MR. EDITOR:

The Republican Convention is over. Mr. Hoover wuz renominated, as most everybody expected he would be. It would have been better fer the party if it had nominated General Dawes. The country has had almost four years of Hoover prosperity and it is about ready fer a change. And unless I miss my guess the country is goin to have a change. Unless the majority of the American people has gone crazy they will vote the democratic ticket this fall and give the democrats a chance to make good their promises. They've been makin a lot of them and it's about time fer some of them to be fulfilled. But the democrats is just like the republicans. They make a lot of promises before election and when they git in they fergit all they promised. We'll see what they do this time.

There is goin to be one trouble with this campaign. The party leaders is goin to lose their heads over this licker question and fergit all about tryin to do something fer the workin people. The seven or eight million people that is out of work can't eat and wear licker. Of course they could drown their sorrows with it, if they could git any money to buy it with. But they'd be no better off after they git over their drunk. I ain't sayin that prohibition ain't causin a lot of trouble, but it ain't the only issue before the American people at this time.

This biggest issue before the country now is unemployment. Some way has got to be found to provide work fer several million people. I ain't sayin how that is to be done, but if the democrats is so good at fixin things fer the country let them fix up this little matter of unemployment. They have already started on this. They helped to pass a tax bill that will require several hundred thousand more republican office holders to collect the numerous and sundry taxes levied in this bill. It will take a small army of snoopers to go around and see that the banks collect the tax on all their checks. It will take more republicans to check up on the banks than they are usin to pretend to enforce prohibition.

Another big issue before the American people now is economy in government. What the Democrats ought to do is to abolish several thousand political jobs down there in Washington and save a lot of money fer the tax payers. If that big standin army of government employes wuz doin anything good fer the country it wouldn't be so bad, but they ain't. Their findins is all in the interests of the big busines men, and the poor people have to pay the bills. The Department of Agriculture, fer instance, ain't done nothin fer the farmers of this country since they quit givin away free seed. that wuzn't much, but it wuz something, and we ain't got that now. And the whole sootin match of the Farm Board ought to be abolished before they spend any more of the tax payers' money to help the wheat, corn, and cotton speculators. Then they ought to put all the fightin forces under one head and abolish a lot of duplication of work in them departments. And they ought to cut down all the big salaries, includin te President and Members of Congress. The President could live on fifty thousand dollars a year, and Congressmen could eke out an existence on less than ten thousand a year. There is a lot of people in this country that is livin on less. Yes sir, economy in government is a big issue.

Mr. Hoover wuz askin the other day fer authority to consolidate departments and bureaus. Well, he has had that authority fer three years and he ain't done notin about it yet. Let the democrats git in there and make a real issue of this and then see that they live up to their promises.

The tariff ain't much of an issue any more, fer all the important countries in Europe as gone high tariff. But we could let ours down some. It is too high in some places. It won't make no difference what the republicans promise to do about the tariff, they won't do nothin but raise it higher if they can (with the help of some democrats).

Any good democrat can beat Hoover if he will run on a platform that ain't all licker. He'll have to promise the people of this country that he will settle these big problems that affect the pocketbooks of the millions of our people that is sufferin from lack of work, high taxes, and low prices fer what they produce. If these questions ain't solved we might as well let Hoover go on till he bankrupts the people entirely. If Mr. Ritchie is goin to do something fer the poor people of this country, I'm fer him strong; but if he ain't, I'd jest as soon have anybody else.

Yours truly,

JOSIAH ALLEN WEATHERBY.

(Not for boys and girls under eighten years of age.)

Do you remember when the paved road was built on Queen street between High St. and Maple Ave? If you do, compare the time it took and the number of people employed, with the time and people employed in the building of Cross St.

When the Queen St. road was built, the work was all done by hand labor. A large group of Italians were brought here and the grading was all done with pick, shovel and wheel-barrow.

The building of the road on Cross street has taken a very short time and has not employed much labor. They have up-to-date equipment that takes the place of labor. No wonder we have the unemployed with us.

The old argument that it takes labor to build the machinery, is out. At the present time the manufacture of machinery is done as efficiently as the roads are built. Machinery is built by machinery. Too much efficiency has caused the unemployment.

Bunk magazine is reprinting an advertisement which the Budweiser Beer Co. had in 1908. The advertisement told of how many people their company employed and how many bushels of grain they used etc. Bunk's only comment was that if that number of people were employed in the manufacture of beer in 1908, think of the number that would be employed today on account of the increase in population, since 1908.

Bunk's comment is bunk. Present day efficient management and machinery would see that the employment did not increase in the same ratio as the population. In fact it would probably be less.

The Wets, now are as bad as the Drys were.

The Drys promised us abolishment of jails and that there would be no poor people. The only difference repeal would make, would be to stop wasting money trying to enforce the present law and also a lot of money might be collected in taxes. Lets also hope the quality of liquors would be improved.

Other than this the Wets arguments are as feeble as the Drys.

This week we take up the tax burden. The government has been very considerate of the little fellow and there is no one so little that they do not pay a direct tax. The government was kind not to remind us in our years of prosperity that they were over spending their income. They were afraid it might bother us.

Now in this year of "continued prosperity," when we have a lot to worry about anyhow, they are going to allow us to fork over; putting all our troubles together.

The government has also entered the business world. They do not want private business to be overworked; so they are competing on an unfair basis with private owned business. It's just fine. If the government printing office goes in the hold, the tax payers are called upon to put them on their feet. Who pulls a private owned printing plant out of the hole? The government has entered the business world and has failed. If the people have to support the government, get the government out of the cut-rate business, and give the tax-payers a chance to pay.

Maryland gave Ritchie a big send off to the Democratic convention. Not being a politician, I do not know just what chance he has. From the newspapers, it can be easily seen, that Al Smith and McAdoo are not going to be nice to Roosevelt. If they block Roosevelt, Ritchie may have a chance.

Maryland delegation is pledged to Ritchie, so the thing that we would suggest that Ritchie do, is to keep out of the mess until they are forced to pick a compromise candidate. Ritchie looks like the ideal man for this pick. He is a strong advocate of "States Rights" which should appeal to the South. His stand on prohibition and business should appeal to the North and it is said, that he would have as much following as any democratic candidate in the West.

So, the thing we would suggest to our Governor is to let "George" do the blocking of the Roosevelt nomination. There will be plenty of them at the convention for the purpose.

Next week we will know which expression to use, "Sucked In" or "Taken For A Ride," when talking about anybody who lost a bet on the Sharkey-Schmelling fight.
