NOW AND THEN

LIFE'S MIRROR

By Madeline Bridges

There are loyal hearts, there are spirits brave,
There are souls that are pure and true;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Give love, and love to your life will flow,
A strength in your utmost need;
Have faith, and a score of hearts will show
Their faith in your word and deed.

Give truth, and your gift will be paid in kind.
And honor will honor meet;
And a smile that is sweet will surely find
A smile that is just as sweet.

Give sorrow and pity to those who mourn,
You will gather in flowers again
The scattered seeds of your thought outborne,
Though the sowing seemed but vain.

For life is the mirror of king and slave—
'Tis just what we are and do;
Then give to the world the best you have,
And the best will come back to you.

Was there ever such winter weather? Day by day the weather is as warm as Spring. Those, who failed, however, to get up last Sunday morning missed a wonderful sight. The cedars and bushes were loaded down "with ermine too dear for an earl" while the bare limbs of the trees were covered with icy diamonds which sparkled in the sunlight. The great sun himself was rising in all his glory, painting sky and river with colors which no painter could match. It was worth the loss of an hour or two of sleep to see such beauty.

Books are wonderful friends. They are always ready to amuse you or console. TThey never hurt your feelings and they give out their richness to the poor equally with the rich. No, I am never lonely when I have my books around me.

In the Autobiography of Joseph Jefferson, that delightful actor, he tells a story about himself. He had just arrived in London, and being confident that his play Rip Van Winkle would be a success there, he lighted his room and then put on the wig and hat of old Rip. "I stood before the glass and began acting and posing as in the play" he said "when there was a knock at the door.

"Who's there?" I said. "It's me," replied the maid, "Can I come in, sir. "Certainly not" I said not wishing her to see me in my make up.

"Well, sir," she continued, "there's a policeman at the door, and he says as how there's a crazy man in your room, flinging his arms and carrying on awful, and there's a crowd of people across the street a blocking up the way." I turned and found to my horror that I had forgotten to put down the curtain, and a great crowd was taking in my first-night."

Since all the pictures and stories concerning Washington are being revived there has been a great deal of criticism concerning the picture of "Washington crossing the Delaware," a picture which is familiar to every school girl and boy, for copies of it are found in most history books. The critics say it is not true to nature and they really succeeded in having the original, which hangs in all its glory at the Metropolitan Museum in New York taken down, but the crowd of admirers raised such a protest that it is to be rehung in its accustomed place.

A Generous Organ

Boston Transcript

William Jennings Bryan used to relate with gusto the compliment paid to him after his lecture to the students of a Christian college in Tokio.

"Mr. Bryan," said the student, "It is the utmost pleasure to hear you talk. Your mouth encircles the globe and when you have broken your lip many people are cheerful."

Philosopher

A wise Turk lay beneath a tree
Pondering the ways of the Almighty;
Why had he made a bough so big
To hold a simple little fig,
While watermelons big and round
Grew on frail vines upon the ground?

With that a fig fell on his nose.
He cried, "What wisdom Allah shows!"
"If melons grew upon the bough
"How pained would be my poore nose now."
And thereupon he ceased his thought
And fell asleep as wise Turks ought.

THE HOME FLOWER GARDEN

(BY MISS HELEN SCHELLINGER)

As all the magazines are telling you, now is the time to start with your Flower Garden.

This year the lesson will particularly stress perennial and biennials. Propagation is the subject of lesson One. Project Demonstrators have been studying these flowers the past year, so as to be able to show the persons who come to the meetings just how these plants are propagated.

They will tell you how and which ones to start from seeds, which are best suited to cuttings of stem or root, which are best for division of the shoot, and how often and when to separate iris, peonies, and oriental poppies.

Anyone interested in flowers will want to attend these meetings:

Thursday, January 14—Rock Hall at 2 p. m. at Church House.

Friday, January 15—Millington at 2 p. m. at Mrs. Spencer Stevens.

Friday, January 15, Still Pond, 11 a. m. to 3 p. m. at Mrs. William Medders.

ESCAPED PRISONERS CAUGHT

1 RETURNS—1 CAUGHT—1 STILL AT LARGE

Ulysis Thompson, one of the three colored men who escaped from the Chestertown jail two weeks ago voluntarily returned to the jail on Monday and told a story of how he and the other two prisoners were taken in an automobile to Kenneth Square, Pa., and he was given ten cents and asked to get out of the car to get some candy. While he was in the store the others drove off and left him. He then started to walk back to Chestertown, sleeping in jails on his way down. When he arrived in Chestertown, having walked all the way, he returned to the jail. He is being held for court on a charge of forging a $25 check on Mr. Lester Newnam, of near Massey.

Sheriff Vickers then went out to look for Hanson Wilson, the reported leader in the jail break, who is being held for Court on a charge of stealing turkeys.. Working on Clues he went to Concordsville, Pa., and arrived there two hours after Wilson had left.

Caught Under 200 Pounds Pressure

Sheriff Vickers working on a clue went to a house in Salem N. J., where he was sure Wilson was hiding. After stationing guards on the outside he went up stairs but could see nothing in the bed but Wilson's 200 pound companion fully clothed lying on her back. The Sheriff went there to search and search he did. He succeeded in rolling the 200 pounds aside and there was his man pressed far down in the mattress by the heavy weight. Wilson who is a small man was completely squashed and squelched and he is now in the Chestertown jail locked up in a way that he will not escape.

Harry Johnson, confessed violator of the local option law, is still at large.

TWO AUTOS STOLEN

CHEVROLET AND BUICK STOLEN WEDNESDAY NIGHT

A new Chevrolet automobile owned by Mr. A. L. Strager, a traveling salesman who was staying at the Voshel Hotel, was stolen Wednesday night.

State Officer Cubbage and Deputy Sheriff Whaland were notified early Thursday morning and soon found the car parked on the Worton road out of gasoline. The car only contained about one gallon of gasoline when it was stolen.

A Buick automobile, 1930 model that has been 8000 miles, owned by Mr. W. H Cooper, was stolen from his garage on Calvert street early Thursday morning.

The thieves entered the garage by a rear window and took the car out of the back door. They then drove it around to the front of the building and filled it with gasoline by cutting the hose above the locked nozzle.

Mr. Johnson, who lives across the street, was awakened at 10 minutes to 3 o'clock and saw the men with the car. He called "Is that you Dan" meaning Dan Ross who works at the garage and the conversation was as follows: "Is that you Dan?" "yes!" "It doesn't sound like you, where are you going?" "I'm taking the old man to the hospital." "What is the matter with him?" "Appendicitis." Mr. Johnson then head "Who, Who." indicating that there were two men, one being on the inside of the garage pumping the gasoline.

The automobile was found parked near Middletown with a flat tire.It had apparently been run some distance on the flat tire as the tire was torn up and the rim badly mashed. The only other damage was to the apron of the car. It was brought back to Chestertown and up to the present time no arrests have been made.

REPORT OF FIRE CO. PRESIDENT

PRESIDENT A. L. SPARKS MAKES ANNUAL REPORT

Due to the fact that a wave of depression has been over our entire country during 1931, what I could report at the end of the year has been to me a matter of grave concern.

This depression has touched each of us and has had a tendency to interfere with the general morale of our company.

Everybody has been under more or less strain due to existing conditions and we have been a little more critical and have had a little less patience with each other than we would have had, had things been more normal, yet notwithstanding all this, I can tell you that with the exception of one or two little ripples we are as we started 1931, all working to strengthen and upbuild our company, each man bearing his part of the great work it is doing.

Physically this company has never been in better shape than it it now. I had hoped that I might report our apparatus in 100 per cent. condition, but due to a recent mishap to No. 3 truck I cannot do that, but we have been all this past year and are now ready to give an instant answer to any alarm.

Our equipment has been augmented during the year by several pieces that will increase our efficiency at a fire, and a bus has been added which fills a need and helps to solve many a problem of transportation.

Our finances this year have been a great responsibility. Banks and great business houses all over our country have been compelled to close their doors and this company is entering 1932 with all bills paid and a substantial cash balance should feel that it has been especially favored.

In closing my three years as President of this Fire Company I have only one request to make. Harmony is the strength and support of all organizations and applies especially to Volunteer Fire Companies and my request is that, we who are the rank and file of this company, each one, may give his undivided support to the officers you may select tonight.

Unless you do that, this company is on the down grade and your officers hands are tied.

Voice your opinions on the floor at the Monday night meetings and if your opinion is lost by a majority vote, forget it, and pull together as before.

I thank you for the support you have given me while in this chair, I have always felt my inefficiency to perform the duties of the job and your patience and forbearance has always been most kind. I am doubly indebted to our most competent secretary,s..eE. e manner in which he has done his work has been of great help to me and in stepping down from this position I am not giving up any interest I have in the company and stand ready at all times to do what I can to further the interests of this organization and to assist my superior officers in any way I can.

Let us all help make 1932 our banner year.

Respectfully Submitted,

A. L. SPARKS, President

WASHINGTON NOSES OUT RIVALS

WIN OVER PENN COLLEGE 35 TO 32

Washington College won over Pennsylvania Teachers College here last Saturday night by a margin of 3 points.

During the first ten minutes of play the visitors ran up an 8 point lead before the locals could get going but after that the local pentagon had things their own way and ended the half with a one point margin 16 to 15.

In the second half a safe margin was maintained and a number of substitutions were made. Robinson and Fitzgerald were the outstanding stars for the local eleven.

Four State Games Scheduled

Washington College met Hopkins Friday night in Baltimore and today will journey to Emmitsburg for a game with Mt. St. Mary's. Next Tuesday the team will travel to Westminster where they will play Western Maryland and Saturday night will meet Loyola in Chestertown.

These four games will pretty well determine Washington's chance for a state championship.

The game with Loyola here next Saturday night will probably be the feature contest of the season as Loyola has already defeated the University of Maryland this season.

—Mr. L. C. Treherne, representative of E. A. Strout Farm Agency, has sold to Philadelphia parties a luxury-style home on Kent Island. This property adjoins the Cook estate which was recently purchased by Mr. Wm. Hancock, of New England.
