HEALTH NOTES

HOT WEATHER HINTS FOR CARE OF BABIES

. Speaking of ways by which babies may be protected against the digestive disturbances that are prevalent during the warm weather, Dr. J. H. M. Knox, Jr., Chief of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, said:

"Bottle fed babies are the ones who are most likely to suffer from digestive disturbances. Babies who are nursed by their mothers are less susceptible to serious digestive ailments. Clean, cow's milk, modified under the doctor's directions to suit the needs of the individual baby, is the best substitute for mothers' milk. If a suitable quality of cow's milk can not be obtained, unsweetened evaporated milk can be used. If an equal quantity of water is added to the unsweetened evaporated milk, whole, cow's milk is reproduced.

"All cow's milk used for infant feedings should be boiled for two or three minutes—it is not necessary to boil it longer—before preparing the feedings. It should then be cooled as rapidly as possible. it should be placed in individual bottles and kept on ice or in a very cool place and warmed as needed.

"Many of the digestive ailments that occur among bottle fed babies can be traced to carelessness in handling milk in the home and to failure to keep the feeding bottles properly cleaned and sterilized. Twenty minutes is long enough for the baby to take all he is going to take at a single feeding. If the bottle is not emptied by that time, throw out the milk mixture remaining in it. Clean the bottle thoroughly and sterilize it by boiling before using it again.

"Flies are much worse enemies of the baby than most people realize. Flies carry disease producing germs from all sorts of places and sources and deposit them on the baby's face and hands, on the baby's food and on articles that come in contact with the baby. Babies should be protected against files by screening the kitchen and other rooms in the house and by using mosquito netting over the baby's carriage or crib when he sleeps out of doors.

"The best way to keep the baby well, is to have him under regular medical supervision at all times. The doctor should see the well baby at frequent intervals—at least once every month. This is especially important in the summer."

The Curbstone Diplomat

WILLIAM S. COLLINS

Well, Windy, did you hear the Republican convention over the radio?

Yes, I heard some of it. Things seemed kind of dull until they started talking about licker and then the whole works seemed to pep up. Licker usually does pep things up and it looks like the drys themselves need a little now. Business could stand a little licker too. They tried to stretch the old elephants legs and make him do a real wide straddle on the subject, but he did not stretch quite as far as they thought he would as he is a little ticklish.

His tried to be a little indifferent but most of his weight seems to be resting in most territory.

Windy, what do you think the Democrats will do about prohibition

Young feller, a jack-ass is not in the habit of doing straddles and when the wets and drys go to stretching his legs, I just hopes nobody gets kicked very bad. Somebody is bound to get their feelings hurt. I would like to be at the Democratic convention cause there is going to be plenty of excitement out there. A lot about nothing. They is bound to have some trouble selecting a candidate but aside from that there should be no trouble.

Why Windy, what about prohibition, tariff, banking laws, soldier bonus, etc.

Young feller when it comes to those issues have you yet seen either party tick togther? Those issues are not party issues. The government collects the taxes and then the senators and congressmen proceed to divide it up. They trade and swap each trying to get the biggest pile for his own district. Tariff is really no longer a party issue but they try to make it so. Democrat or Republican they represent the most votes in their states.

What is an issue, then, Windy?

The big issue is States Rights and it is high time we were giving this our attention. They yell this a dead issue, but boy, it is the biggest issue of the day and the biggest difference between the Democratic and Republican parties.

You must be hoping Ritchie gets the nomination, Windy?

I ain't got no objection to Maryland having a try at the White House. Being as how Dr. France was not drafted by the Republicans, it looks like our only chance is Ritchie. But we don't want no slogan like "Get Rich With Ritchie." No sir, that reminds me too much of "Full Dinner Pail, "Continued Prosperity" and some of them other mis-calculations. My candidate for the nomination is ex-senator Blease of South Carolina.

Why do you pick him out Windy?

Well the next time we meet I'll tell you and I'll also show you how to satisfy both the wets and drys.

Now that Cross street is being paved, the back-bone of all future town bond issues is broken.

The Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company have asked for the use of the park again this year for the carnival. Only has to be raised some way.
