THE TRANSCRIPT

THOSE WHO DID not register last Monday have an opportunity to register Monday next, July 6, 1931. If you fail to register next Monday you cannot vote in the town election July 20. The new charter for Chestertown goes into effect with the Election July 20, and if you want to exercise the privilege of saying who shall constitute the governing power of Chestertown for the next two years, you must register on Monday next as that is the last day the registrars will sit to register the voters of Chestertown. If the new charter is going to be of any advantage to the business interest of Chestertown, it can only be so by electing good business men as Mayor and City Councilmen to administer the affairs of the town. Therefore if you are interested in the advancement of Chestertown get registered and vote for the men you think best qualified to govern the town's affairs. The first thing for you to do in that direction is to get registered and then select the candidates you wish to see elected.

AGRICULTURAL NOTES

BY COUNTY AGENT McVEAN

The season for rigid culling of poultry flocks is here. Good feeding is essential to production by the birds retained. Professor Monroe estimates three (3) pounds of mash and three (3) pounds scratch feed is required per hen per month. Thus the cost of feed per hen per month can be readily determined. If the feed costs fifteen (15) cents per month and the hen lays fifteen (15) eggs at twenty (20) cents per dozen you have ten (10) cents balance for your work. This from 50 per cent. egg production. If the production is at 60 per cent. the balance jumps 50 per cent. per hen. The higher the percentage of production the greater the balance and profit.

Monroe advocates the use of moist laying mash once each day—keep dry laying mash before them constantly and feed (at the rate of) eight (8) pounds scratch feed for 100 hens. The result should be high production and a profit.

RAM PRICES REASONABLE

The sheep business is as good as any phase of farming. Now when prices are low is the time to improve the quality of the breeding flock. Certainly every breeder should secure a good quality registered ram. In the Sale at Centerville on July 28th, good Hampshire and Shropshire rams will be available at every reasonable prices. Such rams will prove very profitable investments—especially for those who desire to produce early lambs of the quality that finds a ready market. About 35 rams will be sold.

A show of the ram will precede the sale. The usual good attendance is expected. It is hoped Kent sheepmen will purchase at least ten (10) of these rams. In fact, all of them could well be used in Kent County.
