THE TRANSCRIPT

CHESTERTOWN CAN WELL be proud of the heroism displayed by James Anthony and Medford Brooks, Jr., both boy scouts when they risked their lives and saved the life of Raymield Reed when he fell from the Chester River bridge Wednesday morning. Although completely exhausted they clung to the clothing of the unconscious boy and were carried down the river by a strong ebb tide. The quick action and bravery of these two boys mark them as real heroes and they are a credit to their Boy Scout troupe and the community in which they live.
