BY A WOMAN

QUEEN ISABELLE OF SPAIN

There is no woman to whom our country owes more gratitude than to this queen.

She was born in 1491 the daughter of John II of Castile. When hardly more than a child she married Ferdinand of Aragon and Castile were united, ferdinand and Isabella took the royal titles of Spain and by this union the foundation of Spain's future greatness was laid.

Isabella was beautiful in person, of pleasing manners and kindly heart, though of inflexible will, proud ambitious and exceedingly punctilious. She was always present in meetings of the councel and insisted on the use of her name with that of Ferdinand in all public documents.

Spain unloubtedly owned to Isabella's clear intellect, resolute energy and unselfish patriolism much of its former greatness. The moral influence of the queen's personal character over the Castilian court was very great: from the debasement and degradation of proceeding reigns she raised it to being "the nursery of virtue and of generous ambition.

She did much for letters in Spain by foundation the Palace School, but the very fervor of her piety led her more than once into errors of state policy, one of which was the expelling the Jews who were largely responsible for the porsperity of the country. When they were driven out and took refuge in Holland, Spain declined and Holland prospered! Perhaps the chief title to famie that Isabella had was aiding Columbus in fitting out ships for him in his voyage of discovery.

When he, a poor unknown adventurer, appeared at the court asking help to carry out his plan of sailing west, many laughed at him and said that it was ridiculous to think of the world as being round, but there was one who listened intently and that listener was Isabella, and after he had left the court she sent for him to come to her again and when he had entered her presence, she said. "I will assume the undertaking for my own crown of Castile and am ready to pawn my jewels to defray the expenses of it if the funds in the treasury are not sufficient "Through her influence Ferdmand was prevailed upon to assist Columbus and thus the discovery of America, one of Man's greatest achievement was made largely possible by the help of a woman.

She died in 1504 not however, before she saw America with all its resources opened to her country for settlement.

HEALTH

The Doctors say that one of the most prevalent causes of disease is constipation, and they advise their patients to drink a great deal of water, seven or eight glasses a day should be taken so they say. A liberal quantity of green vegetables and carrots, parsnips are advised. It is well to avoid much starchy foods and sweets. Exercise and long walks are also good.

STYLES

Fitted Flares

They have a rather subtle way in Paris of making an afternoon gown which is aparently flaring of skirt but actually closely fitted and revealing. They do it in satin. True enough, a loosely pleated fold on each hip flares like anything, but between these folds the frock is tight as anything to a point about at the knee.

Crinoline Next?

It seems that the flaring hemline will not only flare a bit more of formal and semiformal gowns than ever but must keep that flare invariably flaring. What to do? What to do? Why, put some buckram stiffening where the flare is desired. Then sit back laughing at the girl of the 1890s who did the same thing when her hemline called for flares.

Square chiffon scarfs are particularly attractive for semi-dress and evening wear. They are made in geometric and floral patterns in soft and dainty colors. Chanel has inspired several of these chiffon scarfs. A delightful creation from her studio is one of livid green tulle bordered with a band of silver paillettes. A scarf to be worn with a toque to match is of ruby chiffon. It is draped around the shoulders like a cape.

Floating Panels

In certain of the afternoon gowns, velvet, Paris is using the uneven hemline, but getting around the fact by doing it with floating panels. The panels, stitched down the skirt, begin to float at the skirt hemline and contnue floating—very gracefully, too—for sx or eght nches. Four panels, two on the side, one in back, and one in front.

Home-Made Apple Butter Raises Fund for Church

PITTSBURGH (A. P.)

Women of the Carnegie Episcopal Church were discussing fund-raising to obtain moneyl for completing a new $60,000 church.

The answer was apple butter.

The women went about their business on a large scale. Large kettles were obtained and placed in the yard of one of the members, and many women gathered to assist in the operation.

After much stirring, tasting and fire building the net result was gallons of apple butter, with a "home-made" label—and it found a ready sale.
