a person having an artery opened and bleeding until death stopped the flow. Wahington, too, seemed to sense the spirit of the specators, and they took things easy until the last few minutes of play, when they opened up all their heavy artillery and made a runaway of the contest. Stars were numerous in the game, but the al-around playing of Dopson was perhaps the feature of the contest.

Sharkey and Risko are to meet; then Delaney and Heeney; the winners to meet. Then the winner of this contest goes against Tunney for the championship.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Equal parts of mayonnaise and chili sauce mixed give an agreeable change of flavor to a salad, especially good with plain crisp head lettuce or shredded cabbage.

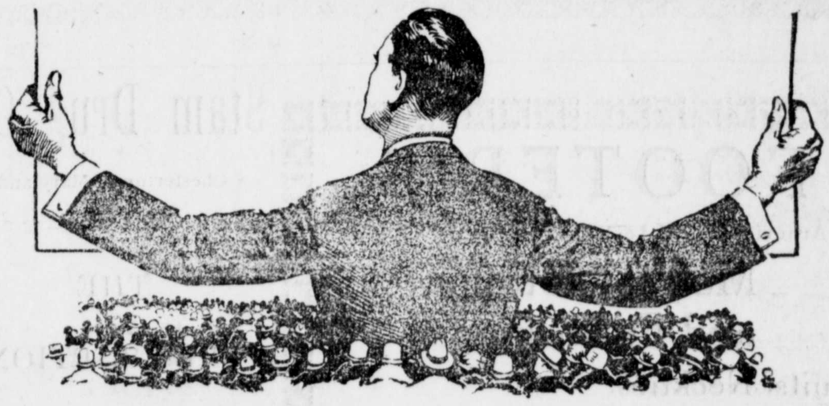

To make hard sauce a little different, use brown sugar instead of white, and grate in the rind of a orange for flavoring. Hard sauce is good with almost any hot steamed pudding.

Smooth, soft cotton materials that launder easily are best for children's rompers. Cotton charmeuse, ginghams, prints, cotton crepe, sateen, and fine broadcoath are good fabrics for the purpose.

When you wash handkerchiefs and other small articles in a washing-machine, inclose them in a net or muslin bag to keep them together and make easier to handle in the wringer and rinse waters.

Press wool garments while still damp with a medium hot iron until they are dry. Use a pressing cloth if ironing on the right side. Slightly dampened cheesecloth is useful in pressing flannels, as it draws up the fluff of the material.
