WASHINGTON ADDS TWO GAMES TO VICTORY COLUMN—GAME WITH LOYOLA TONIGHT ENDS SEASON—BOXING AT CENTREVILLE—OTHER NOTES OF INTEREST

BY POLK T. BRAMBLE

Washington College's basketball aggregation added two more games to its long list this week, both being out-of-the-state teams. In each game the local team easily demonstrated its superiority. This Washington College team is about the best in the state, and, while the Navy has the best record, they have played but three state teams. If you eliminate Navy, University of Maryland has the best percentage, but everyone knows Washington has the superior team. Games between Washington College and Navy would be most interesting.

George Godfrey won a close decision from Paolina Unzden, Spanish heavyweight, on Wednesday night. His victory was not pronounced, and his showing was disappointing. He fought very much on the order of Champion Tunney, a sort of holding and running affair. That is, run until you are caught; then hold until you tire out the other fellow and until the referee separates you.

Centreville is having a regular boxing festival. And they are having quite a big time over there. Fans from all over the Shore attend these matches, which are held by Mr. James Parrott, formerly of Chestertown. And they fight over there. There's no "Tunney stuff," running all over the ring until caught; then holding. That stuff is not popular there. Nor anywhere else we have ever been. The Caroline county champion Lister, weighing 225 pounds, was knocked out by Soldier Green the other night in three rounds. Lister is a hard fighter, but don't seem to be trained properly. He is willing, and the writer thought he could take the punishment, but it seems that he got one too hard for him.

On Saturday evening last, the Washington five hammered Schuykill College all over the local court and won an easy victory, 43-20. The long rest was good for them. They were passing well and shooting just as good. Giriatis was tossing the ball in from all angles, while Carrington also showed to splendid advantage. Dopson, who played a good, consistent game always, was also showing to splendid advantage. The local team also showed well on the defensive, and held Schuykill to three goals, Schuykill was able to get the best of Washington on the tip offs, but that was about all there was to it for them. Washington led from the start; at half time they held a big lead, which was increased during the second period.

The last game of the season will be played on the local floor tonight, when Loyola will be the opponents of the local collegians. This is a most important game. If Washington can win and they should not have to try so hard to do it, they will have about as good a claim to the state title as anyone else, in fact better than most of the college teams of the state. Loyola has lost a great many games by one point. They will probably lose tonight's game by more than one point.

Delaware College came here for a basketball game on Tuesday night. It might have been called a basketball game. If you happen to be in a charitable mood. At any rate it was a one-sided one, in fact, almost a complete rout. Delaware rooters and admirers had an idea that a basketball game could be won here by bluff and bluster, and complaining and howling at the umpire. They were wrong. Next time we suggest that they bring a gang of basketball players, instead of a crowd of overenthusiastic rooters. They may be more successful. They went down, under the circumstances 49-23.

Washington's team was in exceptionally good shape for the game. Giriatis looked better to the writer than he ever was. Perhaps because he had so little opposition. Carrington also looked good. Cavanaugh looked better than at any game this year. Giriatis scored 17 points; Carrington scored 10 points, while Cavanaugh scored 12 points. Delaware looked good for a few minutes in the second half against three of the second string players and two regulars; out side of this flash in the pan, they were no match for Washington's speedy five.

Delaware, in fact, had no concerted attack. Consequently, they were unable to get into the firing zone to shoot effectually. Long distance, seige guns, are all right, if you are a straight-shooter. But you can't shoot from New York to Philadelphia with a 50-mile gun, and you can't shoot through sixteen inch steel defenses with an air rifle, either. Dalaware tried both of these things impossible. When you can weld a pewter handle to a silver spoon, or graft a dead limb to a living tree and make it bloom and bear fruit, you might accomplish the things they tried. But not until.

Anyhow, the game was interesting. Delaware had fighting spirit. They tried hard. And, as the philosopher said, it is better, to try and fail than never to try. So, better luck, Delaware, next time.

THE NEW FORD CAR

The Following Are Some of the Out-standing Features of the New Ford Car:

It has four-cylinders, medium speed engine, developing 40 horsepower.

It has remarkable speed for a small engine, power to take the steepest hills, and a quick get-a-way in traffic. The engine has aluminum pistons, carefully balanced connecting rods, heavy, statically and dynamically balanced crank shaft, five bearing cam shafts, hot spot manifold and specially developed carburetor It is remarkably economical on gasoline, and is quiet and practically vibrationless.

The new Ford has the selective sliding gear transmission, multiple disc dry plate clutch, spiral bevel rear axle drive and three-quarter floating rear axle.

The springs are of the transverse semi-elliptic type, most practical and easiest riding spring for a light car, together with the finest hydraulic shock absorbers. It has four-wheel mechanical brakes of internal expanding shoe type.

It has a water pump, oil pump and ignition system of new mechanical design with the most approved theft proof coincidential ignition lock

It has a gasoline gauge, oil level gauge rod, and speedometer.

The bodies are low and of the most attractive design. They are finished in pyroxlin, highly polished, and the purchaser has the choice of four colors.

The interior are roomy, with ample leg room and deep, comfortable seats. Upholstery is an attractive durable cloth.

The cars are remarkably easy riding, they hold the road at all speeds and passengers ride in comfort, even over rough roads with the car going at a fast pace.

Every week we will describe in detail a few of the features of the new Ford car, so read this paper and get the information.

A LITTLE TALK ON THRIFT

(By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift)

There is at the present time such thought being given to the question of old-age pensions. Efforts are being made in a number of States to secure the enactment of legislation which will permit those Commonwealths to pay certain amounts to those who have become victims of the infirmities of old-age and are not self-supporting. Similar efforts in Washington are being made to secure the enactment of Federal old-age pension legislation.

It has been pointed out that the thirty-five foreign countries, six of our own States and the Territory of Alaska now have laws permitting pensions to be paid to the aged.

The point has been made that the average dependent can be supported on a pension plan much more economically than through a system of public aims houses.

It is commendable that so much attention is being given to these matters and everything possible should be done to take care of those who are old and who wholly or in part are not able to take care of themselves.

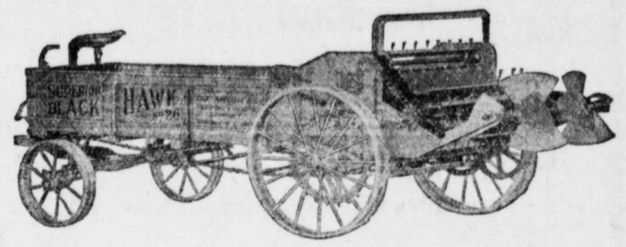

The agitation should serve also as a lesson to the members of the younger generation. Independence in personal financial affairs should be the goal of all.

Strangely enough, a considerable percentage of persons are willing to drift alone from day to day and take their chances on the future. Some of them may avoid old-age penury but the majority, when they shall have reached that period of life when they can no longer toil for a livelihood, will find themselves dependant upon the charity of the public or of their friends.

It is indeed not a happy out look for many. How much better it would be to deny one's self a few passing luxuries even a few comforts today and thus be assured that in the days of old age there will be an income that will mean complete independence.

Thrift is indeed the best and only dependable safeguard against one of life's saddest tragedies old-age penury.

HERE'S THE PROFITABLE WAY TO USE MANURE

With the Superior Black Hawk Spreader you get the biggest possible returns from manure. You save the money that would otherwise leak away in your barnyard. You get earlier, heavier, better crops. You get extra profits year after year.

No other spreader beats the manure so fine and spreads it so accurately. No other spreader is so easy to load, so handy to maneuver, so light to pull. No other spreader runs so smoothly, so quietly. No other spreader has such a useful load ratio, such fine materials and workmanship.

Come in and examine the Superior Black Hawk. See for yourself that it's the greatest spreader ever built.
