THE TRANSCRIPT

THE BILL TO abolish purse net and muck net fishing in the waters of this state was passed by the house Thurs. by vote of 83 for and 29 againt. This bill is probably the most interesting measure to the fishermen of this county of any other bill that will come before the legislature during this session. This measure is far reaching in it provisions as there are a number of families in this county who derive their living from purse net fishing. Like all other measures it has its friends and its opponents. What will happen to this bill in the Senate is problematic. This same bill, or one similar to it, has been introduced in the Maryland Legislature for the past number of sessions but has heretofore met defeat in the Senate. The same thing may happen again this time.

(COMMUNICATED)

Chestertown, Md.
March 5, 1931.

My dear Editor:

I have read with interest the letters in your paper dealing with the school situation. Let us face the facts. We are fixing up everything in a modern fashion except the thing which should be nearest our hearts: the facilities for educating our children. We are like the farmer who sold his butter and milk in town, while his children developed tuberculosis for want of nourishment.

It will take money, much money. There were those who wanted to spend a few thousand to try to make the roads passable, instead of fixing them right. There are those who want to do the same thing with our high schools.

Small high schools are undesirable. A big new high school is. Why? Here are a few of the reasons:

1. Better Administration and supervision. Administrators and Supervisors with years of successful training and experience can be found to take hold of a big well equipped school.

2. Classroom teachers can be secured to teach their specialty and concentrate on the perfection of its presentation to classes in a scientifically, professionally manner. (In small schools one teacher must handle many subjects whether adequately prepared in all of them or not.)

3. A big school, by reason of its large enrollment justifies well equipped departments such as: science labs; manual training; home economics; music; commercial; agriculture; physical education; assembly hall; cafeteria; library; and scientific supervision by an expert supervising principal.

A citizen of this community was heard to make the remark that fine big schools would put false ideas in the children's heads. Assuming that he meant the child would become accustomed to better things and want for them; I ask, what are schools for if not for this purpose?

Low ideals never elevate.

Sincerely,
JUST IGNORANT.

CENTENNIAL CELEBRATION

McCORMICK REAPER CENTENNIAL BEING CELEBRATED

AT JONES & SATTERFIELD

The centennial of the invention of the reaper by Cyrus Hall McCormick is being celebrated March 14 at Jones & Satterfields, dealers in McCormick-Deering farm equipment, Chestertown. A replica of the original reaper is on display, and open house is being kept all day. This celebration is in connection with a world-wide commemoration of the reaper invention that is now going on throughout the world. "Romance of the Reaper," a five-reel feature movie taken on the old McCormick farm in Virginia, will be shown free of charge to Chestertown people in Jones & Satterfields' show room at 10 o'clock Saturday, March 14.

The reaper ushered in the most important era in the advancement of mankind. McCormick's invention showed the farming world how to displace monotonous hand labor with machine power. Following in the train of the reaper came seeding machines, harrows, cultivators, and all the farm labor-saving equipment we have today.

Before 1931 nine out of ten people in the United States lived on farms. Now the ratio is less than three out of ten. Before 1831 the most grain a man could hope to cut in a day with a cradle, the most efficient harvesting equipment known, was about two acres. It then had to be raked, bound, hauled, and threshed. Today the harvester-thresher, the direct descendant of the McCormick reaper, does the whole job in one trip over the field at the rate of 35 to 60 acres a day two men doing with this machine in one day what would have required 140 to 200 men working by hand.

Agriculture was almost static until the reaper appeared, and the development of industry likewise was static. Little fundamental progress was made until men's minds were relieved from the monotony and the necessity of arduous farm toil. More things have happened, greater progress has been made, in the past 100 years than in all the previous 1831 years. And the courage of a young man who in 1831 clung tenaciously to his resolve to lighten the labor of harvest, ushered in this great century. Chestertown people are urged to visit Jones & Satterfields Saturday, March 14, and see the reaper with which young McCormick, then only 22 old, solved the problem that had baffled mankind since the beginning of history.

—A carload of oranges containing 750 bushels arrived in Chestertown this week. They were for the F. Thomas Chatham Produce Co., and as far as we know, is the first time a whole carload of oranges has ever been received here.

THE ONLY NATIONAL BANK IN KENT COUNTY

Service Never Gets to be an "Old Story" With Us

We have often been asked whether banking, with its fixed rules, regular routine, and sameness of detail every day, does not become monotonous to us, and therefore, make it hard for us to serve with enthusiasm. Our answer to this is, that the real test of a bank director, officer or of a bank employee lies in his ability to keep a fresh "opening day" attitude toward his work.

Where there is so much human interest, as in banking, we do not see how there can be any lack of interest. So far as the officers of this bank are concerned, if we ever find that we have reached a point where we have lost interest in meeting and serving the home folks and old and new acquaintances who come in every day, we shall know that we are collectively in need of a vacation, a doctor—or both.

We are sincere in saying that we like banking. We like being called upon for service. It is not monotonous to us. It is not a "bother" to talk over with you at any time any matters that you may wish to talk over with us. If you came in yesterday, come in again tomorrow. We are always glad to see you. We enjoy the privilege of serving you—for it is a privilege—and we hope that we may continue to do it—just a little better each day and each month.

Why Doctors recommend Milk of Magnesia for invalids

Confined to the house for long periods, deprived of the necessary exercise, invalids are very likely to become constipated unless extra precautions are taken. Realizing this, doctors stress the importance of a mild, effective laxative that will keep the bowels functioning normally without weakening the system of the patient. Ask your doctor about Rexall Milk of Magnesia. He knows that this pleasant antacid and laxative meets the highest standards of purity and strength. Sold only at Rexall Drug Stores.
