SHEEP CENSUS TO BE TAKEN

In an effort to establish the rate of growth of the Sheep Industry in Kent County, Professor W. E. Hunt of the Animal Husbandry Department of the University of Maryland, will spend three days, September 9, 10, 11, in Kent County visiting Kent County sheep growers with County Agent McVean.

Sheep are money makers when properly bred and managed. The recent ram sale at Centreville reveals the increasing appreciation of farmers for rams of the right type and breeding.

Sheep are an additional source of income and since both wool and lamb furnish in some and profit, they should have a place on more Kent county farms.

WEDNESDAY MEETING OF TURKEY GROWERS

The Maryland Turkey Growers Association of Kent County, together with the County Agricultural Agents McVean and Miller, have called a meeting of everyone interested in turky growing in Kent County for Wednesday, September 11 at 1.30 p. m. at the Court House. Speakers from the State Department of Markets and the Bureau of Agricultural Economics will address the meeting in regard to the marketing and grading of the county turkey crop.

Kent County's turkey population has increased considerably this year with individual flocks numbering into the thousands. However, the larger turkey growers have their marketing problem fairly well solved and it is the smaller grower who needs help.

The Association was formed primarily to aid every grower in Kent and surrounding counties to obtain the best possible price for birds. The matter of grading has been discussed at all monthly meetings and is being recognized as the first step toward reaching the best markets for top price.

At the meeting on Wednesday the date of the annual turkey tour will be set. It is expected that the tour will come earlier in the season than formerly so that those who are exhibiting flocks will not be compelled to keep birds longer than they find practicable in order to make a good showing to the tourists.

All farmers are urged to be present at this meeting.

—The fire company received a call from Georgetown to pump out a sinking tomato boat but as the boat was caught on a stake 150 feet from shore, the call was not answered because of lack of sufficient suction hose to reach the boat.

PARK IMPROVEMENT FUND

Prospects are very bright for reclaiming the two public parks in Chestertown and making them into beauty spots, as result of efforts being made by the Rotary Club, Commissioners of Chestertown and the Fire Company.

The plan of beautification will be along the line suggested by Professor Ballard, landscape gardner of the State Department of Agriculture, which includes the removal of five trees, the establishing of a sod, removal of the band stand and the trimming of trees in the large square. The improvement in the lower square includes the trimming of trees, establishing of a boundry line repainting and repairing the flag pole and removal of the obsolete fountain at the east end.

Anyone interested to the extent of contributing toward this fund may send their contributions to R. H. Collins, Jr., treasurer. The names of the contributors will be published except those who request to the contrary.

Estimates at the present time, besides what the town commissioners and Fire Co., have agreed to do, put the expense at approximately $100.

Whatever efforts and expenditure that is made can not make the plan a success unless the whole community cooperates in protecting the parks from abuse. With the entire community cooperating anything can be made a success.

HOG DEMONSTRATION.

Mr. O. E. Yerkey, of Pomona, at the September 5th speaking from his background of successful swine growing, points out lessons that should set many Kent County farmers to thinking of the hog as another source of profit in farming.

Mr. Yerkey stresses the need for brood stock of right type and breeding. Next the feeding must be suitable in variety and amount. Hogs are not built to thrive on roughage alone.

In the ration, Mr. Yerkey maintains that water is an item often overlooked by farmers, yet which is very important for the hog to have at will. He provides a mineral mixture to insure strength and quality of bone. Protein is supplied to furnish material for growth and vigor.

He finds that sows should farrow on clean ground(not on worm infested hog lots) if success is to result. Clover pasture is a fine means of lessening the cost of production, since the clover furnishes part of the needed protein. Fish meal or tankage are also supplied.

If "seeing is believing" many should visit Mr. Yerkey's farm and see for themselves that Mr. Yerkey's ideas are practical. Among with the ideas already listed Mr. Yerkey adds the personal touch to his formula. He cares for his pigs and they show the results.

Mr. Yerkey has nine (9) pigs that will undoubtedly weigh a ton when they reach the age of 6 months. His pigs are always good pigs are not an accident. Success with pigs follows when good methods and good management are supplied in properly sized doses.

Norman Sutton ranked 6th, Albert Nicholson 10th, and Albert Sutton 13th among about fourty contestants. Kent's boys were very consistent in their placings and this consistency was responsible for their winning second place. Norman Sutton was high man in Judging Guernseys, while Albert Nicholson was 4th in Ayrshires judging. They won $20 and $5.00 respectively.

Montgomery county's Team ranked 3rd, Baltimore Co., 4th, and Frederick 5th.
