PLAN MOSQUITO SURVEY

DEFINITE STEPS TAKEN TO SURVEY FOR MOSQUITO CONTROL ON PENINSULA

Definite steps to secure a preliminary survey in the matter of mosquito control throughout the Del-Mar-Va Peninsua were completed last week when representatives of the Public Health Departments and Bureaus of Enthomology in Delaware, Maryland and Virginia with the United States Department of Health and the United States Bureau of Entomology, met to discuss the proposed plan in the offices of the Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association, at Salisbury, Md.

Fred P. Adkins, Chairman of the Administrative Committee of the Association, presided and explaned that this second meeting was called to bring together representatives of the State Heath Departments and State Entomologists so that facts as to how individual States might proceed could be presented. Mr. Adkins called on Dr .A. C. Jost, Executive Secretary, Delaware State Board of Health, who outlined steps being taken in that State toward a preliminary survey this season. Dr. L. A. Stearns, Entomologist of thme University of Delaware, further explained the activities in Delaware which provide for a practical carrying out of the preliminary survey there.

Dr. Ernest N. Cory, State Entomologist, University of Maryland, reported that they are completing plans for a very similar preliminary survey in Maryland and outlined the activities throughout the nine Eastern Shore Counties. A. E. Goodrich, Division Engineer of the Maryland State Department of Health, explained the cooperation which that Department would offer in the work being gotten under way.

Dr. L. L. Williams, Jr., Chief Surgeon, U. S. Department of Health, spoke in behalf of Dr. Warren L. Draper, Commissioner of Health, State of Virginia, explaining that if residents in the two Eastern Shore of Virginia Counties, Accomack and Northampton, would provide a nominal sum toward the survey the State would assume a proportion of expense and furnish the equipment and services of capable men for the survey in those countes. This was supplemented by a statement made by Dr. F. C. Bishop, Principal Entomolgist, U. S. Departmen of Agriculture, who, in behalf of Mr. W. H. Schoone, State Entomologist for Virginia, said that they would cooperate in the plan within means available.

W. O. Strong, County Agent, of Onley, Va., stated that he believed that the sum requested to insure the preliminray survey in the two Counties could be obtained and based upon this there was definite assurance that a Peninsula- wide preliminary survey will be launched this season.

Dr. L. L. Williams, as well as Dr. F. C. Bishop, of the Federal Departmenst, offered valuable cooperation and active participation in the proposed survey.

The Del-Mar-Va Eastern Shore Association will continue its activity in presenting facts and reporst of the plan as they develop and proceed and in rbinging together those authorities who will be in direct charge of the actual work. The Association will endeavor to interest the various Women's Clubs throughout the Peninsula for the purpose of promoting educational features which are in many instances of such a practical nature that they may be employed in daily home life activities.

Owing to the plan being an interstate project on the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula, the work to be carried out in the preliminary survey will be based upon one form of procedure with the Departments exchanging data and information as it is acquired.

Those attending yesterday's meeting were: Dr. Ernest N. Cory, State Entomologist, University of Maryland, College Park, Md.; W. O. Strong, County Agent, Onley, Va.; Dr. F. C. Bishop, Principal Entomologist in Charge, Insects affecting Man and Animals, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.; Dr. L. A. Stearns, Entomologist, University of Delwaare, Newark Del.; Dr. L. L. Wiliams, Jr., of Chief Surgeon, U. S. Health Dept., Washington, D. C.; A. E. Goodrich, Division Engnieer, State Dept. of Health, Baltimore, Md.; Mr. Wallace N. Spring Sanitary Engineer, State Dept. of Health, Baltimore, Md.; Mr. Wallace N. Spring, Sanitary Engineer, State Dept. of Health, Salisbury, Md.; Dr. A. C. Jost, Executive Secretary, State Board of Health, Dover, Del.; W. S. Corkran, Milburn, N. J.; F. P. Adkins, Chairman, Administrative Committee; Edwin C. Totten, Executive Secretary.

FURROWS

Mr. Editor:

It has been so long since I wrote anything fer your paper that I am a little out of practice. But this here busines of nominating a candidate fer president is gettin so interestin that I feel like I must say something about it. Of course the republicans will nominate Mr. Hoover, and unless the democrats are right careful Mr. Hoover will be reelected.

The democratic politicians don't seem to be able to learn by past experience. Six months ago it wuz almost a foregone conclusion that this would be a democratic year. Any kind of a democrat who is reasonably conservative and consistent could have won Yrom Mr. Hoover. But it seems like the politicians went too fast and upset the wheelbarrow. And while they wuz gettin all het up and excited over hav. in control of the House they let Mr. Hoover fool them into makin a lot of fool blunders. This here Hoover man is a whole lot smarter politican than the democrats think he is. He just outsmarted them fellers in Congress before they knew what he wuz doin. And he'll outsmart them some more before the Convention comes off. The smartest trick that he could pull off wuz to get the democrats to fight among themselves. And now they are so upset that they don't know what to do.

Well, this here fight in Congress has got the politicians so worried that they don't know what they are doin. They ain't got anything constructive to offer and so they have to do something destructive. So they all start out to fight the leadin candidate of the party. Now, I ain't so strong fer Mr. Roosevelt as a candidate, but I don't see why all the politicians should get together and persuade Al Smith to jump into the ring to beat Mr. Roosevelt. Of course Roosevelt has a smart man managin his campaign, and while these other fellers is quarrelin among themselves he goes ahead and gets delegates pledged. Well, it looks like he is goin to be right strong when the Convention comes along. Well, Al kept McAdoo from gettin the nomination in 1924 and I guess he'll be the "dog in the manger" this year. He had a right good try at it in 1928 and failed to get elected by several million votes.. Of course he could help beat Roosevelt by tackin some other good man, but he won't do that. It's my opinion that he wants the nomination himself so bad that he can't back any body else. That attitude may defeat the party in November.

I don't see why Al Smith won't come out fer Gov. Ritchie. Mr. Ritchie is a lot stronger man than some of the other candidates. I wuz fer Mr. Ritchie last year and proposed that we organize Ritchie fer President Clubs all over the State. But my suggestion didn't do much god. Nobody paid much attention to it. Well, we might do a lot worse than have him fer a president. We might repeat what we did in 1920.

Well, I'm goin to tell you something right now. If the democrats want to get licked in November they can jest keep on doin the thing they are doin now and it will lead to certain defeat. If they keep on lettin Mr. Hoover make fools of them they might just as well nominate John W. Davis again.

The republicans are jest a settin back and laughin in their sleeves and Mr. Hoover is laughin loudest only he ain't makin any noise about it. What the democrats need now is to put a lot of the leadin politicians to sleep fer a long spell and then put some new leaders in their places. The party needs leaders now with a lot of horse sense. A few more blunders and the party will be sunk in November.

Yours truly,
Josiah Allen Weatherby

Submerged Land Charted

Georges Bank, a 200-mile neck of submerged land which identifies a popular fishing area off Cape Cod, was part of the American continent 25,000 years ago, in the opinion of United States coast and geodetic surveyors. The submerged land has several hills that come almost to the surface and are a constant menace to navigation. For this reason the surveyors charted the strip. The survey revealed several submarine valleys, which may have been river beds.
