Joe Cook Due Here In Show "Rain Or Shine"

Famous As Funniest Man In America

Joe Cook, the famous "one-man show," termed by Percy Hammond, noted dramatic critic, "The funniest man in America," makes his motion picture debut in the Columbia film version of "Rain or Shine," the record-breaking stage success in which Joe Cook appeared for two years on Broadway, and which shows at the New Lyceum on Friday and Saturday, January 9 and 10.

Joe Cook is a new and decidedly distinctive acquisition to the cinema, and his own original type of humor will undoubtedly duplicate on the screen the success it has already attained on the stage.

Joe Cook has earned for himself the unique title of "the one-man show," based upon his great versatility. He not only can, but does do an entire show himself. He sings; plays various musical instruments, performs difficult acrobatic feats, dances, conjures, walks a wire and does trick sharp-shooting. All these stunts are performed by Joe Cook in "Rain or Shine."

Clever as these stunts are, it is the inexhausitible and rapid-fire flow of humorous conversation that is the high spot of the production. It may be that now, for the first time, patrons of the cinema will be able to hear Mr. Cook, personally and confidentially reveal his famous secret; "Why I cannot imitate four Hi-wyans."

In securing the screen rights to "Rain or Shine," Columbia Pictures scored one of the greatest "scoops" of the year. The stage play, with Joe Cook and his famous assistants, Tom Howard and Dave Chasen (who are also with him in the picture) ran for nearly two years at the George M. Cohan Theatre, New York City. It is a matter of record that the first thirty-three weeks brought in a revenue of $1,195,850, which, considering the size of the theatre, meant a sell-out at every performance.

The story of "Rain or Shine" is about circus life. Columbia Pictures secured a complete circus organization—animals, performers, equipment and all. Frank Capra, who made "Submarine," "Flirt" and "Ladies of Leisure" directed the stellar cast which includes such famous film names as Joan Peers, Louise Fazenda, William Collier, Jr., Alan Roscoe and Adolph Milar.

I'll Betcha

A newly appointed head of a department was dictating a letter to an up-to-date "steno" and he was a bit puzzled as to the exact wording, se he asked her, "Do you 'retire' a loan?"

The girl stopped chewing gum. "Naw," she said, "I sleep with Maw."
