CERESAN
A Treatment For Wheat

Ceresan is very effective in the control of Bunt or Stinking Smut and is recommended for the control of seed bourne Flag Smut.

Ceresan is a very fine, gray dust, the chemical constituents of which do not cause corrosion of metals.

Therefore Ceresan should not clog the drill nor cause injury to its metal parts as is the tendency of some dust disinfectants.

Ceresan enables you to control many of the important cereal diseases speedily, economically and without danger to your seed.

Phrases Long Stock of Writers and Orators

An alternative sauce for over-statement is hearty and spirited understatement. "Not 'arf," says the cockney, when wishing to say that a thing is an ample whole. "The time has been," says Macbeth, "that, when the brains were out, the man would die, and there an end."

The British schoolboy has no terms of praise more emphatic than "pretty decent," unless it be "good enough." To spring in his audience a vivid sense of the extreme barrenness of the Sahara a British statesman describes it as "very light soil." To a woman brawling abuse from the door of an inn Charles Lamb imputes certain "murmurs not very indistinctly or ambiguously pronounced."

America does herself equal justice. She it was that first called the Atlantic "the herring pond," and "the drink," and Noah's flood "the big rain," and said that a rattlesnake's bite would "do you no good at all."

The Greeks had a recognized name for this ruse of saying much less than you mean in the hope that your hearer's mind will make good even more than the large percentage of discount which you have deducted from the truth—cunning fellow, casting your bread on the waters, under the form of a kind of rebate, in sure and certain faith that it will return to you buttered.—C. E. Montague in the Century Magazine.

Baffles Scientists

The remarkable electrical phenomenon sometimes witnessed at sea, and generally termed, St. Elmo's fire, never has been satisfactorily explained by science, says H. J. Andrews, in the White Star Magazine.

It is a luminous body which can be seen on wet nights perching on or skipping about the masts and rigging of a ship. Sometimes there are two such flames, and the ancient Roman sailors gave the name of Helena to the single light and termed the double one Castor and Pollux. Helene, in Greek, signified a torch, and Castor and Pollux were the twin sons, in classical mythology, of Jupiter and Leda.

Columbus' Chains

Columbus was carried back to Spain after his third voyage and during the trip he was such a sorrowful figure and the captain of the vessel had so much respect for him that he wanted to remove the chains,. but Columbus refused, saying that they were put on by orders of their majesties and they must be removed the same way. Of course, when he reached Spain and was ordered freed, his request that they be given him was granted and his grandson writes that they never left him. It was his dying request that they be buried with him, and this was done.

Long Railroads

The longest railroad in the world is the Transsiberian railway, which runs from Leningrad to Vladivostok, a distance of more than 5,500 miles. The largest system of railways operated under a single management is the Canadian National, with a total mileage of 22,000. The largest railway system in the United States is the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, with a total mileage of 15,000.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Hotel in a Mountain

One of the most extraordinary hotels in the world is on the Jungfrau. It is on the shoulder just below the crest of this Swiss giant, and was excavated rather than built, as most of the structure, which has five stories, is actually within the mountain. Everything in the hotel is worked by electricity, and access is gained by a tunnel from the terminal station of the Jungfraujoch railway.

Colonial Smugglers

In colonial New England there were smugglers, men who brought in goods in defiance of the British, robbed his majesty's government of needed revenue and helped materially, in the long run, to detach the American colonies from British rule. Boston, Providence, Newport and Salem all were ports of call for the carriers of contraband.—Kokomo Tribune.

"Vitamin" or "Vitamine"?

The pronunciation of this term depends on the form of spelling used. Two forms are in use, vi-ta-min, giving the first "i" the diphthongal sound that it has in aisle, and vitamine, pronounced vi-ta-meen. Of late, certain medical men have introduced the pronunciation vit-am-in, a pronunciation that is not yet recorded by the dictionaries.—Literary Digest.

Stepping Heavenward or (?)

Accredited scientific observers are telling us with increasing plainness that under the new ideas of today which have translated liberty into license multitudes of girls, to say nothing of young men, are being swept away into open and notorious immortality.—New York Journal.

Grades in Wool

Half-blood sheep means half of one breed and half of another. Half-blood wool is the next grade coarser than fine, but is commonly considered a fine wool—that is, the fibers have smaller diameters than those of the wool which is commonly called "medium wool."

"Probation" and "Parole"

Quoting Judge Kavanagh: "Probation lets one who has been adjudged guilty of crime go from the courtroom without any punishment at all. Parole means forgiving the rest of the punishment after a guilty person has suffered a part."

Language of Spain

The Spanish embassy advises that since Spanish is the national language of the country it is spoken by all the peoples of the country with the exception of a few scattered groups in the Pyrenees. Of those speaking Spanish, between 75 and 80 per cent also read and write it.—Washington Star.

Slightly Mixed

Bobby, sent by his mother with a message to a lady down the street, got the wording of it mixed up a bit. "Mother declines with pleasure your invitation for next Thursday," he said, "and thanks you extremely for having given her the pleasure of doing so."—Young Man.

Guatemalan Bird

The correct name for the quetzal, the bird that is the emblem of Guatemala, is "resplendent trogon." Trogons are very delicate birds, and when not supplied with the proper food will not live. This is probably the reason they do not thrive well in captivity.

Pleasure and Sorrow

"To enjoy life's pleasures," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "we must face its sorrows. No one could believe that happiness might depend on being deaf, dumb and blind."—Washington Star.

Settlement in Lake

Midlake is the name of a settlement located on a trestle about 12 feet above the surface of Salt lake. About 30 persons live in the houses along the railroad track in this town in the middle of the lake.

Self-Deception

"The world is fairly honest," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "and egotism is what we have most to fear. No other deceives us so much as we deceive ourselves."—Washington Star.

Took Name From Locality

The woman's garment known as a "basque" derived its style as well as its name from a similar garment worn by the peasants of the Basque country in France and Spain.

Man's Duties

Man is not born to solve the problem of the universe, but to find out what he has to do—and to restrain himself within the limits of his comprehension.—Goethe.

Old European Capitals

Paris was first mentioned in authentic history in the year 53 B. C. The history of the city of Berlin dates from the early part of the Thirteenth century.

Roman Measure of Wealth

The early Romans measured their wealth in oxen and the Latin word "pecus," meaning cattle, is the root of the word "pecunia," the Latin for money.

Fire of reported incendiary origin destroyed the stable of James Moore and the end of an adjoining property owned by Fred C Numbers and tenanted by Ben C. Hart last Sunday night about 9 o'clock.

Owing to the timely arrival of the Fire Company the Numbers building was saved by hard fighting on the part of the local fire fighters.

The Millington Fire Company really did the work, all that was necessary but were backed up by about nine other companies that had come from other points. These companies stood by in case their services were needed and their kindness was greatly appreciated.

This community wishes to thank them all for coming. On Monday morning, State's Attorney Stephen R. Collins, and Sheriff Hadaway visited the scene and later in the day a representative from the Fire Marshall's office, for an investigation of the matter.

Suspicion wwas directed to George and Charles Tibbett, who were questioned. Charles Tibbett had been employed in the lumber yard of J. P. Ahern & Son, where there were several fires of suspicious nature earlier he admitted starting the fires, saying to Charles Tibbett, on Monday night in the day and suspicion was attached that when he was drunk he liked to see the fire company in action. It is hoped the fire scare in the community is cleared up and will now abate.

Milton Moran, of near Rising Sun, is in Elkton jail charged with assault against his father, who is in a serious condition in Union Hospital.

Moran was in the wood shed near his home when some of the younger children of the family called him to the house where his father, who is said to have been under the influence of liquor, was dragging his mother upstairs by the hair and brandishing a razor in one hand.

The youth picked up an axe and hit his father behind the ear, thus freeing his mother who had already been beaten by her husband. Young Moran is being held pending the outcome of his father's injuries.
