Texas Woman Possesses Unusual Bible Edition

Wheeler, Texas.—An edition of the Bible 333 years old, and believed to have never been recorded, has been found here, Mrs. E. A. Holt, who owns the volume, claimed recently.

The volume measures 9 inches by 6 inches, and is 3½ inches thick. It is bound in heavy brown leather which is frayed with age.

Mrs. Holt said her father purchased the volume in 1830 for $50. Notations in the book date back as far as 1738.

Restless CHILDREN

CHILDREN will fret, often for no apparent reason. But there's always Castoria! As harmless as the recipe on the wrapper; mild and bland as it tastes. But its gentle action soothes a youngster more surely than a more powerful medicine.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given the tiniest infant — as often as there is need. In cases of colic, diarrhea or similar disturbance, it is invaluable. A coated tongue calls for just a few drops to ward off constipation; so does any suggestion of bad breath. Whenever children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset—this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed.

Plimsoll Deserving of Title "Seamen's Friend"

By agreement among several of the more important maritime nations of the world, the Plimsoll line, marking the safe loading point for vessels, has come almost into universal use. It has been the means of saving the lives of thousands of seamen. Before Samuel Plimsoll made his stand for humanity, seamen were at the mercy of scoundrelly owners who thought only in terms of insurance. No thought of the men who would go down with their ships stayed their hands.

Then came Samuel Plimsoll, "The Seamen's Friend." He had been prosperous; he had known disaster. From a position of affluence he had come to common lodging houses. In them he met seamen and heard their stories. He was roused to a great anger, and there and then took an oath that he would never rest until he had revealed the villainy of the "ship-knackers."

He knew that before he could achieve anything he had to get into parliament. That meant money. Out of the pit of poverty he climbed. He was elected to parliament and devoted his energies to the measure he had suggested for saving the lives of the seamen. In the face of violent opposition he prevailed and the measure became a law requiring a mark on the hull indicating the safety loading line.

Word "Camera" Derived From Renaissance Toy

The primitive Aryan root "kam" meant "to bend," and the Greek "camera," derived from it, was used to denote anything with an arched cover or roof. Hence came the Latin "camera," meaning "a room," and ultimately, through French, the English "chamber." A common toy of the rich in Renaissance times was a dark room letting in light only through a small lens, which threw an inverted image of the scene outside on the wall opposite it. This was called a "camera obscura" or "dark room." The problem for the inventors of photography was to make permanent the image in the "camera obscura"; hence the instrument with which they ultimately accomplished it was called a "camera."—Exchange.

Scapegoats

No one likes to be a scapegoat. It is not natural or normal for anyone to carry the burden of blame that should be borne and faced by those who deserve it.

I am not sure it is not ethically wrong for a person to suffer punishment that some one else ought to suffer. At least, it isn't logical. The guilty one, apparently, goes scot-free, and without the very definite discipline of punishment, he is more than likely to do wrong again.

Sometimes we cannot avoid being a scapegoat. There are those who be in a superior position to us, and who, to save their own skin, shift the blame for some mistake on to us. That is a cowardly business. It is a mean trick to foist a failure on to some one who may not be in a position to hit back.—Exchange.

Rise of Workhouse Boy

When the visitor in Wales has seen its mines, mountains and music, he goes to Denbigh, 26 miles from Chester, to see at St. Asaph's workhouse, the place where nearly a century ago a poverty child called John Rowlands first saw the light of day. To be born in a gloomy workhouse and reared therein, as a child, unloved and unknown, was not much promise for a boy, but in later life he changed his name to Henry M. Stanley and was the man who found David Livingstone in dark Africa—in its day the greatest feat of the age. To become one of the world's greatest travelers and explorers was his destiny and Denbigh is worth a visit for his sake and also for its own.

Guests Brought Coffins

A custom of the Middle ages was referred to at a party to inmates of Norwich (England) Great hospital, a hostel for aged men and women. When the inmates were admitted years ago, each had to bring a coffin. It was found, however, that the coffin was used as a cupboard in the cubicles, and when some of the old people died the coffin was worn out. Nowadays, instead of a coffin, each man and woman takes in £1 to provide a shroud.

Garfield Monument

The Garfield monument occupies the highest spot in Lake View cemetery, Cleveland. It cost $225,000, was begun in 1885 and dedicated in 1890. The monument is 180 feet high, the tower 50 feet in diameter. There are five panels on the outside depicting scenes from Garfield's life. The stained glass is an allegorical presentation of the funeral of Garfield. A second casket contains the body of Mrs. Garfield, the President's wife, who died in 1918.

School Is 1,125 Years Old

The "Gymnasium Carolinum," or high school at Osnabruck, which was founded by Charlemagne, has celebrated its one thousand one hundred and twenty-fifth anniversary. It was given the status of a university in 1630 by imperial and papal decree, but when the Swedes took Osnabruck three years later they drove out the Jesuits, who had charge of the institution, and it again became a high school.

New Process Makes Leather in One Week

Stockholm, Sweden.—The problem of producing high-grade leather from raw hides in a week has been solved through a Swedish invention, the so-called Wrange-Friberg method. So far 10,000 raw hides, weighing 180 tons, have been successfully treated.

The vital part of the process is performed with a strong vacuum pump which makes possible the tanning of the hides in a nearly complete vacuum and in only seven days.

Burning Potatoes Gave Them Away

By CORONA REMINGTON

(© by McClure Newspaper Syndicate.) (WNU Service.)

AT THE sound of footsteps in the front yard, Mrs. Martin looked out of the window just in time to see the top of a straw hat disappearing to the porch below.

"Great land, Madge, it's that collector again as sure as I'm alive," she whispered to her daughter.

Madge put a warning finger to her fresh young lips and tiptoed over to her mother. "Keep real quiet and he'll think we're out," she said.

Tense and silent they waited for the peal of the doorbell. It came at first timid, then loud and strong, then long and persistent.

After a while the doorbell was silent but they were not rewarded by a glimpse of a straw hat retreating gateward and terror seized them when the rhythmic squeak of the porch swing below told them that their visitor had settled himself comfortably for the afternoon.

"We'll stay right here till he leaves, if it's midnight," said Madge defiantly, as she noiselessly seated herself on the bed and began basting a hem.

"But I've got so much machine work to do," complained Mrs. Martin.

"Can't do it now. Here, you can unpick this sleeve. It doesn't set." She tossed the garment toward her mother and they worked silently for a while.

"Ninety dollars is too much for the old machine anyway," said Madge at last. "If I'd been here I never would have let you sign for it. I could have bought you a good one for forty-five.

"Maybe so, Madge, but I wouldn't have anybody know we were trying to get out of paying the balance for anything. Folks would think we were crooked. Besides, I paid $75 on it and I don't aim to lose it." She passed a worried hand over her forehead.

An hour or more passed thus in silence. Madge was busy and contented, her mother hungry, but silent. Suddenly the girl dropped her sewing and exclaimed in a tense whisper:

"Mother, what do I smell?"

"Land, it's the potatoes I put on to boil," said Mrs. Martin, starting toward the door. But Madge restrained her.

"Here, I'll slip down." She quickly unbuttoned the strap of her shoes and, slipping out of them, hurried noiselessly downstairs.

A suffocating odor greeted her and as she approached the kitchen the smoke was almost alarming. Mrs. Martin, glad of the chance hurried down behind her daughter. What had once been potatoes was now only a few bits of char giving forth smoke like a soft coal engine.

"The beans are burnt up, too," said her mother, grabbing another odoriferous kettle from the stove. We'll never get these pans cleaned as long as we live."

"Sh-h-h-h," warned Madge moving toward the sink with her pan.

Suddenly they were alarmed by the sound of scurrying feet in the hall and stood transfixed at the sight of a terrified young man. Upon seeing the two women, he stopped short.

"Oh-ah-I-er-um," he said lamely. "I-er-thought the house was on fire and believing no one was at home I took the liberty of coming in."

Madge dropped the potatoes and sat down on her feet.

"I-oh-I," she stammered.

Ignoring Mrs. Martin the young man went over to Madge and took her limp hands in his.

"You knew all along I was out on the porch. Why wouldn't you receive me? When a man comes over two hundred miles to see a girl, it isn't a very nice welcome to leave him waiting outside for nearly two hours. If you have anything to say, Madge, say it now. I think you owe me an explanation. What were you afraid of and why were you tiptoeing around with your shoes off?"

Madge blushed. She had hoped he hadn't seen her feet.

"Look at me," he commanded severely. "Why did you do it?"

Suddenly her face relaxed and she was a pathetic shy little girl struggling with a painful confession. "I—I didn't know it was you, Jimmy. Honest. I thought it was that hateful old Willingham man. He's been coming here every day and I can't stand him, so I told Mother I simply wouldn't see him again. I—I hate him!" She was on the verge of tears.

Jimmy's arm slipped protectingly about her. "Next time he comes hanging around here tell him you're engaged to Jim Hastings," he said.

"All right, I will," she answered demurely, "and now I want you to meet my mother. This is Jimmy Hastings, mother. You know I told you about meeting him when I visited Elizabeth in the spring."

Vestal Worship

The origin of the worship of Vesta is very simple. In prehistoric times, when fire could be obtained only from the friction of two sticks of dry wood, or from sparks of flint, every village kept a public fire burning day and night, in a central hut, at the disposition of each family. The care of watching the precious element was intrusted to young girls, because girls, as a rule, did not follow their parents and brothers to the far-away pasture grounds, and did not share with them the fatigues of hunting or fishing expeditions. In due course, this simple practice became a kind of sacred institution, especially at Alba Longa, the mother country of Rome.

Monument to Taine Being Erected in Paris

Paris, France.—A monument is being erected in front of the Invalides to the memory of Henri Taine, whose real name was Hippolyte Adolphe Taine. The site of the memorial was chosen because Taine was given the name of Henri through the whim of the editor of the Revue des Deux Mondes, who also styled him a French critic. He was more truly a historian and philosopher, who enjoyed a considerable vogue in the latter part of the Nineteenth century.
