SPORTS OF WEEK

WASHINGTON GIVES HOPKINS GOOD TRIMMING—GAME WITH UNIVERSITY OF MD. LAST NIGHT

By POLK T. Bramble

(Other Sports on Page Five)

Washington's quintet showed real class Thursday night at Carlin's Park against Johns Hopkins, and demonstrated just what they could do when not handicapped by poor officiating. The final margin of their victory was seven points, 34-27.

Washington jumped into the lead at the beginning of the contest when Giriatis scored the first goal of the game but Hopkins was able to break through the Washington defense and soon held an 8-2 lead. This lead was, however, but short lived, and Washington's scoring aces began flashing about the floor in real championship fashion, and ended the first half, having a somewhat comfortable lead of 18-14.

The second half saw Washington complete masters of the situation to the extent that they were able to hold a safe lead throughout the contest; only once did Hopkins threaten to catch them, when they trailed by three points in the middle of the second half.

This game demonstrated the real ability of the local college team and was a source of delight to the large crowd of people who witnessed the game from Kent county. Giriatis and Dobson were the outstanding stars of the game.

Perhaps the hardest game on the Washington schedule was played last night with the University of Maryland, because of the fact that Washington had played two tough opponents on the two successive nights prior to the contest. This was the only game that the writer expected Washington to lose during the four-game series.

Rumblings from the front continue to come back to us concerning the poor officiating of the Mt. St. Mary's-Washington contest. As a usual thing we consider achievement as the final analysis in picking the winner, but if what we hear has a semblance of truth in it, there is no wonder W. C. lost.

CALLS "LOVE OF SUNYA" A GREAT MASTERPIECE

This is how Regina Crewe, of the New York Morning Telegram, refers to "The Love of Sunya," Gloria Swanson's picture, which comes to the Lyceum Theatre next Thursday and Friday, Feb. 23rd and 24th.

"In photographic effects, in dramatic power. in strength, sufficiency of cast," Miss Crewe writes, "she has prepared a photodrama, which cannot fail to be a masterpiece. And she has labored so hard to accomplish this purpose."

Writing of Miss Swanson, Miss Crewe says she has been unspoiled by her remarkable success and still works with the inspiration which marked the days when she was climbing upward to fame.

"Gloria Swanson is one of the super-women of the screen," the critic continues. "One does not predict where she is concerned. Stars have come, and stars have gone. Many of them. They will always do so. But there will remain the few who are firmly fixed in the firmament of fame. They attain the heights and hold them. They are constant—true. They live by the light of their ideals. Success does not spoil them. It spurs them on to higher accomplishment. Gloria Swanson is one of these."
