6 FOREST FIRES REPORTED IN KENT

ROCK HALL FIRE COMPANY COMMENDED — RESPONSIBILITY FIXED IN THREE CASES

Six forest fires were reported in Kent county in 1931 according to the annual report of District Forester Kenneth J. Seigworth in charge of the nine Eastern Shore Counties. Although the total acreage burned was 114, the property damage mounted to only $167.

Five of the fires occurred in the Rock Hall section and were extinguished by the Rock Hall Fire Company. The creditable work of this company under the direction of Forest Warden Fred Williams was emphasized in the report. It was added that the services of this company were most valuable among the nineteen volunteer fire companies cooperatng with the Forestry Department in the Eastern Shore District. In addition to the regular forest fire equipment issued by the State, the fire company purchased six portable water pumps from their own funds.

Personal responsibility was fixed in three of the six reported fires. Collection of fire fighting costs has already been made in two of the cases and an early settlement of the third has been arranged by District Forest Warden Ralph K. Levering. All of these fires were caused by brushburners. It was pointed out that criminal prosecution was possble although such proceedings were not instituted.

Causes of the fires were given as brush-burners 3 and smokers 3. Total cost of fighting the blazes was $78.75. This cost is borne equally by the State and County.

Kent Forest Wardens were rated third in fire control efficiency among the Eastern Shore Countes. A better record was established by the wardens in Talbot and Caroline Counties. The fire control objective of the Forestry Department is the reduction of the annual burned acreage to one-tenth of one per cent. Standing timber is considered a fair insurance risk when that condition is reached. The figure for the past year was three-tenths of one per cent.

"SKIPPY" AND "SOOKY"

"Skippy" and "Sooky," those wistful pals of Shantytown, who jumped from the cartoon pen of Percy Crosby to create one of the biggest of all talkie hits, are reunited in the persons of towheaded Jackie Cooper and whimsical brunette Robert Coogan in a Paramount sequel titled "Sooky." "Sooky" shows at the New Lyceum Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, February 1st and 2nd, with a special Matinee on Tuesday, February 2nd at 3:30 P. M.

Reviewing a picture of this type, with all the heartache of realism and all the sublime happiness of childhood hope, courage and optimism, is not something to be done adequately with an unemotional thing like a typewriter.

If you liked "Skippy," you can't be disappointed in "Sooky." The same producers, the same director, the same story staff, re-associate Crosby with Norman Taurog, to present seventy minutes of entertainment in the fullest sense of the word.

Nor are young Cooper and Coogan the only members of the original cast to project their characterizations in new experiences. Willard Robertson, Enid Bennett, Helen Jerome Eddy, Guy Oliver and that ebullient pest, Jackie Searl, renew the parts they created in "Skippy," for "Sooky."

Dogs, trinkets, mothers and fathers are treated with typical boyhood earnestness in the new story, which revolves mainly about the efforts of "General" Skippy, and "Sooky," his army, to outdo the highhat Boone Boys, a cadet corps recruited from a neighborhood more attractive than Shantytown. Pathos and humor are discreetly mixed, building up to a strong and sympathetic climax.

WASHINGTON WINS

WINS FIRST STATE GAME. FRESHMAN LOSE

Washington College in top form won its first state game last Saturday night, by defeating Loyola, their old rival in basket-ball 32 to 22.

Washington drew blood first with a field goal and obtained a lead that was never overcome during the entire contest. At the end of the frst half Washington had a lead of eight points. Loyola was missing many easy shots and missed seven out of nine fouls. Washington was shooting farly well and made four out of eight fouls.

In the second half Loyola staged two rallies and came within three points of tying the score.

Washington however was able to check both of there rallies and the game ended with Washington out in front with a ten point margin. On fouls in the second half, Washington made six out of eleven and Loyola made six out of nine.

Although they had a good attendance at the game it did not come up to former years when these two teams played.

NOW AND THEN

Thought at Dawn

From the Detroit News

I often waken when the quiet night
Begins to lift her mantle for her flight,
Withdrawing silently as mother mild
Doth slip in silence from her sleeping child
Whose need of her is over, now that rest
Has smoothed the fretful lines on brow impressed.
The day not yet appears in her bright dress
To bless earth with her renewed caress.
But faintly in the sky a growing arc
Lifts in sweet promise to erase the dark.
So do my hope and faith with brightening glow
Uplift within me, and a peace bestow,
Erasing doubt; and then in thankful praise
A prayer for understanding heart I raise.

Caroline B. Rudd

Shakespeare lovers had quite a treat this week at the college when the students of the English classes played Romeo and Juliet. Quite a large and enthusiastic audience gathered in William Smith Hall showing that Shakespeare is still popular with the crowd. The players who were coached by Miss Ingalls the English professor, did their parts well, and the staging and costumes were most effective. Juliet was very attractive and lovable, while Romeo, must have appealed to many masculine hearts as well as to that of Juliet. Friar Lawrence; the ever present nurse; the Capulets, both the designing mother and the irate father; and Marcutio Romeo's friend did some very good acting, while the whole cast took well their parts. During the fencing and dancing one was reminded of an advertisement for students soon after Washington College was begun. The advertisement stated that the young gentlemen students would be taught fencing and dancing by able professors. and the way the young gentlemen handled their swords, and the players danced it looks as though that training is still carried out. It is hoped that there will be more such plays.

So the Greate Room is to be sold and carried away to the museum in Baltimore to be a memorial to Mr. J. T. Helmsley Johnson purchased by his loving widow. It is worthy of a museum, this Greate room with it beautiful paneling. Chestertown with all its memories of old heroes born in its midst; Charles Wilson Peale a great colonial artist who lived here and the Colonial places around ought to have a museum. Some thought it would be a fine thing to buy the Abbey and convert it into a Peale Museum. But times are hard and money is scarce so the plan fell through. Yet the Abbey still stands in its loveliness and maybe it may yet be able to buy it in the future.

Such a sad little dog was running around in the street yesterday. He had evidently lost his master. He would run to one corner of the street, look anxiously up and down, and then run to another. Nothing could divert him. And then these lines of Arthur Guiterman's came to mind.

"He was lost! not a shade of a doubt of that;
For he never barked at a slinking cat.
But stood in the square where the wind blew raw
And a mournful look in his pleading eye
And a plaintive sniff at the passer-by
That begged as plain as a tongue could sue.
"O Mister! please may I follow you "
Oh, the saddest of sights in a world of sin
Is a little lost pup with his tail tucked in.

The weather man, who has kept the wind in check this winter, let it go on Wednesday last, and such pranks as it did play! It got into the uncovered baskets of trash sitting in the streets, pulled out the unwilling newspapers and made them dance in the most ungraceful attitudes along the highways.

The dead leaves, lying unforgotten in the gutters, had to jump up and prance up and down. while the clothes on the lines were made to perform the most ridiculous tricks. If one has the leisure to watch, the doings of the wind are funnier than any comic papers.

Champions bring notoriety to the places where they live. Chestertown has a champion of which it is justly proud, a Checker Champion. In all games Joe Wheatley is good, but in Checkers he excels. To beat four at the game is small work for Joseph, but now he is to go forth to beat six at the game. One could wish that it were seven so it could be said of him, "Killed seven at a blow." As the proceeds of this game at Pocomoke are to be given for Charity, the poor will be much richer for Joseph's visit, we are sure.

MUSKRATS REPORTED PLENTIFUL

Muskrat trappers in this section report a good catch although this week they are reported to be less plentiful.

The price of the hides are holding up above the price of other commodities and the price that has prevailed has been approximately 50 cents for browns and 90 cents for blacks.

Within in the past twenty years the price of hides has ranged from fifteen and twenty cents to the top notch wartime price.

STATE HEALTH OFFICIALS HERE

MEET WITH COUNCIL FOR MILK DISCUSSION

Three State health officials, including Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Health Department; Mr. A. L. Sullivan, State Food and Drug Commissioner; and Dr. J. W. Banks, State Inspector of Dariesy; with Dr. R. G. Beachley, County Health Officer, met with the Mayor and Council of Chestertown on Tuesday of this week and discussed the milk situation in Chestertown. The meeting was called due to certain irregularities following the passage of the recently passed Chestertown Milk Ordinance. Ten farmers who are supplying milk to the two Chestertown dairies also attended the meeting as well as the proprietors of the two dairies.

The present milk ordinance requires that all dairymen, who furnish milk to be sold in Chestertown, must have a permit from the State Department of Health. To obtain ths permit the producers equipment must be inspected

The state officials recommended certain changes in the ordinance which, it is understood, will require the pasteurization of all milk delivered. At the present time 90 per cent. of all milk sold in Chestertown is pasteurized.

SHAD IN UPPER BAY

WARM WEATHER MAKES SURFACE FISHING POSSIBLE

At this season of the year when the waters of the upper section of the Chesapeake Bay are generally chilled by snow and drifting ice, fishermen anchor their nets and fish for rock fish near the bottom of the bay but this year, due to the unusual warm winter weather and lack of ice and snow the fish have come to the surface. Large schools of rock fish have been seen this week playing on the surface and fishermen have changed their rigs and are fishing on the surface.

While surface fishing white shad are being caught and this week Captain Chares Crouch caught a roe shad. Rock fish are reported to be scarce.

In Chester River fishermen have been catching large numbers of perch although they have been off the later part of the week. Large numbers of whitings are making perch fishing difficult.

CHECKER CHAMP TO INVADE WORCESTER

JOE WHEATLEY, LOCAL CHAMP TO PLAY POCOMOKE'S BEST SIX

Mr. Joseph N. Wheatley, of Chestertown, undisputed checker champion of the Eastern Shore will branch out in the checker world on February 8th, 1932, and single handed will play six of the best that can be found in the vicinity of Pocomoke City at the same time.

The match has been arranged by Dr. E. J. Clark, formerly of Washington College, now editor of the Worcester Democrat. Dr. Clark, who has seen Joe in action on numerous occasions, remarked to the checker artists of Pocomoke that he knew a man who could beat any one of them. This brought no response and he said his man could beat any two and so forth until he got the number up to six and that was more than any town or community could stand so he was told to bring his man on and the date has been arranged for February 8th.

Joe has succeeded in maintaining his title of Eastern Shore Champion and has played four men at the same time. Facing six experts i sa job and he is willing to tackle it. It is understood that the contest will be staged in a arge hall, the proceeds from which to be used for charity.

SIXTY MILES AN HOUR

TO BE PRESENTED BY FIREMEN FEBRUARY 2ND AND 3RD

During recent years, the movies have done much toward making us believe that there was a humorous side to the late world war. "Sixty Miles an Hour", which will be presented at the old Lyceum theatre on Tuesday and Wednesday, February 2nd and 3rd under the auspices of the active firemen of the Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company, is based on one of the humorous situations which brought about thousands of impromptu weddings before the boys started for France in 1917. The play is in no sense a war story but simply takes advantage of a situation brought about in a small Ohio town where an engagement of fifteen years standing is the cause of a most peculiar and impromptu wedding on the eve of the hero's departure for France.

The part of the bridegroom in question is very ably taken by Vernon Kirby while that of the bride that was to have been is delightfully and humorously played by Miss Katherine Smith. Miss Dorothy Johnson, taking the part of a traveling saleslady from the city arrives at a most inopportune time and seriously complicates the plans of the bride that was to have been and at the same time completely changes the ideas of the bridegroom. Then there is Spike Hamm, the news agent on the local running out of Cincinnati. Spike, which part is taken by Harry Russell, is in love with a Swedish girl from Minnesota who aspires to sing opera and is played by Mrs. Bates Chairs. There is old Ben Tracy, C. A. Bacon; and Judge Edwards, W. L. Fowler. Others who will take prominent parts in the show are Raymond Moffett, Mrs. E. P. L. Bell, Herbert Ward, Frank Fowler, George Pennington, Miss Marie Bryan and J. D. Guthrie.

Supporting this cast is a chorus of twelve girls, Misses Mabel R. Smith, Mary Ellen Brown, Dorothy Walbert, Fern Blackway, Anna Bland, Priscilla Grainger, Phoebe Pyle, Harriett Louise Rogers, Myrtle Hadaway, Miriam Thompson, Sarah Willis and Anna Lewis.

A special attraction, The Wedding of the Little Doll, which will be portrayed by the kiddies of the elementary school, will preceed the play.

Miss Harriett Watson, of the Frederick B. Ingram Productions, is in town directing the play. Reserved seats went on sale at Stam's Drug Store on Friday.

BETTER-BRED QUAIL TO REPLACE LOCAL STOCK

An effort is being made by district game wardens of the State to capture live bob-white quail and to replace them by better-bred birds from the State hatchery. This is to be done as the result of an order issued Saturday by State Game Warden E. Lee LeCompte.

On account of the lack of snow and the possibility of continued fair weather, Mr. LeCompte stated Sunday that he does not expect a great number of wild birds will be caught, as snares have little attraction for the wild birds unless they are hungry. At present the birds have no difficulty in securing plenty of black-eyed peas, of which they are especally fond, or any other kind of weed seeds. They also eat any kind of grain.
