The Curbstone Diplomat

By William S. Collins

It is hard to understand why, there is so much opposition, to a favorable comparison of Hoover and George Washington. When one thinks of George Washington and his half starved and half-frozen army at Valley Forge, they can understand what Hoover's great army of unemployed will have to endure this winter. Some of the financial advisors tell us that the present times are just about as critical for our country as when General Washington's army was camped at Valley Forge.

The comparison could go still further. After the Hoover tea-party, a couple of years ago, at which the De-Priests played such an important part, they could compare Hoover with Abraham Lincoln.

We have been offered the bright suggestion. "Why not build a high school, a building that would be used five days a week, nine months in a year by over three hundred people, instead of an armory, which is used by a couple of dozen soldiers one day a week." Now we wait, wait in vain for someone to make another non-sensical suggestion like this; "Why build a new post-office, when we have one that is located fairly well, plenty of light and room. This money could be used for an addition to the high school."

Yes the high school is overcrowded and becomes more so every year. It is only the efficient efforts of the capable faculty that keeps the school in good scholastic standing. Only last week the seemingly impossible was accomplished, when the schedule was so arranged, that seventeen that had been denied the commercial course because of overcrowded conditions, were able to take it, due to this plan made by the faculty.

To have a larger high School building it would take money. Where is the money coming from? The county now is hard up for funds. Farming, the industry that is the back-bone of the county is dead. Many farms in Kent County did not pay expenses this year. Two months ago a good farm was sold for less than a home in Chestertown, which was sold at about the same time. Increase taxes would cause a hardship but the necessity of a larger building is growing.

Next year a $100,000 bond issue will be voted on to enlarge the present high school building. Should this bond issue pass the increase in taxation would be very small per person. Whether this issue will pass or not is doubtful. Against this plan will be the fact that times are hard and some will think this is no time to be spending money in improvements. Also there are many that hope to see the small high schools opened so as to have one in the home town. Opposition is also to be expected from people that have no children and those that have children attending other high schools. Many are against bond issues on general principles.

For this plan we will find patrons of this high school and other citizens, who realize the necessity of a larger building. Some patrons of other high schools realize that they have had improvements and that Chestertown needs them.

There is one fact that has been proven and that is, it is cheaper to run one or two larger high schools than several small ones.

A drive for donations, similar to the one put on by Washington College, might remedy the situation in case the bond issue did fail. There are many graduates and many parents that have children attending the school, that could dig down and make generous contributions.

Harry Russell copied a story in his column this week about which he says: "Here is a major argument for prohibition. A true exhibition of the wrath of God."

In conclusion he says: "Here I repeat is a story for Bill Collins in his one-man war against the church and prohibition."

One-man war against the church and prohibition, hey? Well I just thought I was helping Harry and Will Usilton, XIV, (as "chirps" calls him) out. I believe Will Usilton is still swimming but it looks like Harry has rubbed down and put on the white ribbon. When did this happen?

Just because a little attention was called to lack of religious training our bootleggers were receiving, that is no sign that I am at war with the church.

Mr. Blades you have a full house up at the high school, haven't you? "Yea, a full house and a pair of jacks", replied that gentlemen. Wonder where he has been all my life?

Mr. Will Wheatley says, "The Curbstone-Diplomat is a burlesque writer." He also made another statement which leads me to believe he is going to throw his white ribbon away.

CHURCH HILL TAKES SECOND GAME OF SERIES 9 TO 2. LOLLER ONLY ALLOWS FOUR HITS

Church Hill found Minter, Kennedyville pitcher easy and rolled up an early lead, which they maintained during the seven inning contest last Saturday afternoon. It was the second game of the series being played between Church Hill, winner of the first half of the Chesapeake Bay League season, and Kennedyville winner of the second half. Each have now won a game apiece, in the series, Kennedyville having beat Church Hill last Saturday, at Church Hill. The third and final game will be played this Saturday afternoon at Washington Field, Chestertown.

Church Hill scored four runs in the second inning, one in the third, two in the fifth and two in sixth. Minter who was pitching for Kennedyville was relieved in the sixth inning by Miller. Brown and R. Walls of Church Hill hit homers.

DAYLIGHT SAVING ENDED

Wihin a few days all the clocks in the United States will again record light saving is ended for another year. If Dr. Marvin, chief of the U. S. Weather Bureau, has has way there will be no repetition of time tinkering which has prevailed in some States and municipalities ever since the war. Dr. Marvin says: "Daylight saving is a nuisance and ought to be abolished. There s no excuse for trying to fool ourselves by tinkering with the clock. It only causes confusion and is a handicap to the Weather Bureau because it interferes with taking accurate meterological observations in different parts of the country. These observations must be closely timed; and the variations of time, because of daylight saving schedules, makes this extremely difficult."

Dr. Marvin's views as to undesirability of varying standards of time are shared by most travelers, who, even within the confines of one State, are bothered, delayed and greatly put out by the variations in time recorus. The State of New York, for instance, failed to adopt daylight saving for the whole Commonwealth, but many of the cities decreed that during the summer months the public and private timepieces should be set back one hour—taught to lie, as it were. But as the clocks were not uniform throughout the State much confusion resulted. Railroads as a rule continued to operate their trains on "standard time," but their time tables in many instances gave the time of departure and arrival of trains, when local only, according to the daylight saving plan. On the other hand, those trains which crossed State lines always run on standard time.

The Federal Government, as a war measure, adopted the plan of adding an hour of daylight to the workers' day. It was thought that the scheme would enable workers to till their gardens and thus help out the food supply by alowing them to leave their work an hour earlier. But it did not require many hours thus saved to discover that the plan was not popular, especially among the farmers, who save daylight without the aid of legislative enactments.

Daylight saving as a national institution was abolished ten years ago. Washington has been running on standard time ever since and is doing nicely without returning to time tinkering.
