AGRICULTURAL NOTES

PUREBRED RAM BOOSTS LAMB PRICES

COUNTY AGENT McVEAN ISSUES STATEMENT

"It may be a long, long time before farmers will be able to buy good breeding ewes and suitable purebred rams as reasonably as will be possible this season," according to County Agent J. D. McVean "Right now seems to be the opportune time," he continues, "for every flock owner to check his old scrub ram out and replace him with a lowest, thick made purebred ram of one of the good breeds. Any old cull ewes whose productive days are over would form a suitable escort for the old "crowbait" on his last journey.

Talk about low lamb prices: The main reason for this is the large number of scrub rams being used. Sheep men who are using good purebred rams can produce lambs at a profit even at lower prices than prevail at present. Many choice early lambs have sold this spring at prices ranging from $10 to $12 per head. It is not only impossible to sell scrub lambs at anything like these prices but it is hard to get your buyer to take them at any price. The butchers simply don't want them. Scrub rams are costing Kent county sheepmen about $20,000 annuallq, as near as I can figure.

"My advice to any sheepman who needs a good ram would be to attend the Fourth Annual Eastern Shore Ram Sale to be held at Centerville on Tuesday, July 29th. If you don't happen to need a ram, come anyway and see what is going on. A show of all the rams in the sale will be held in the forenoon. Whether you buy or not, you will be welcome and see something interesting."

A GOOD PUREBRED RAM

Don't be without a good purebred ram. Be a good sheepman and keep a good ram. Get a good one even if you have to cut down your flock to make room for him.

A good purebred ram will sire lambs with more weight, he will produce lambs with more quality, he will beget lambs with more desirable conformation, he will give you fast- gaining lambs that go away early, he will sire improved ewe lambs for your flock, he will make your flock shear more wool of a better grade, and he will pay for himself annually.

A SCRUB RAM

For your own good, don't use a scrub ram. He is the most expensive in the long run.

He will be a constant disgrace because he is unsightly and ineffective, he has no pride of ancestry nor hope of posterity with conformation, quality and character, and he will continue as a manacing curse to the industry as long as he is permitted to perpetuate his kind.

To Sheepmen:

Lately different farmers have asked questions like this. Can I afford to buy a good purebred ram with lamb and wool prices as they are? Should I buy a purebred ram this year, or wait another year? How much more valuable will my lambs be if they are sired by a purebred ram? What will one cost in the ram sale My views on these and similar questions may be of help to some sheepmen who are undecided on a few of these points.

It is often said the first purebred ram you use will pay for himself through the increased wool production of his ewe lambs returned to the flock. The average wool clip in Maryland is about 5.5 lbs. of wool per sheep. It should and can be raised to 7 or 8 pounds per sheep by the use of better rams.

Any one who really needs a good ram will be ahead to get him now. My advice is to get in on them when they are not so high and start breeding up your ewe flock and improving the lambs you sell. When higher prices come back, you will own a well-bred, productive bunch of ewes capable of yielding profit.

This is likely to be "buyers" year. You can set your own price at the auction of purebred rams to be held at Centreville, July 29th.

Plan to attend the sale whether you buy or not.

J. D. McVean, County Agent.

According to Hulbert Houng, President, the annual meeting of the Maryland State Veterinary Association will be held at the University of Maryland, College Park, July 24 and 25. An interesting program has been worked out for the two-days' sessions.

CAT'S RIGHTS

In many a family where there is a pussy as a pet there will be rejoicing over a judicial determination of feline rights just made in Cleveland.

A woman who went into a grocery store to make some purchases stepped accidentally on a cat's tail, and the cat promptly bit the woman. It was a store cat and the woman sued the owners of the establishment for $10,000 damages, claiming negligence on their part in failing to control the cat's behavior.

The case went to a jury and it took the twelve good men and true only thirty-five minutes to decide that neither the cat nor its owners could be held liable for what had happened and that the plaintiff was not entitled of caveat emptor.—Providence Journal.

to a cent of damages. In short, a cat has a perfect right to bite or scratch anyone who steps on his tail. That decision establishes an important precedent. It attaches another rider to the modern principle that a pedestrian must always watch his step. If there is a misstep in a store, affecting thereby the tail of a cat, sleeping or otherwise, we ceem to have also a new interpretation of the principle
