WILL ROGERS AT HIS BEST

MONDAY AND TUESDAY, MARCH 21ST and 22ND

Will Rogers continues his triumphant career as America's greatest talking screen comedian in his newest Fox Film production, "Business and Pleasure," which comes to The New Lyceum Theatre on Monday and Tuesday, March 21 and 22.

Rogers has never been funnier than he is in this excellent adaptation of Booth Tarkington's best selling novel, "The Plutocrat." He starts the picture with a laugh, and works up to a climax of hilarity which sends the audience from the theatre still laughing.

In this production Rogers, in the role of a Middle Western business man touring abroad for pleasure and business, takes some nifty cracks at the small army of snobs who think it is sophisticated to sneer at everything American when they are in Europe.

Joel McCrea, as a sophisticated playwright, undergoes a complete metamorphosis during the course of the picture, his sneers turning into vociferous cheers when he finally realizes the true worth of Earl Tinker, the character enacted by Rogers .

Jetta Goudal is a fascinating Parisienne, Dorothy Peterson is Rogers' nagging wife and Peggy Ross is his daughter. Boris Karloff does very well as a desert sheik. David Butler who piloted Rogers successfully in "A Connecticut Yankee," again directed the star in "Business and Pleasure," and has done an even better job.

NOW AND THEN

L'ENVOI

When Earth's last picture is painted and the tubes are twisted and dried,
When the oldest colors have faded, and the youngest critic has died,
We shall rest and faith we need it—lie down for an eon or two.
Till the master of all good workmen shall set us to work anew!

And those that were good shall be happy they shall sit in a golden chair
They shall splash at a ten league canvass with brushes of comet's hair;
They shall find real saints to draw from — Magdalene Peter and Paul;
They shall work for an age at a sitting and never be tired at all!

And only the master shall praise us and only the master shall blame:
And no one will work for money, and no one shall work for fame;
But each for the joy of working and each in his separate star
Shall draw the things as he sees It for the God of things as they are.
—Kipling.

The above poem of Kipling's is one of several which he wrote with the name of "L'Envoi," and I was very glad when a friend found this special one for me. It seems to catch Kipling in a different mood from those in which he wrote his Indian poems, the Road to Mandalay, M'Andrew's Hymn and The Long Trail.

Over two weeks and the Lindbergh's baby still missing! Will the hands that snatched it away from its parents be kind to it? Will it so accustomed to love and tenderness, be frightened by the evil faces, for evil must they be, to steal a little child. We can say when we see the little every day children with their rosy cheeks running and playing in yards and going unmolested in the streets, "God pity the rich!" Two of the wealthiest men in the world committed suicide this week.

Why do we humans worry so Have we not Christ's command. "Take no anxious care. Consider the birds of the air, they toil not neither gather into barns? But still we wonder what we will do if such and such a thing should happen. And yet "your Heavenly Father knoweth that you have need of such things."

Said the Robin to the Sparrow,
"I should really like to know
Why these anxious human beings
Rush about and worry so."

Said the Sparrow to the Robin,
Friend, I think that it must be
That they have no Heavenly Father
Such as cares for you and me."

Have you sent in your income tax? Be sure and have all the items there. Else something may happen, so beware.

There was a man in our town
And he was wondrous wise;
He figured up his income tax
And told a lot of lies.

But when he made the payment he
Was most surprised, forsooth,
To find it cost him just as much
As if he'd told the truth!

The columnist that used his whole column last week in rhapsodies over the birth of a son, and telling how he expected to train the young scion, invaded the same hospital where mother and son were quietly resting, unbeknownst to the other. We hope his sojourn there will be a brief one.

The paschal moon which determines Easter is just setting in the west as I write. What countless years has it risen and set since the children of Israel were passed over by the angel, sent to destroy the first born of the Egyptians of and yet it is still shining over the Jewish Passover and our Easter.

TO COMPLETE SASSAFRAS ROAD

COMMISSIONERS AND ROAD COMMISSIONERS DISCUSS PROJECT TO BUILD MORGAN CREEK BRIDGE

The Commissioners of Kent County, Messrs. Leonard Wilson, Charles D. Wood and Samuel Loller, together with Mr. Buck, chairman of the Board of County Commissioners for Cecil county road Engineer and Mr. Marion deK. Smith, Jr., representing the Kent County Chamber of Commerce, met with the State Roads Commission on Wednesday of this week with reference to the incompleted road from Sassafras toward the Cecil county border.

The stumbling block in the completion of this road was the construction of a bridge at a cost of approximately $20,000.

The delegation was given the understanding at the meeting that the State will build the bridge this year and the incompleted mile of road on the Cecil county side will come out of the annual appropriation to that county.

The entire upper part of Kent County is interested in this road which will materially shorten the distance to northern points.

To Build Morgan Creek Bridge

It was understood at the meeting that a new bridge across Morgan Creek will be built this year. The money for this bridge was apropriated at the last session of the Maryland Legislature.

250 FARMERS SEE DAIRY INDUSTRY IN PICTURE

An audience of more than 250 consisting chiefly of dairy farmers and their families, saw with interest the new talking picture, "Dave Lowell Figures It Out," which was shown at the new Armory, Chestertown, through the courtesy of Larrowe Milling Co.

The film dealt with the practical problems confronting dairymen today in establishing their business on a profitable basis by the proper feeding and care of their cows. Those attending the show saw how cows were fed and handled at the Larro Research Farm, the largest privately owned farm in the world devoted to the study, of animal and poultry nutrition. One part of the picture was devoted to the manufacturing processes used at the Larro Mill, and the safeguards that are provided to make mixed feeds uniform, clean and wholesome.

It was an evening of highly interesting and educational entertainment and Mr. P. M. Brooks is to be congratulated upon arranging for the showing of this picture.

TELEPHONE SERVICE RENEWED

11,000 TELEPHONES RESTORED TO SERVICE

Since the violent snow and wind storm of last Sunday, (March 6) 11,000 of the 15,000 telephones put out of commission have been restored to service and all telephones in Maryland are again be in service.

More than 300 linemen and helpers have been working strenuously during the past week to restore service to telephones throughout the state and to reconnect long distance and toll lines. These line forces of the telephone company have been working from daylight to dark in an effort to get the service restored as promptly as possible. Repairs to the telephone system, as a result of this storm will involve expenditures of more than $300,000, according to a statement made Saturday by Frederick J. Irish, general manager of the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Company of Baltimore City.

In restoring service to connect up the central offices which were isolated as a result of the damage to telephone lines, the repair forces have utilized 1,400 miles of insulated two-conductor wire, which has been strung on the stubs of poles and on fences and trees.

In the meantime the line forces were reconstructing pole lines and stringing wire circuits to replace the damaged plant. In making permanent repairs, Mr. Irish states that it will be necessary to erect 6,500 new poles, 3,000 crossarms and string about 5,000 miles of open wire. In certain sections where there were a large number of open wire lines, about 60 miles of cable will be constructed.

The pole replacements will be made largely with creosoted pine poles which have a much longer life than untreated poles. These poles are being shipped from creosoting plants in Virginia, Alabama, Mississippi and other southern states.

FARMERS HOLD IMPORTANT MEETING

DISCUSS TOMATOES AND OTHER CROPS

At a meeting of farmers held in the Coutr House on Monday, March 14th, to study the Agricultural situation.

Mr. F. M. Shook, Secretary of the Tri-State Packers Association, discussed the canning crops situation. He pointed out the fact that the market has been at a standstill for week.s Canners have been hard hit and are uncertain, at this time, as to the extent of their 1932 packing operations and the prices they can pay for raw products. He pointed out the probable effect if the 2 1-4 per cent. Sales tax on canned goods were made effective. He urged opposition to the inclusion of canned goods in the proposed sales taax (Editors note, Canned goods have been dropped from the list of things on which sales taxes will be collected if the preesnt bill is enacted into law.)

Mr. T. D. Holder discussed Tomato production and answered questions relative to the sale of tomatoes on U. S. grade—about 15 per cent. of the Maryland 1931 crops were sold on these grades. Interest in grading is spreading rapidly—several states are adopting this plan as the approved method of selling tomatoes. Certainly selling on grade is correct in theory—that is—this plan calls for payment according to quality rather than a flat rate for anything accepted.

To those who plan to grow tomatoes, he offered timely and pertinent suggestions on the following points:—Soil fertility; good seed; early planting and good quality plants; all of which play an important part in satisfactory yields economically produced. The liberal use of manure and fertilizer on the fewer acres is advisable. Certified seed of suitable and wilt resistant varieties are good insurance. The use of muslin covered plant beds as an economical means of securing early plants safely was mentioned. Seed sown in these beds around March 25-28th should be two weeks earlier than those sown in open beds. Thinner seeding to produce husky, stocky plants is a wise practice—as is dusting or spraying to keep down insects and iseae. (The County Agent will assist growers who desire further information.)

County Agent McVean announced that farmers needing "Crop Production Loans" from the Government may secure some aid. As Secretary of the County Committee, he will explain the blanks and will aid all who need such loans. This aid is available only for those who need it and are unable to secure further credit locally. He urged that all avoid increasing indebtedness so far as possible. Based on 1931 experience, he urged that "the live at home" policy be continued. The production of foodcrops and feed crops should be a major consideration at all times and especially at this time when so called "cash-crops" may not cash. The garden and truck patch may well be the most profitable land on any farm. Culling of flocks and herds; Control of internal and external parasites of sheep—hogs and poultry are means of taking up the slack in farming practices since they are conductive to economical production, which is so essential during a period of falling prices.

In general the recommendations for tomato growing apply to all farm crops.

He announced a county-wide meeting of milk shippers to be held at the Washington College Auditorium on Wednesday, March 30th, at 1.30 p. m. Allebach and Cohee of the Inter-State Milk Producers Association will speak as will J. A. Conover of the Conover of the Maryland Extension service.

On April 4th (Monday) an afternoon meeting will be held at the Court House for all interested in Poultry, at which Dr. Phillips, Mr. Monroe and Mr. Rice will present timely suggestions relative to poultry.

Mr. James W. Davis of the Maryland Farm Buerau and Maryland Agricultuarl Coropration spoke briefly of the Eastern Live Stock Cooperative Association, which will have selling agencies on the Baltiomre, Lancaster and Jersey city markets.

Mr. Kubelin a representative of the National Grain Corporation spoke briefly of the grain marketing work of his organization.
