THE INDIVIDUAL YET NEEDED BY BUSINESS

By JOHN G. LONSDALE
President American Bankers Association

SOME seem to think that the day of the individual in business has passed. But they are wrong. While the individual may not attract such outstanding attention as he did in the days of old when institutions were conducted on a smaller scale, he nevertheless is to be found in any large corporation, dominating the situation, giving orders here, cooperating there and shouldering the responsibility of keeping a large group of lieutenants, captains and privates working in unison and moving forward under the banner of progress. And all of these are held accountable to the public because the public has entered into a partnership agreement with the corporation through purchase of stock.

John G. Lonsdale

Welfare of Workers

Even in the gigantic mergers that have taken place within the last two years there remains more than ever the necessity for a leader, an aggressive personality, whose duty it is to see that basic principles are not forgotten, that the rights and privileges of the individual workers and the customers they serve are as well provided for as in the smaller business units.

It is gratifying to note that our corporations are giving more and more concern to the welfare of their workers. Numerous benefit organizations have been formed, opportunities offered for advancement of education and position, hospital service established and insurance and retirement pensions provided.

This general humanitarian movement in reality is the outgrowth of analysis, which has disclosed the need of improving the well-being of our individual workers, realizing at the same time that our institutions will benefit.

PREPAREDNESS IN BUSINESS

By R. S. HECHT,
American Bankers Association.

My observations for many years, both as an employee and as an executive, have convinced me that the reason some men and women go ahead and others do not is that some keep themselves constantly prepared to accept and fulfill larger duties and responsibilities as they offer, and some do not.

Grant, as we must, that there is a certain element of luck in the conditions under which opportunity for promotion comes to different men and women, we nevertheless must also see that it is each individual's own state of preparedness which determines his ability to seize opportunity if and when it comes, and having seized it, to succeed in meeting the greater demands which it inevitably places upon him.

Real advancement never means going ahead to easier tasks, but always to harder ones. Opportunity for advancement is worthless unless in accepting it you are able to carry with you the abilities and qualifications that prepare you to meet the heavier exactions that are an inherent part of opportunity.

It is far better to go into action in the field of enlarged responsibility prepared and qualified, rather than that you and the institution you work for shall be exposed to the hazard of your having to build up to new responsibilities after having assumed them.

The new spirit of all business seeks to prepare its people in advance through education for the higher duties it holds in store for them.

Bank Bandits Active

The greatest number of bandit raids on American banking ever recorded in the figures of the protective department of the American Bankers Association were reported during the six months ending last February. Bank members of the association reported for investigation 311 forgery cases, 107 holdup robberies, 16 burglaries, 2 sneak thefts and 8 mortgage swindles while non-member banks, numbering less than half the total enrolled in the association, suffered 86 holdup robberies and 9 burglaries, non-members being burglarized or held up once for every 89 banks, as compared with once for every 164 member banks. The association detective agents caused the arrest of 143 of the 236 bank criminals apprehended during the period covered.

The association's report on these conditions urges support of the movement to provide city police departments with radio-equipped cruising automobiles which have proved particularly effective in Cleveland and Detroit in the broadcasting of alarms and the closing in on criminals immediately after or even in the midst of the perpetration of crimes. Last year the average time elapsed between the receipt of radio calls by these cars and the 1325 arrests which followed was one minute and forty-two seconds, the report says.

Rapid Transit Story

By GENEVRA COOK

(Copyright.)

WHEN Lorna Willis left the tiny apartment in the row of brick houses in Brooklyn, she carried under her arm the newest copy of "Love Tales Magazine," with a gay girl in red and white paddling a graceful red canoe across the shining cover. Every morning for three months—since she had come to New York to work—Lorna had read "Love Tales" or "Cupid's Arrow" or "Throbbing Hearts" all the way from Borough hall to Times square, and back again at night.

This morning the picture on the bright new cover was of the girl in the first story—"Rapid Transit." Lorna slipped through the hurrying crowd into a corner of the subway car, and buried her wistful blue eyes in the magazine.

It was a wonderful story. Marilyn Maridale—the girl on the cover—lived in a world of freedom and gaiety and romance. She was staying for the summer in a charming rustic cabin on the shore of a sapphire lake set in deep woods. Every evening all of the boys at the summer colony—tall, bronzed, strong—gathered on her porch. They laughed and danced and sang together. Sometimes Marilyn would cuddle down in the front seat of a low, distinguished car, and be carried away to the big hotel to enjoy the dance.

Dimly through the echoes of the dreamy music Lorna heard the voice of the subway guard: "Twenty-third!" She turned a page.

. . . But amid all this loveliness and merriment, there was only one man whom Marilyn Maridale loved. And she had only met him yesterday! His name was Gordon. One of the boys told her that he was engaged to a girl back home. (Marilyn believed him, but Lorna suspected he had only made it up because he was very jealous.)

"Pennsylvania!" called the guard.

Now Marilyn was out for a moonlight ride on the lake with the man she loved—who belonged to somebody else.

"Times square!"

Gordon was bending over her, his eyes looking into hers.

"Sorry, but isn't this your stop?"

With a sickening thud, Lorna came back to New York and dashed out of the car.

All day Lorna watched the clock. At half past five she would find out if the other man had been telling Marilyn a lie—if Gordon really loved her after all—if he would hold her in his arms and tell her he loved her—and why the story was called "Rapid Transit."

At 5:35 Lorna pushed her way eagerly through the long intricacies of Times square station. She hurried down the stairs just in time to see an express sliding out. She made her way to the edge of the platform; while she waited she would read. Behind her the crowd milled impatiently about, and a strong young subway guard on his way home, his gray eyes resting shyly but hopefully upon her, waited for the train.

Lorna opened the magazine, and at once, oblivious to the restless people, the noise and rush of trains, she was breathing the cool night air of the pine-scented woods, was drifting with Gordon and Marilyn under a golden moon. Suddenly from shore came a weird, wild shriek. Marilyn jumped up in the canoe; it rocked violently, tipped to one side, and rolled over! Gordon came up, gathered himself for the dive.

"Get Marilyn!" whispered Lorna, intently. "Get her! Dive!" She leaned breathlessly forward. Some one in the crowd behind gave a push, careless but forceful. Lorna felt herself going . . . going . . . She drew a deep breath. She had not dived into cool water. She had sat down very suddenly and not very gracefully in the bottom of the subway, right in the middle of the tracks!

Suddenly some one was bending over her, had seized her in strong arms. She was flung bodily up on the platform, was aware of arms reaching down, saw her rescuer dragged up to safety, sprawling in his blue uniform on the platform beside her—and the express slid in usual fashion into the station.

At the quiet dinner which they had together she learned that his name was Gordon Bancroft—though of course it was only the first name that mattered!—and that he had come to New York because he was looking for "something wonderful and exciting," and had found work as a guard in the subway. He had watched her every morning come on his train. "Though you'd never look at me," he told her. "You were always reading a magazine!"

When, later, they came down the stairs into the subway together, there on the track was what was left of the tattered cover of "Love Tales Magazines." "There's all that's left of my story," she said, laughing up at him. "It was called 'Rapid Transit!'"

"You won't need to read that stuff any longer, will you?" he asked her softly.

Lorna looked up at him, smiling. "What are those initials on your cap?" she asked him.

"I. R. T. Why, that stands for Interborough Rapid Transit."

"Rapid Transit," murmured Lorna softly. And then she answered his question. "I won't need to read love stories any longer—no."

Johnson's Impeachment

President Johnson was impeached by the house of representatives, but was acquitted by the senate in the impeachment trial. The Constitution gives the house the sole power of impeachment and the senate the sole power to try impeachment cases. An impeachment is similar to an indictment, in that an official who has been impeached is not necessarily guilty, any more than is a person who has been indicted by a grand jury.

APPOINTMENT OF KENT SCHOOL TEACHERS FOR 1930-31

The Kent County Board of Education, through Louis C. Robinson, Superintendent of Schools, has announced the appointment of the teachers for the Kent schools for 1930-31.

According to the list made public today by Superintendent Robinson the Chestertown High School is still without a principal. W. J. Ctenger was named to the office by the board at a meeting some months ago. But since Professor Stenger was not one of the nominees of Superintendent Robinson the matter is still at rest.

Several resignations from the teaching ranks were received at the close of the last school year. Included in these were the resignation of Miss Hope W. Meeks, as teacher of the primary grades at the Betterton School, the resignation of Miss Gertrude B. Willson as teacher of the one-teacher school at Swan Creek and the resignation of Miss S. ### Water a Crop of the Forest

Forests are not only generous friends because of the raw material they furnish, says the American Tree association. They are useful in the conservation of water for domestic use, for irrigation, navigation and water power; they help to prevent floods and soil washing; they add greatly to the scenic beauty of our land; they furnish a home for many of our birds and wild animals; they offer a wonderful place for healthful recreation.

When Food Sours

Lots of folks who think they have "indigestion" have only an acid condition which could be corrected in five or ten minutes. An effective anti-acid like Phillips Milk of Magnesia soon restores digestion to normal.

Phillips does away with all that sourness and gas right after meals. It prevents the distress so apt to occur two hours after eating. What a pleasant preparation to take! And how good it is for the system! Unlike a burning dose of soda—which is but temporary relief at best—Phillips Milk of Magnesia neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

Next time a hearty meal, or too rich a diet has brought on the least discomfort, try—
