Charles Harris, of Chestertown, a student at Washington College, was declared winner among the men in the radio audition held at Easton last Sunday. Miss Margaret Lee Nelson, of Crisfield, won in the ladies division and with Mr. Harris, will compete in Baltimore for state honors.

Mr. Vernon Corey and Mr. Raymond Moffett, of Chestertown, took part in the contest. Mr. Corey was declared winner last year.

The committee from Kent county, composed of Mrs. Frank Jarrell, chairman, Mrs. D. B. Ford, Mrs. Albert Mitchell and Mrs. Mary Covey Griffith. This committee has been assisting the contestants in preparing for the audition.

VOTERS MUST MAKE DECLARATION IN ORDER TO VOTE

No doubt a number of Kent county voters, whose names appear on the registration books of the county, who made affidavit to their presence in the state for more than a year, but failed to make their declaration of intent, thinking it not neccesary, will be disfranchised and ineligable to vote in next year's primary and general election, unless they make their declaration before November 3, 1931.

This startling upset in registration laws is the result of a ruling just made by Attorney General W. Preston Lane, Jr., and necessitates prompt action on the part of all voters who have registered after coming into the state of Maryland without making a declaration of their intention to continue their residence here.

It is estimated that approximately 50,000 Marylanders now on the registration books will be effected by this new interpretation of the law and all must make their declaration prior to November 8, or they will be automatically disfranchised and unable to participate in either the primary or general election in 1932.

Two years ago the Legislature repealed the "declaration of intent" law and substituted the method of making affadavit. Through some flaw in the law, it has been set aside, and the old law was automatically becomes effective.

In an opinion handed down last night, Attorney General William Preston Lane, Jr., declared that a Court of Appeals ruling invalidiated the right of persons to remain on the registration books who had sworn by affidavit to their presence in the State for more than a year.

The opinion was forwarded to Franklin Upshur, attorney for the Worcester county Elections Supervisors, who raised the question.

Attorney General Lane pointed out that the 1929 session of the General Assembly had attempted to repeal the law by which a non-resident who moved into Maryland was required to declare his or her intention to become a legal voter at least a year before the election.

The substituted legislation for voters to swear they had been in the State for a year or more was declared unconstitutional by the Appellate Court and the old declaration of intentions act still remains in existence.

Must Appear Again

The Attorney General said:

"It is therefore, clear, under the law as it now stands, that no person who has moved into Maryland from another State is now entitled to registration unless he or she has complied with the above requirements of the law."

Persons who were able to get on the books under the act which was declared unconstitutional later must appear before a clerk of the court in the city or in the respective counties before November 3 to declare their intentions. The date is exactly one year from the Presidential, Senatorial and Congressional elections in Maryland.

The same persons, however, will be permitted to participate in the primary elections next May.

THE ONLY NATIONAL BANK IN KENT COUNTY

"The Bank Where You Feel At Home"

Important Facts Every Checking Depositor Should Know

We want you association with this bank to be on the basis of Mutual Friendship and understanding. Therefore, the less mystery there is about our banking operations and the more knowledge you have of the ways in which we are trying to serve you, the better you can cooperate to your advantage.. The facts are submitted to you with this purpose in view. Please read them carefully.

FIRST, A bank is a business which must be conducted on business principles because the bank does not deal directly in goods over the counter, people often lose sight of the fact that banking is, nevertheless, fundamentally a business of buying and selling, which must be conducted like any sound business.—For profit as well as for service.

SECOND, A fair profit is essential to both good management and good service the commodities the bank deals in are money, credit, and service. It accepts and safeguards deposits, provides valuable facilities, and renders a great variety of helpful services. In return, it asks the temporary privilege of loaning part of these deposits in safe ways that will return enough money for the bank to pay for its service, with a little added profit besides.

THIRD, The bank that makes money is the safest place to deposit money, a well-managed bank, like a properly conducted business, should make money. If it does not make money it will not be a strong bank, and if it is not a strong bank it cannot be a safe place for a depositor's money. This fact should not be overlooked.

FOURTH, Good checking balances help to make a bank strong, every checking depositor should try at all times a keep a balance in his checking account large enough so that after all current checks are paid there will still be left on deposit, a sum that the bank can use profitably for the expense of rendering service. Intelligent co-operation of this character offers the best possible proof of individual ability and good management.

FIFTH, How the bank and its checking depositors may co-operate to mutual advantage, —service, in a bank, travels in a circle it is not something that passes from the bank to its depositors, never to return. The circuit must be completed. The depositor receives service and gives his co-operation in return. The ideal condition exists where both understand each other and work together closely for mutual benefit.

SIXTH, Every depositor, therefore, who maintains a fair checking balance in his account, is helping himself and at the same time making it easier for the bank to give him its best service at all times.
