"New Moon" Will Be Local Movie Feature Soon

Two Great Stars Appear In

screen of America's most outstanding figures in the operatic world, namely Lawrence Tibbett and Grace Moore.

11 and 12, movie patrons will be given an opportunity to enjoy the first joint appearance on the talking

When "New Moon," all-talking adaptation of the stage success, shows at the New Lyceum Theatre on Wednesday and Thursday, February

The unusual inclusion of two stellar names in a single production was explained at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer by the fact that when the screen rights of the Broadway hit were purchased, it was with the intention of making the production the most distinctive and most talked about picture of the 1930 season.

Consequently no efforts were spared in the selection of stars, supporting cast, director, settings, musicians, and accessory details which would measure up to the story which in its stage form had succeeded in running for fifteen months at the Imperial Theatre, New York.

With Tibbett and Miss Moore under contract there was no need to look elsewhere for stars whi could do justice to "Lover Come Back to Me," "One Kiss," "Wanting You" and the other Sigmund Romberg song hits. The Metropolitan reputation of the singers is a byword to all music lovers whereas their abilities in the acting field is by now equally well known as a result of their respective successes in "The Rogue Song" and "A Lady's Morals."

Supporting roles were assigned to such experienced players as Adolphe Menjou, who returns to the screen after his prolonged absence in Europe; Riland Young, the irresistible comedian of "Madam Satan"; Gus Shy, in the same role in which he appeared in the stage version, and Emily Fitzroy, the distinguished character actress.

Scotland Scores Again

The tailor discovered when examining his stock that he had six 30-shilling suits.

"I can't sell them at all," he confessed to his friend.

"Why not wrap them up and put an invoice in for five suits at 40 shillings and send them to MacNab?" advised the other sharp business man.

"What will happen then?" asked the tailor.

"MacNab will think that you've made a mistake and buy them at once," the friend replied.

The tailor called on his friend three days later, and his face was white with rage.

"You've ruined me," he cried. "I sent the six suits to MacNab with an invoce for five, and he returned five suits saying that he did not order them."—Exchange.

Worse Luck

Two friends were discussing the various events which had taken place in their lives since last they met—a year ago.

"I've not done anything much at my job," said one. "I took a job as groom, and I've not had a minute's peace since—on the go day and night, and ordered about."

"That's just how I've been treated," broke in the other.

"You!" said the first, surprised. "How can you be putting up with my sort of life? You never took on as a groom!"

"I did," said the other, gloomily. "I took on as a bridegroom!"

Elastic Clause

Clause 18, Section 8, of Article I of the Constitution is called the Elastic clause. It reads as follows: "The congress shall have the power . . . To make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the government of the United States, or in any department or officer thereof." This clause does not give any new power, but it does give congress a wide latitude in choosing means and passing laws for carrying out the powers granted elsewhere.

The Difference

Patron—That barber down the street has cut his prices down to 40 cents for a haircut.

Barber (after a withering silence)—Yeah? Well, a good barber cuts hair and a poor one cuts prices.

A Critical Juncture

"Biggins is a great friend of yours."

"He has been, heretofore."

"Don't you expect him to remain so?"

"Can't tell. I have just indorsed his note."

Shakespeare Home Seized

Researches in the calendar of Old Chancery court have revealed a document showing bailiffs were once in possession of Shakespeare's old home at Stratford-on-Avon, to receive judgment for debt. "They did breake open ye doores of ye studdy of said house and rashly seize upon and take divers books, boxes, deskes and moneys," says the document. But it was not Shakespeare's trouble. The house had passed into the hands of his daughter, and his son-in-law had contracted the debt. Shakespeare himself had played his last part a few years before the time of this document.—London Mail.

An Obstacle

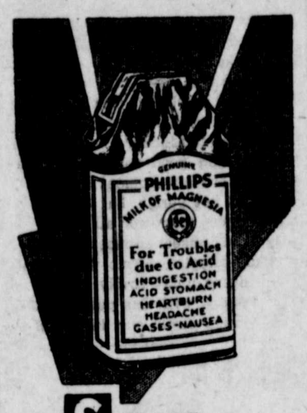

Judge—If you had a clear conscience why did you sneak out of the back door instead of going out the front?

Accused—There was a policeman in front, sir.

His Only Chance

Tommy—Pa, why was Adam created first?

Father—To give him a chance to say something.—London Answers.

SOUR STOMACH

JUST a tasteless dose of Phillips Milk of Magnesia in water. That is an alkali, effective, yet harmless. It has been the standard antacid for 50 years. One spoonful will neutralize at once many times its volume in acid. It is the right way, the quick, pleasant and efficient way to kill the excess acid. The stomach becomes sweet, the pain departs. You are happy again in five minutes.

But don't depend on crude methods, try the best way yet evolved in all the years of searching. That is Phillips Milk of Magnesia.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips Milk of Magnesia, the kind that the physicians prescribe.

"Milk of Magnesia" has been the U. S. Registered Trade Mark of The Charles H. Phillips Chemical Company and its predecessor Charles H. Phillips since 1875.

Tricky Criminals Keep Law Officers "on Edge"

Growing a beard, dyeing the hair, and staining the face and hands with a mixture of butternut oil, nutgall, and permanganate of potash, are old-time dodges that have often been very useful to the hunted man. Stained with the above mixture, a fair-skinned man becomes as swarthy as a Spaniard or Italian; it once made a burglar "on the run" so confident that he actually had the audacity to sell ice cream within a stone's throw of Scotland Yard. Perhaps the most recent dodge for criminals who are anxious to give a wide berth to the police is going on the sick list. Hospital authorities in London and the provinces are much perturbed by this new and deplorable form of trickery. At one London hospital the suspicions of the doctors were aroused by the arrival in the course of one week of several individuals who, according to their own story, were in terrible pain, but whose ailments the medical men were quite unable to diagnose. The surprising speed with which these mysterious "patients" recovered at the end of a few days convinced the doctors that there was "something up." Inquiries were made, and it was learned that at least two of them were badly "wanted" in connection with a motor car theft.—London Times.

Had to Produce Proof of Claimed Accident

The man with a black eye and badly scratched face, who was smashing up a new, good-looking motor car with a sledge-hammer, naturally attracted a crowd. He would hit the car, pause, take a deep breath, and hit it again. He aimed blows at the running-board, mudguards, radiator and windscreen.

"Your car?" asked a bystander.

"My car," said the man, as he smashed a headlight.

He surveyed the result and grunted with satisfaction. Then he handed the hammer to a garage man—who, it turned out, had lent it to him—got in the car, and drove off. As he disappeared the garage man explained what it had all been about.

"That fellow got mixed up in a fight last night," he said. "Got badly knocked about, so he stayed at a hotel instead of goin' home. Called up his wife and told her he'd been in an accident. So—the garage man shrugged his shoulders—"so he had to have an accident."

Preparing Them

"West Point cadets are forbidden to marry—"

"Till when?"

"Until they have finished their military education."

A Job Wanted

"Hear you're working. What are you doing?"

"Nothing."

"Any chance of getting a job at the same place?"

"Are the Americans courageous as a rule?" asked the foreign visitor.

"I should say so!" answered the patriotic citizen. "You should see the way the average American eats sardines and pie at a picnic."
