BUILDING BRIDGE APPROACH

Work will start today building a new approach to the Chester River bridge on the Kent side. The temporary approach will be built to the right of the present approach and will meet the bridge about 150 feet from the shore line. 150 feet of the present bridge will be removed as soon as this approach is built.

The new bridge contractors will endeavor to finish the concrete road approach on the Queen Anne's side from the shore line to Anthony's gate before November 15th as this is the latest that the State Roads Commission will allow concrete roadway to be poured.

It was intimated yesterday morning that the driving of piles for the new bridge may continue throughout the winter months.

GROWS 13 TONS TOMATOES TO ACRE

WALTER MORRIS, FORMER 4-H CLUB BOY, MAKES RECORD

According to the data furnished by County Agent McVean, Walter Morris has this year produced 13 6-100 tons of tomatoes on each of 4 55-100 acres of land.

Young Morris grew this fine field on an alfalfa sod, which was well manured and fertilized and well tilled. He is to be congratulated on his success.

The area was measured by the County Agent. The tonnage was arrived at by totaling the numbers of baskets sold from this patch and allowing 60 baskets to the ton.

If other Tomato Growers in the County have made ten (10) or more tons per acre and desire credit for their successful effort, the County Agent will measure the tomato patch, compute the yield from the sales slps and determine the average yield per acre.

A number of Kent County growers are competing in the State-wide 10 ton per acre contest. Valuable prizes are offered for the three highest per acre yields in the State. Certificates will be awarded to all who average 10 tons or more per acre.

THE MIGRATION OF THE BIRDS

BY ALICE MATHEWS

Whither away? Who's calling you?
I would I could bird-language read,
Your distant flight I would pursue,
For solitary seems the lead.
And yet I feel, I sense, I know,
Some Power above, some Heavenly Host
Unseen beside you doth mute go
To guide you o'er each pathless coast.

Whither away? Rivers are wide
And deserts long for little wings,
Yet One there is close to your side,
No wonder each small traveler sings;
For though illimitable the air,
And though the ocean side is rough,
Who could complain when heavenly care
Lives, breathes and guides, this is enough!

Whither away? Where are you bound?
The open sea you follow fast,
Surely some word, some mystic sound
Leads you all safely dangers past
For in the glorious budding spring
Behold! Your piping tunes return,
The same sweet songs you joyous sing,
Song-heritage from you we learn.

We winter on life's open sea
The sea so rough, so rough at times,
And yet behold! We find there free
Sweet cradle songs and nursery rhymes!
There is a Power that guides each bird,
There is a living Breath that breathes
On every song that is deep stirred
That man or bird, in faith receives.

What a wonderful thing it is to see the sun! It is thrilling to read how joyfully those explorers in Anartica, hailed its coming after a long winter of darkness. They write that we who see it evry day cannot appreciate its beauty. It seems to have a cross of light around it, while everywhere the ice bound seas and glaciers reflect its radiance. And now that the arctic summer is there it means a midnight sun for many months to come and they hope to make many discoveries while it lasts.

Being no connoissuers of art, and while deploring vandalism of all sorts, yet we can understand how the uneducated mind should hardly be impressed with the works of Epstein, the Leads you all safely dangers past. sculptor in England who is in the lime light just now. Vandals have painted his statues, erected in the park yreen, and hape in some instances covered them with lead. These statues are examples of intense ralism; and, we suppose, do not appeal to the popular taste.

Count Serge Leviskey a near relative of the late Czar, of Russia, and sometime Naval Commander, came over in one of the ocean liners last week listed as a deck hand. Knowing his former exalted position, they offered to take him to shore, before the ship was allowed to land, but he refused the offer. He says his life is fairly happy as a deck hand. He finds courtesy and kindness on every hand, and he is free from care and responsibility. Could he only have his great library again, he could wish no more in life.

MILK MARKETING SITUATION EXPLAINED

PRESIDENT INTERSTATE MILK PRODUCERS MEET

On Monday and Tuesday a series of meetings from the receiping stations at Kennedypille, Worton, Massey and Chestertown were held.

The meetings were held for the purpose of electing delegates from the farious locals to attend the annual meeting of the Producers Association in Philadelphia on November 19th and 20th. Officers in each of the locals were elected for the coming year.

Mr. Allebark, a Montgomery county, Pa., farmer, President of the Inter-State Milk Prodocers Association explained in a very forcible and clear cut manner the reasons for the recent changes in marketing the milk. Readers will recall the announcement that all milk produced during October, November and December would sell at "basic" price and that producers would have the choice of using the old basic for 1930 or the average production for the above three, 1929 months as the 1930 basic.

Due to the rains and warm weather, pastures have developed in an unexpected manner, and therefore milk yields increased correspondingly some farmers bought in new cows, some began to feed heavily and as a result an unexpected flood of milk was produced. Too much milk was produced to meet the need of the consuming public. It was feared that this condition would result in a "Break" in price and would be followed during the winter months by milk shortage. The basic surplus plan is the best known method of regulating production according to need throughout the year.

It is thought that the return to the basic surplus plan, effecive November 1st is the best possible solution of the problem. Doubtless it is not beneficial to 100 per cent. of the producers but is to the best interest of the vast majority of the producers.

The basic allotment to each producer as used for the frst nine months of 1929 will be effective during November and December, 1929. For 1930, the new basic allotment will be determined as follows:
The basic for which each producer was paid in 1928; the basic for which each producer was paid in 1929; the average production for October, November and December 1929. Total of the above three is divided by three to arrive at the basic allotment for 1930.

If any producer does not understand the matter the County Agent will gladly help clear up the matter. Any producer who is not satisfied with his basic should set forth the matter clearly in a letter to Mr. Allebach, who will give the matter careful attention and make adjustments where they are possible and justifiable.

—The Chestertown High School Athletic field was the scene of much activity yesterday afternoon when the Rock Hall High School soccer team met the locals and th egiris field ball teams of the two schools also played. If Chestertown won the soccer game they will win the county championship. If Rock Hall wins, another game will be played. Anothers field ball games will be played regardless of who wins as the first game ended in a tie.

—Mr. Robert West and Miss Francis Wiley, both of Camden, N. J., were married on Saturday of last week by Rev. Walter H. Stone, of Betterton.

PRELIMINARY BRIDGE WORK STARTED

SURVEYORS AT WORK THIS WEEK PILING CONTRACT LET

What may be considered the first steps of the construction of new Chester River bridge started this week when a survying party of the State Roads Commission started laying out permanent lines for approaches, etc.

It is understood that the Raymond concrete pile company has the contract for making the piling and this work will start shortly and continue through the winter. Negotiations are underway for the rental of Kibler's wharf at the foot of Cannon street for the making of the piling.

A pile driver will be here next week to drive piles for the permanent survey lines and work on grading for the approach on the Queen Anne's side will start shortly. While actual bridge construction is not expected to start until spring, the preliminary work and material will be finished by that time.
