FARMERS,

LIST YOUR

Repair Needs.

It would be hard to find a farmer what at some time or another had not lost valuable time waiting for neces sary repair parts. Take this territory and total up the time lost in this way and it will astonish you. And all because repairs are not ordered as early as they should be.

There is no better time than right now—just before the busiest season on the farm—to go over your machines carefully, make a list of repairs you are likely to need and send it to us. With this list in our hands, we can order our stock so as to be prepared to met every call promptly.

Repair part service is a necessary part of our business. We realize what it means to you in time and money to get what you need at once. Help us to help you by making up your list now and sending it in to us.

TO MARKET MARYLAND GRAIN

FARM LEADERS MEET IN BALTIMORE—E. THOMAS MASSEY IN COMMITTEE

The organization of a grain marketing agency was agreed upon by farm leaders of Maryland who met in Baltimore on Monday, November 18th. These farm leaders representing the Farm Bureau, Grange, Maryland State Dairymens' Association, Agricultural Corporation of Maryland, Maryland State Horticultural Society, Maryland Crop Improvement Association, University of Maryland Extension Service and others met as the Board of Directors of the Agricultural Corporation of Maryland. It was decided to use the Agricultural Corporation of Maryland as the agency through which to do grain marketing rather than to set up another separate organization. They voted to amend the charter of the Corporation in a number of parts in order to bring the Corporation in its set up under the provisions of the new Federal Farm Marketing Act.

First, its authorized capital is increased from $250,000 to $500,000, one half of which authorized capital is to be common stock and one half preferred stock. Second, only one share of common or voting stock is to be allowed a member, thus providing for the cooperative principle of one man, one vote.

Third, dividends on common stock are limited to 8 per cent. per year. The prefered stock is to bear 6 per cent. per year interest, and is cumulative.

It was felt that over-head costs could be kept to the minimum under this arrangement. A special committee consisting of Messrs. A. G. Ensor, D. S. Pearce, M. Frank Holter, E. Thomas Massey, Dr. T. B. Symons, Dr. F. B. Bomberger, James W. Davis and M. M. Stewart, was appointed by President James W. Davis of the Agricultural Corporation of Maryland, who is also President of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation to recommend a plan for the handling of grain marketing.

This Committee after conference with the Attorneys of the Federal Farm Board, recommended that the Agricultural Corporation of Maryland be used as the medium for this purpose and it was in accordance with their report that plans to increase the capital, to limit dividends on common stock to 8 per cent. and to limit each member to one vote was carried to a conclusion at the meeting on Monday.

This proposition as adopted by the directors will be placed before the annual meeting of the stock holders of the Corporation on Wednesday, January 8th, 1930, in Baltimore, where it is expected to be adopted. Plans are now being formulated to make arrangements for the local receiving and handling of grain, thus putting this new service readily at hand for the individual grain producers of the state.

Already quite a number of the county Farm Bureaus are operating County Farm Bureau Cooperative Associations. These organized business units can be used as the agency through which to receive and load the grain. Application has also been made to the Farmers' National Grain Corporation for membership in that organization, thus tying the grain marketing movement in Maryland, in with the Federal Farm Board's national plan for a unified system of marketing grain in this country.

NEW INVESTMENT CO. FORMED

An issue of 50,000 shares of the Capital Stock of the Fidelity Bank and Trust Company, Wilmington, Delaware's newest financial institution is being offered the public. This is an opportunity presented to citizens of Delaware and the Eastern Shore, who may wish to participate in the launching of this new thrift organization.

The financial plan is one that is the result of the creative genius of Shelley B. Hutchinson, chairman of the board of directors, and who will be remembered by millions of men and women, who lived more than a score of years ago, as a member of the firm of Sperry and Hutchinson, orginator of the green trading stamp.

Mr. Hutchinson has combined his intelligence with years of experience to work out a plan that should prove of great advantage to the working man of today in the direction of savings.

Through the use of thrift certificates in the purchase of all commodities, citizens will be able to profit by the savings they will obtain on such purchases.

Mitchell and Son, of New Castle, have been awarded the contract for razing operations at Ninth and Orange streets, Wilmington, the site of the new bank. In order to protect the public, a bridge will be built over the sidewalk at that point.

The architect with the contractor and sub-contractors meet this week to discuss various details of the plans and as soon as the buildings at Ninth and Orange streets are razed, work on the new bank structure will be started at once.

WASHINGTON ELM.

(From The Washington Post.)

"Grandchild seeding" of the famous Washington elm that stood at Cambridge, Mass., will have a place on the memorial highway from the Nation's capital to Mount Vernon, the American Tree Association announces. The offer is made by Mrs. James H. Dorsey, of the Daughters of the American Revelution of Maryland, so that plans can be made for placing it in 1932 at the time of the big celebration in honor of Washington birthday. The gift has been accepted by those having the building of the memorial highway.

The "grandchild seedling" offered by Mrs. Dorsey has a long history and is listed in the "Hall of Fame" of the American Tree Association. There are two at the tomb at Mount Vernon and another is in the ground of the governor's house at Annapolis, where the then Governor Warfield placed a bronze tablet on it.

Nearly forty years ago an uncle of Mrs. Dorsey brought from Cambridge a handful of seeds he had scooped through the iron fence around the tree. On planting them in his Maryland garden some of them grew. One went to the governor's mansion yard at Annapolis and the rest to Mount Vernon. The Annapolis one is a beautiful thing, and there are two still growing at Mount Vernon in front of the tomb. The fourth, another uncle's yard, is flourishing and productive.

Three years ago Mrs. Dorsey took it to her home in Baltimore with quite a bundle of the little trees that were springing up around the roots of this particular "child" of the old "Washington Elm" which had fallen three or four years before. Mrs. Dorsey has nursed and cared for these little "grandchildren," with the result that she has three or four very healthy little youngsters. Two have grown so rapidly that they are now nearly fifteen feet tall.

One has been given to Valley Forge and is planted in front of the memorial church. One went to Washington College, at Chestertown, on the Eastern Shore of Maryland named for Washington with his expressed consent, and visited by him, when he received an honorary degree. Another is thriving beautifully in the grounds of the Daughters of the American Revolution Memorial Convention Hall in Washington.

FROM OUR EXCHANGES

Nathan Custis talked too much last Tuesday, and now must serve out a sentence of twelve months. Nathan was up in Judge Northam's Court at Onancock, Va., on a charge of theft, and when the gavel went down he was found guilty to the extent of six months. Unabashed at the prospect of six weary months of duty, Nathan waxed bold and asked the Judge if that was all he had. The Judge had more, and 90 days was added, whereupon the prisoner declared that it wouldn't take long to serve that out. The law only allowed 12 months for the offence and twelve months was administered and Nathan Custis, colored, now has a nice long spell to figure out how it happened.

With the completion of the new channel through Kent Island Narrows, by contractors working under orders of the government, officials have completed the marking of the channel by placing a series of buoys on the east and west sides of the stream. The buoys were planted under the direction of Capt. J. C. Miles of the U. S. Lighthouse Tender Maple. Buoys on the east side of the channel are black, while those on the West are red.

A mother requested State's Attorney Henry of Talbot county to send her small son to prison so that he might "have a comfortable home during the Winter." She explained that she was a widow, that her earning capacity was only $3 a week and that she could not support herself and son on that amount. Her voice and hands trembled as she pleaded that her request be granted. She further explained that the boy had been working on a farm for his board and clothing, but now that the wheat was seeded and work on the farm was practically over for the year, the farmer told the boy he could not keep him longer. The State's Attorney immediately got in touch with Miss Ruth Poole, a charity worker. Miss Poole in turn got in touch with Rev. Walter A. Hearn, pastor of Ebenezer M. E. Church, who called John W. Henry, a farmer who lives about four miles from Easton. The latter agreed to take the boy, also to see that he went to school. The State's Attorney presented the case to John P. Stafford a member of the Easton Rotary Club, who in turn explained it to the club at their meeting. The members raised $35 to be given to Mr. Henry to defray incidental expenses for the boy and his mother.

The Susquehanna Power Company has filed with the Circuit Court for Cecil County on appeal from the decision of the State Tax Commission in the assessment for taxation of the real estate and property of the Company in Cecil County (the Conowingo dam property) and the Court has set Thursday, December 5, at 9.30 for a hearing in the matter.

The assessment made by the State Tax Commission is $8,234,929.

THEN AND NOW

Robert E. M. Cowie, president of the American Railway Express Company, recently told the following story to show how we have progressed:

About 90 years ago a diterary society in a small and deeply religious Pennsylvania town decided to debate the question: "Are Railroads Practical?" They expected to attract a large audience and asked permission to use the schoolhouse, to which the School Board replied, after a great deal of deliberation:

"If the society wanted to use the schoolhouse to debate some decent moral question, we should cheerfully give the use of it. But such a thing as a railroad is wicked as well as absurd. If God had wanted human beings to travel at the fearful rate of speed of seven miles an hour, he would clearly have foretold it by his prophets. But since nothing is said about it in His Holy Writ, it is plainly an invention of the devil to lead immortal souls to hell. Hence, we must refuse the use of the schoolhouse."

California has a law which prohibits persons under 18 years of age from remaining at public dances after midnight. An unexpected difficulty in enforcing the law arises from the fact that it is sometimes hard to tell whether a "flapper" is under or over 18. As a result of a recent sad experience, Probation Officer L. J. Kinney, of Placer County says he is through attempting to enforce the law in his beat. While censoring a dance at Auburn, he recently tapped a dancing damsel on the shoulder and asked her if she knew about the law. Whereupon she led him to a dressing room, where two young babes were sleeping on a cot. "Those are my grand children," she scornfully informed him, as she quickly turned about and resumed dancing.
