NOW AND THEN

APRIL
BY ALICE MATHEWS

'Tis April, sweet and fresh and fair,
For is not Easter in the air?
And violets, tulips, crocus groom
Full-liveried in Spring's brightest bloom.
Why even every grove doth voice
Some stir of gladness, and rejoice
That old Dame Nature now doth bring
A lusty tune to joyous Spring!
On these good days, calm, radiant, mild,
The sun triumphantly doth smile.
When April stands at Time's Cross-Way
The Lark, the Lamb, the Laborer stay
In spirit merry, this impart
Doth carry cheer to every heart
And steeped in Sunshine are these lines
My heart this day to you resigns;
For such enjoyment moves along
Unconsciously it brings a song.

Those who travel on the blue Mediterranean love to stop at the Madeirra Islands, set like jewels in the surrounding sea. There are quaint little towns and cities with their memories and treasures.

In the quiet little city of Funchal, in beautiful Madeira, gleams a modest white stone with this inscription, says Dr. Risner:

To a Faithful Friend
He possessed beauty without vanity
Strength without insolence
Courage without ferocity
In fact he possessed all man's virtues
Without his vices.

TOBY WAS HIS NAME!

The subway door was shut and about to move off when a pair of legs was seen waving out of the window while the owner was trying to drag a young woman out of the car. "Here you!" snarled the policeman, as he seized the young man by the feet and dragged him out of the car, "What do you mean?" Don't argue but come with me" But I tell you, my bride is on the train and I have got to go with her," cried the young man as he watched the train go roaring down the tracks. "The subway man pushed her in and kept me off." She is from the South and knows nothing of New York." The people gathered around and began to tell the groom what to do, but who knows that they may not be searching each other in vain through the vast net work of streets in the arge city.

The lonely Island where Robinson Crusoe lived according to Defoe and met his "man Friday" is again for rent, cheap. Its real name is Juan Fernandez and it lies in the South Pacific Ocean, about 200 miles from Valparaisa. The island has been leased to a company for its tortoises and birds' eggs but no settlement has been made. Here it was that Robinson Crusoe could say: "I am monarch of all I survey." This is a good chance for one to get away from the automobiles and [illegible]ise of the loud speaker. Who w[illegible]s it?

The Oyster
The oyster in his silent shell
Resides alone in dumb content,
And finds it comforting to dwell
Where no one bothers him for rent.

The age old question. What shall we name the baby was settled very quickly in Kansas City a few days ago. The census taker came and was taking the names of all the family. On being informed that there was a new baby but they had not decided upon its name the Census taker said, Well I wil wait until you name it." "So a hurried family conference was held and the baby was listed as "Alice."

A man in Iowa was found to have his bed so placed that his head was in one county and his feet in another. But only his head was counted.

The old saying "Familiarity breeds contempt" is no where better shown than in reading the daily life of our great writers and poets. Some one is lamenting that the letters of Shelly to his wife, Harriet, have been found and published in the "Atlantic Monthly" just when everyone is proclaiming Shelley as such a sweet singer and a seer and when one reads Carlyle whose writings are as musical as a tuneful organ, it is a little come down to read the diary of his wife, Jane Carlyle.

She writes very fully of their life to gether and while she admires him she finds him very trying.

She writes:

"Mr. C. took Nero out with him tonight," she wrote, "and half an hour later he opened the door with his latch key and called in 'is that vermin come back?' Having received my horrified 'No!' he hurried off again, and for twenty minutes I was in the agonies of one's dog lost, my heart beating up into my ears. At last I heard Mr. C.'s feet in the street; and, oh joy! heard him gollaring at something and one knew what the little bad something was."

"Vermin" was not his name!

LOCAL POST MAY SPONSOR SCOUT TROUPE

At the regular meeting of the Frank M. Jarman Post No. 36 American Legion, held at the armory on Wednesday evening of this week, a committee was appointed to study the advisability of sponsoring a Boy Scout troup in Chestertown.

At the present time there is an active Scout troupe here under the leadrship of Prof. W. J. Stenger, but it is not recognized due to the fact that it has never had the backing of any organization.

The committee from the local legion post will meet with scout officials from Wilmington next week to discuss the matter. If the American Legion finds it advisable to sponsor the scout troupe it will become a part of the national organization, and under the direct supervision of the Frank M. Jarman Post No. 36.

UNAVOIDABLE ACCIDENT KILLS COLORED GIRL

Mr. Frank B. Hines, Jr., was exonerated of all blame by a coroner's jury in the death of Dorothy Redding, seven year old colored girl who was run over by an automobile driven by Young Hines on Saturday afternoon of last week.

According to the testimony of witnesses, the girl ran across the street directly in front of the automobile driven by Mr. Hines. The accident occured on South Queen street and Mr. Hines, who is a student at the University of Maryland, was on his way to the country club. The little colored girl was rushed to Easton in the local ambulance but only lived a few hours after arriving at the hospital.

Coroner Dr. Harry L. Dodd, held an inquest on Sunday afternoon and the jury brought in a verdict of unavoidable accident.

DROWNED IN BALTIMORE HARBOR

Clifton Everett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Everett, of Quaker Neck, was drowned on Friday of last week when he fell from the boat of Captain William C. Townshend which was tied to the wharf at Canton, Baltimore.

Young Everett was standing on the rail doing some work on a stag were only a few feet above the surface of the water, and talking to a friend on a boat on the other side of the pier. The friend saw him step backward and boat tied alongside.

When Captain Townshend came aboard he called to the man on the neighboring boat and asked if he had seen Everett. His reply was that he was aboard as he was just talking to him.

A search of the boat showed that he was not aboard and the police boat was called. On the second drag of the net the body was recovered. It is thought that young Everett became unconscious while standing on the rail as there was apparently no cry for help.

He was 25 years of age and was a member of the crew of Captain Townshends boat. The boat was loaded and ready to sail to the Potomac river.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

CHAMBER STATES REASONS FOR FAVORING FULL TIME HEALTH SERVICE

At the regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce the question of the full time health officer was fully discussed and the Board went on record as favoring this addition to the public health equipment for Kent County. The Board presented the reasons given below, as to why they fostered this movement by their approval, to the Board of County Commissioners and asked their cooperation in this matter.

1. In its war against disease in its territory every State Board of Health in the United States is more and more establishing a full time health service for its various counties.

2. Without such full time public health service there is no efficient and adequate way to insure general health.

3. Part time service slows up the control of communicable disease because of the round about method by which reports must come to the office of the Deputy State Health Officer.

4. Maryland is marching ahead in the procession of progress for eleven of its counties have already established the full time service and have abolished the old inefficient part time service.

5. It is a matter of record that no county in the United States which has gone on the full time plan has ever reverted to the old system.

6. Calvert County, with the lowest taxable basis in Maryland has seen the need and has adopted the full time health service plan.

7. Kent County ranks seventh highest in infant and maternal mortality rate in the State.

8. There are not enough practicing physicians in Kent County to take care of the health situation.

9. There is vital need of general education on public health throughout the County and individual doctors. restricted to their private practices, have no way of desseminating essential health information.

10. There is increasing difficulty in getting general practitioners to settle in any rural communities.

11. No busy physician with a considerable practice has time to safeguard the health of an entire community.

12. Many counties in Maryland, in order to get the full time service have had to increase their appropriation. The State Board of Health is most generous in offering Kent this full time health service without a penny additional cost.

The letter to the County Commissioners was signed by Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, president of the Chamber.

In Kent County statistics show that one out of every ten babies born, die before the completion of their first year. Statistics also show that the rate among the colored race is not as high as those figures would indicate. While the death rate is somewhat higher in the colored group it is not enough so to give a satisfactory reason for the rate being so tremendously high.

3rd District—Harry Clark in place of Carlton C. Moore, excused.

4th District—Elwood Whaley in place of G. Frank Clark, excused.

FIVE GOLDEN ROD YEARS

"Give me five more years and the United States will have a rubber crop that can be utilized in less than 12 months' time," says Thomas A. Edison. It is a significant statement because it is one of the few definite predictions that have been offered concerning the posibility of securing rubber from plants grown n the temperate zone. Coming from another man, it might be dismissed as an evidence of a boastful disposition, or one overclined to optimism. As offered by Mr. Edison, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, there is reason to believe that the future will prove it to be a statement of fact.

The inventor adds that he is working on machinery to extract rubber from goldenrod. When the machinery is ready, goldenrod will be planted on a large scale. But goldenrod raised for the purpose of producing rubber will not be one of the country's stable crops, if present understanding of the possibilities is correct. The product to be obtained from it is described as emergency rubber. If the description fits the case, the goldenrod farm in Georgia will not ordinarily be a competitor of the rubber plantation in the Malaysia.

But once given the farms who shall say that their owners will not bring rubber into tariff debates? The time may come when Congress will hear that the infant goldenrod industry is in need of protection against the tropical product. Stranger things have happened. Immediate interest, however, centers in the definite statement of the inventor that he will make rubber from goldenrod in five years. What may thereafter happen in a goldenrod era is another matter.

EASTERN SHORE BIDS FOR AIR PORT

At a conference held yesterday with Dr. Hugo Echener famous Commander of the Graf Zeppelin, and commander Jerome C. Hunsacker, Vice-president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, in Dr. Eckener's apartment, at the New Willard Hotel, Washington a group of business leaders representing the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula, were assured that Del-Mar-Va will be investigated and given consideration in the selection of a site for the trans-continental dirigible base, to be located on the Atlantic Seaboard.

The conference with Dr. Eckener was arranged by Mr. Ralph H. Grier, of R. D. Grier & Sons, Salisbury, through Commander Hunsaker. Mr. Grier has been cooperating with the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association for sometime to bring about this meeting.

Congressman T. Alan Goldsborough introduced the Eastern Shore representatives and explained briefly the purpose of their visit.

Mr. Wm. S. Gordy, Jr., a Vice-President of the Del-Mar-Va Association acted as spokesman for the delegation. He offered facts in a manner which unquestionably aroused the keen interest of the Goodyear-Zepplin Corporation representatives. Charles S. Bayer, President of the Del-Mar-Va Airport, at Hepbron, explained weather and wind conditions.

A detailed report of the conference which lasted more than an hour, will be presented to the Executive Commitee of the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association at a meeting to be held next Monday. The Kent County Chamber of Commerce received a letter from Dr. Eckener in reply to a telegram inviting him to visit Kent county and look over a site as the possible location for the trans-continental dirigible base. In his letter Dr. Eckener stated in his letter that at the present time it would be impossible to visit Kent county but the telegram would be kept on file.

HOLSTEIN BREEDERS TO MEET

Breeders of Holsteins in Kent County are requested to meet Tuesday, April 15 at 8 p. m. in the Court House. Mr. H. C. Barker who supervises Advanced Registry work in Maryland and who aids in breed promotion work will speak. Its time to reorganize the Holstein Cub in Kent County. An interesting meeting is assured.

Mr. J. D. McVean and the University of Maryland are cooperating in arranging this meeting of owners of holstein cattle.

The purpose of the association is to increase the interest of breeders in their cattle and to create a spirit of friendly competition between similar organization in other counties which it is hoped will terminate in a contest at the State fair between county herds.

GOV. RITCHIE MAKES FORMAL ANNOUNCEMENT.

In announcing that he is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for a fourth term as Governor of Maryland, Governor Ritchie made the following statement:

I will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Maryland.

I have made this decision only after very long consideration. This has not been at all due to any uncertainty about the way I regard the Governorship of Maryland. I have always said that next to the Presidency I regard it as the greatest honor that can come to an American citizen. This is so because the office not only administers the affairs of the State, but it is representative of the Maryland ideal of government, which is the life of democracy and liberty everywhere. So naturally there is nothing I had rather have than the opportunity of serving my State as Governor for another term.

But the people of Maryland have honored me in very full measure and I would have no right to ask the public for another term, until sentiment on the question, particularly in my own party, had had very full opportunity to crystallize, one way or the other.

I think everyone will agree that there has been this opportunity. If there was any advantage to me in getting into the field quickly, as many of my friends strongly urged, certainly I have not taken advantage of it.

For months now the public have been discussing available candidates and the character of government which Maryland has had during recent years, but particularly have the public been discussing whether they wanted to continue me at the head of this great business of theirs—which is what the State Government really is—with the experience I have acquired by working for eleven years on the job.

The fourth term question in particular has been not only discussed, but publicly debated, and men like Dr. William H. Welch, Mr. Randolph Barton, Jr., Mr. Sylvan Hayes Lauchheimer, Dr. Cary B. Gamble, Jr., Mr. W. Irving Cross, Mr. Waldo Newcomer, Mr. Francis King Carey, Mr. William L. Marbury, Mr. R. Howard Bland, Mr. James M. Easter, Mr. Frank Novak and others, disposed of any objection on this point effectively.

Gives Basis Of Decision.

Everyone in the Democratic party, who would like to be Governor, has had the opportunity to be considered. Some of the most influential men in the party, after canvassing the available field, did, in fact, support another candidate, behind whom for a very considerable time, opposition to me has had the fullest opportunity to center. This candidate has now withdrawn.

These and other occurrences during the past months, the support which has been offered me from so many sources, and particularly recent developments, including the open letter published Sunday and signed by 1,500 representative citizens of both parties, have finally decided me to become a candidate for another term.

I cannot express in any way at all adequate the gratitude I feel for these evidences of confidence in me. It is something I never can forget.

There is ample time to discuss the ussues of the campaign and all pertinent subjects, so I need say nothing about them at this time.

"Intense Pride In State."

I have an intense pride in my State, and its political ideals are the sum and substance of the only political philosophy I know. I have been proud to proclaim them wherever and when ever I could, both at home and abroad, because I believe that in them lies our best hope of political salvation.

If the people honor me with another nomination and election I will continue during the next four years to devote my life exclusively to the service of the State to trying to make it a model of good government and of sound political doctrine.

And as long as I am Givernor of Maryland I will do my best to preserve those policies which safeguard most and interfere least with the just liberties and well being of our people.
