ANN COLEMAN

One of the interesting sights of Washington is found in the Smithsonian Institute. It is the group of figures wearing the dresses of the first ladies of the land in their respective periods. One is rather disappointed at first to note that they all have the same face, the face of the famous statue of Cordelia in King Lear. But it is interesting to see the change of styles in the different administrations. Among them all there is one single lady, Harriett Lane who was mistress of the White House during the term of her uncle, President Buchanan, the only bachelor president the country has ever had. One wonders why he remained a bachelor, knowing how, in his high estate the president is thrown with the most chaning women of his time. But once when the fair match makers were joking him about a special friend whom they were urging him to marry, he became grave and told them that such a thing could never be that his heart was in the grave, and he would remain single for the sake of his beloved.

His story is this: When he was a young man, a poor struggling lawyer, he was thrown with a beautiful talented young girl, Ann Coleman, and their friendship soon ripened into love. But she was rich and her proud father had no idea of his charming daughter, marrying a poor unknown man. In spite of opposition, however, the pair met often and pledged themselves to one another. Then Buchanen was sent on a mission to Philadelphia. Roads were bad and mails were uncertain. And his work kept him there much longer than he expected. Though he wrote to Ann often, he seldom received replies from her. When he returned home, he was met by friends, telling him of Ann's engagement to another. He rushed to her home, and met the father while his daughter stood pale and trembling beside him. The father told him that his daughter preferred some one else and the desperate lover rushed away without having a word with her. Then he wrote asking her to return all his letters and the gifts which he had sent her. She returned them all but one.

Then she asked her father to let her go to Philadelphia on a visit. He gladly consented, thinking perhaps it would cheer her up and feeling very self reproachful, for he had destroyed the letters which Buchannan had sent her and had done all in his power to prejudice her against her lover. When Ann arrived in the city she asked her maid to get her some laudanium as she was feeling ill. The maid hastened to do so and then Ann dismissed her for the night. In the morning, the nurse went into her room, and found her lying dead with the gift, fram Buchanan, which she had kept, clasped in her hand.

The father's remorse was dreadful, and Buchenan vowed that he would never put another in her place. So Harriet Lane reigned undisturbed in the White House and Buchanan, though surrounded by women friends kept his vow and remained faithful to his only love.

WHITE PIQUE GLOVES WORN DURING SPRING

New York, April 2 (A.P.).—Gloves of white pique look as fresh as the new Easter with trim, tailored ensembles, in dark colors.

Other interesting gloves are made of a silken-textured fabric with inserts of sheer mesh between the figures, and flaring out from the gauntlet tops.

GREEN IS APPEARING FASHIONABLE AS COLOR

New York, April 9 (A.P.).—Green in various bright, fresh shades is sprouting out as one of the leading colors of the season. One sees it featured even in bridal trousseaus which heretofore have permitted of only dainty touches of blue. Green lace is used to trim lingerie and green velvet bows are spotted on white satin mules.

It is also a favorite color in children's wear. A mint candy shade is seen frequently in little coats, hats and printed frocks.

WRIST WATCHES ENCASED IN WOOD, ALSO CLASPS

New York, April 9 (A.P.).—Wrist watches are now encased in carved wood attached to narrow strips of braided leather. The clasps are also made of wood.

PERFUMES

In buying perfumes remember these little truths: Magnificent, enveloping furs best catch and hold the lasting fragrance of trôpical flowers—gardenias and jasmines. Lavender, chypre or lillies of the valley, fresh scents, are best for the daytime, in sports attire. More sophisticated fragrances are recommended for evening.

IN THE HOUSEKEEPER'S LITTLE HANDY BOOK

Replacing of broken tufting twines is important in mattress care.

Milk is less likely to burn and stick to the saucepan if the pan is rinsed with cold water before the milk is poured in.

Dry bread may be easily and neatly crumbed by crushing in a deep bowl with a wooden vegetable masher.

Veyetables that grow under ground should be covered in cooking and those that grow above ground left uncovered.

The weather is an important study in a house keepers job. It is atmospheric pressure of the family's temperament that she mus study. Not only study—but control. When storm clouds gather and thunder rolls under the roof tree she may provide shelter and bring sunshine again with a favorite pie or pudding. She learns that certain tempests may be laid directly to the food eaten—bad dispositions often are nothing more than poor dogestion. With art and cunning she clears the skies of home with well planned meals. Her car is attuned she senses with some sixth sense the atmosphreic pressure of her home.

RECIPE

Egg Omelet—Three ggs, one-fourth teaspoon salt, pepper, two tablespoons milk, one teaspoon butter. Separate eggs, beat whites on large platter. Put skilet on to heat. Beat yolks until creamy; add milk; season. Fold whites carefully into bowl of yolks. Put butter in skillet, when hot, pour omelet in. Have heat turned low. When omelet is evenly browned on one side, cover with hot lid to dry on top. Put plate over skillet; turn upside down Draw out plate. Serve at once.

Cream of Oyster Soup

1 pint of oysters
1-2 cupful water—cold
1 cupful thin white sauce.

Seasoning of salt, pepper and celery to taste.

Wash the oysters in the cold water, removing any particles of shell. Bring the water and oyster liquid slowly to the boiling point. Add the oysters and simmer until the edges curl. Add to the white sauce the strained liquor, salt and pepper to taste and cook until smooth. Add the oysters and serve immediately.

Flies Detest Daisies

A bouquet of daisies on the table, will assure the hostess of fewer flies, assures Ruth E. Lewis ,of Delaware, O. She explains that there is something about the odor of daisies that flies do not like, and a few bouquets placed around the room will keep them away entirely.

Cocoanut Cake

1 1-4 cups sugar
1-2 cup shortening
1 cup sweet milk
2 cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
4 egg whites
1 teaspoon vanilla
1-2 teaspoon salt

Cream the shortening and gradually beat in the sugar. Sift flour, baking powder and salt and add them to creamed mixture alternately with the milk and vanilla. Fold in the stiffly-beaten egg whites and bake in three layers in a moderate oven. Ice with:

3 egg whites
2 cups sugar
8 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
Shredded cocoanut.

Mix sugar and water and bring to a boil, stirring to dissolve sugar. Beat egg whites very stiff. As soon as these are beaten the sugar mixture should have boiled to consistency of syrup. Without removing pan from stove measure eight tablespoons of this syrup into the bowl of stiffly beaten egg whites. Beat to mix and let remainnig syrup boil until it will spin a thread. Then slowly combine it with other ingrdeients, beating as you add it. Beat in vanilla and continue beating as much as necessary to cool. Spread between layers and on cake springling while moist with cocoanut.

Fresh Fruit Salad With Honey Salad Dressing

1 grapefruit
1-2 cup white grapes
2 oranges
1 cup fresh pineapple
1-2 cup berries
12 marshmellows
Lettuce

Peel and remove outside skin and seeds from grapefruit and oranges. Wash and remove seeds from grapes. Peel and dic pineapple. Wash and hull strawberries. Cut marshmellows in quarters. Wash, drain and crisp the lettuce leaves. Mix all the fruits, tossing in large bowl lightly so as not to break the fruit. Add marshmellows and mix. Pile on lettuce leaves Serve with honey dressing.

Honey Salad Dressing

3 egg yolks, beaten
1-2 cup strained honey
1-2 cup lemon juice
1 grated lemon rind

War on Weeds

Weeds are the railwayman's enemy as well as the gardener's. If left alone they would choke the permanent way as effectively as in like circumstances, they would do our flower beds and gravel paths. The British Southern railway made an effective weed-killing train by coupling two old tenders together and fitting them with spray pipes and tanks. A special form of liquid weed-killer is used, and the spray pipes have an effective range of about ten feet.

"What's Jones So Puffed Up About ?"

IT'S an old, old, story . . mates. A few months ago, Jones was one of that short-sighted group that figured "Advertising just a waste of money." His business went from bad to worse until, in desperation, he decided to "try it just once."

The results were so gratifying, that he's been ADVERTISING CONSTANTLY ever since. No wonder he's smiling and content now.
