CAN ANYONE TELL us what the Republican platform stands for in regard to the wet and dry issue? Hon. John Philip Hill, who is recognized as one of the wettest of the wet, says he is satisfied with the position taken by that party on this question. If Mr. Hill, with his uncompromising wet position is satisfied he must regard the platform wet. We must confess we do not know just what it stands for—it looks like a straddle to us. However we would like some definite information on it.

DEMOCRATS ARE RALLYING to the support of the local Democratic successful candidates in the recent primaries and it looks as though the Democrats will sweep the county. The soreness and disappointments of the defeated candidates and their friends in the recent primaries is fast disappearing and a splendid spirit is being manifested by them, and they are now at work for the whole ticket. Kent county has a registered Democratic majority of over 600 and they should roll up at least a 500 majority in November after allowing a liberal stay-at-home vote. As far as we can see there is no good reason for any Democrat not supporting the entire ticket from Governor Ritchie to the last name on the ballot. Our local ticket is composed of representative citizens well-known to the voters of this county and they can be relied upon to give a good and satisfactory administration of their office.

SURPLUS MILK PRICE INCREASED

SEPTEMBER PRICE FOR SURPLUS WILL BE ABOUT $2.00

Starting this month the price of surplus milk will be increased 20 per cent according to a statement made this week by a representative of the Inter-State Milk Producers Association, which will bring the price of surplus per cent. in June and 2.19 per cent. in July. The demand for milk during these two months dropped considermilk up to about $2 per 100 lbs.

The price of surplus milk was reduced last April to 4 times the price of New York score butter. The September price will be figured on a basis of 4 times the price of butter plus 20 per cent. The price for the past five months has been from $1.29 to $1.51 according to the butter price. The average butter price from July 28th to August 27th was 38.52 cents per lb. It is expected that this new surplus price will continue throughout the fall and winter months. The August average price was approximately 18 cents more than July but 24 cents less than August of last year.

The total milk received in Philadelphia during August, was 51,330,820 lbs. according to a report by U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, of this amount the Eastern Shore of Maryland supplied 6,453,000 lbs. or 12 1-2 per cent. of the total, Delaware supplied 8 per cent., New Jersey 6 per cent. and Pennsylvania supplied 69 per cent.

The total production dropped 3.39 able more than the production. Due to the drouth, Kent county production dropped far below the average production of the Philadelphia milk shed. This is thought to be due to the fact that the lower section of the county has suffered much more severely from the drouth than other sections.

New Basic To Be Established

A new basic for the coming year will be established during October, November and December. This will be established by figuring an average of last year's basic, this year's basic and the production this fall.

At the present time there is no indication of an increase in the price of basic milk.

The butter in storage September 1st was 26 million pounds below that on hand September 1st of last year and also below the 5 year average.

The bi-monthly meeting of the Interstate Milk Producers Association was held in Philadelphia on Thursday and Friday of this week. Mr. John Carvel Sutton represents Kent county as a director on the Board. The Eastern Shore has five of the twenty-four directors of the Association.

APPLE PIE TIME

Although the apple is not a native of this continent, we have developed so many varieties which are distinctively American, that we look upon the apple as our own. Europe now buys thousands of carloads of American apples every year.

The apple is one of the few edibles that is as good raw as when cooked, as good cooked as raw. Cooking does not spoil an apple, but converts it into something new and strange. Who ever heard of a baked orange? But a baked Rhode Island Greening, swimming in a rich syrup composed of its own juices and all the sugar it can carry, browned to a turn and enriched with a liberal baptism of thick fresh cream, is there anything that comes to the table quite as good as that?

Apple pie! Europe may claim the apple, but we have first claim on apple pie. No French chef ever learned how to make an apple pie. The English call them 'apple tarts' and leave out the cinnamon and most of the sugar and make the crust out of something more like an inner tube in texture than the flaky substance which melts in your mouth and which every good American cook knows how to mix and roll.

King George the Second, who was a sort of royal dumb-bell, is said to have marvelled, on first eating an apple dumpling, how the apple got inside the dumpling. He would have marvelled more if he could have had a genuine American baked apple dumpling, for the English idea of a dumpling is to wrap it up in a rag and boil it. Baked apple dumpling, with a "hard" sauce compiled of lots of granulated sugar and lots more butter, all beaten together with a liberal flavoring of nutmeg, may not be the food of the gods, but it comes pretty close to the nectar and ambrosia which Ganymede used to serve on Olympus.
