BY A WOMAN

MARIE BASHKIRSEFF

I am writing today of an unusually interesting and individual literary character of the nineteenth century. Marie Bashkirtseff. She was born in Russia in the year 1860 of wealthy parents with noble descent.

Proud of their daughter, who was not only beautiful, but possessed of an unusual voice and a talented bright mind they gave her every advantage. She lived in Rome for a while where she had her voice cultivated. Her masters were delighted with its tone and sweetness, but alas! she caught a cold which left her throat very much affected and she had to give up her desire to be a singer. Possessed with a talent for drawing she went to Paris and began to study Art under that great painter, Bastien Le Page and others of note.

In spite of ill health, she painted several pictures of real merit. Her health continued to fail and in spite of all that was done for her, she died of tuberculosis in Paris at the early age of twenty four.

But of all her accomplishments the work which made her famous was her diary. This was begun when she was thirteen years and was faithfully continued through her life. Knowing that her life was ebbing away and feeling with her keen vision that it was a wonderful piece of literature she asked that it might be published after her death.

It was intended to be to use her own words, "the transcript of a woman's life—" her thoughts and hopes, her deceptions, weakness, good qualities, sorrows and joys.

Her request was carried out after she passed away and was published, under the title, "The Journal of Marie Bashkirtseff," and was translated into English by Mathild Blind, who added an introduction. Gladstone and other reviewers thought it was unparelled in literature, interesting and beautifully written. There is hardly a library in the country that has no copy of this journal, and one finds in reading the two volumes of the young girls life that there is a touch which makes all women kin.

"Did you ever see more beautiful weather" asked one who was basking in the sunshine, yesterday. "Yes, but I do not like it," said a friend, "Such unseasonable weather is apt to bring sickness. Watch and see if it is not so." But it does not seem so yet awhile. For after all sickness is uncurred very often by foolish acts of those who get sick. Imprudence is the cause of more than half of the sickness. Why do women live longer than men? I believe it is because women take better care of their health. If any thing is the matter with men, they are apt to let it run on until they have to go to bed, and then the doctor is called when it is too late.

In The Housekeeper's Little Handy Book

When grease drops on the floor, throw ice water on it immediately to harden the grease so it will not soak into the floor.

Add a little salt to the dish water when washing fishy dishes and utensils. This removes the odor.

Good pastry greases its own tins, making greasing unnecessary.

To make a shell or tart, bake paste on the outside of the inverted tin, and punch with a fork, a sufficient number of times to let the steam out.

When browning meringue, put it in a very slow oven.

Glass and stone jars are best for storing foods in the refrigerator.

It too many pieces of cold food are put into the kettle of hot fat at one time, the temperature will be lowered, so much that they will absorb the fat, and even fall to pieces.

Do not put salmon to boil in cold water. Always have the water hot, because it retains the color of the fish.

LA MODE

New Woolens Are Versatile

Modern ingenuity in loom construction and weaving has done much to change the status of woolens in the past few years. While there are many staple woolens which will go on indefinitely, in and out of fashion, it is the new weaves, the drop-stitch meshes, the ribbed weaves, the angora woolens with ostrich flecking, the open weave tweeds that are giving woolens their fashion prestige today.

The most recent products of the wool looms indicate a return to multi-colored tweeds. Tweeds of strong color combination, and gray and white and brown and white combinations introducing a bright accent are new. A famous monotone shade in new tweeds and some homespun fabrics is "string" color, which is a very light beige. Tweeds which resemble rag rugs in weave and coloring, tweeds which show the dim outlines of a plaid, and tweeds of diagonal stripes are ready now for new travel coats.

Little Bows

Lingerie in London is not only ample of cut but more feminine than ever. It has, to begin with, yards of lace trimming placed wherever lace is possible—which is nearly everywhere. And in addition to the lace it has little bows of ribbon rougishly poised at practically every spot where bows are unnecessary.

Still another note on the future: although a certain Empress has been banished by common consent, there is now much talk of reviving Martha Washington styles for Spring. Mado has already introduced some hats reminiscent of this period and a number of houses here are toying with the idea. Don't say we didn't tell you.

As if by magic, this well-known magazine carries boys to distant parts of the world, introduces them to strange people, lets them experience queer customs and reveal in the adventures of foreign lands.

In a single issue, a boy will battle the frozen Northland with sled and dog team, cross Indian-haunted plains in a prairie schooner, zoom over war-torn lands in an army plane or on dangerous routes with a U. S. mail pilot, hunt wild animals in Africa atop the swaying back of an elephant, go cruising in a battleship, fight Arab raiders with the Foreign Legion and participate in many other thrilling experiences that come to readers of THE AMERICAN BOY—YOUTH'S COMPANION.

It is such experiences as these that sharpen a boy's wits, kindle his imagination, strengthen his character, develop his understanding of the world in which he lives and of the people that inhabit it.
