Chestertown lost to Cecilton at Cecilton last Saturday by the narrow margin of one run in a pitcher's duel when R. Wheat and Craig each allowed only 5 hits. The Chestertown team could not overcome Cecilton's two run lead which they got in the second inning. E. Wheat accounted for two of Chestertown's five hits while Boulden for Cecilton owned three of his team's five hits, one of which was a three bagger.

BURNED IN GASOLINE FIRE

Paul Ryckman was badly burned about the body when a can of gasoline in which he was washing his hands caught fire on Monday evening of this week. Ryckman, who is a painter had been doing some work in the garage in the rear of his father's home on south Queen street and while washing up the gasoline caught fire.

The local fire company was called and the fire quickly extinguished. No damage was done to the building.

Prohibition Enforcement Officers CaClahan and Windsor, accompanied by six Special Prohibition Officers, participated in one of the biggest raids ever staged on the Eastern Shore. Eleven persons were caught in the dry net, and nine different places of business were raided in Worcester county.

Those from Kent County who have been attending the C. M. T. C. camps returned home this week.

The Curbstone Diplomat

WILLIAM S. COLLINS

There has been much talk about the chasing of the veterans out of Washington. Below is the story of a Kent Countain, who wrote it as he saw it. I take this opportunity to thank him for the contribution.

No "chicken in every pot" and to add insult to injury, Mr. Hoover's army had even taken the pots away.

In the Anacostia section of Washington, the pitiful remains of what the bonus boys called homes, recall the reign of terror when soldiers drove before their bayonets, men, women and children choking with gas.

Charred wood, scraps of tin old iron, bedsteads, here and there a pair of unburned children's stockings. The remains of a makeshift medical center. The seats of the gospel tent remaining—crude boards on stakes. The piano only a twisted metal frame. An unburned hymn book. The partly burned sign from over the entrance with. "God is Love" still showing. A recreation center a few checker boards fastened to a table top.

In another part of the camp, some wall board signs: "Black List of Wall Street Senators" with names and states (often misspeled) Here a sign: "Al Capone Soup Line." Another sign: "Put Donations for Tobacco Here. Thanks and Good Luck."

People of Washington salvaging old cooking utensils and other odds and ends.

The Mayor of Johnstown had visions of bursting into fame hit him—He did.

District police escorted Vets to the Maryland line and Maryland police met them and herded them by roadsides until state and county trucks could haul them across to Pennsylvania.

Wearily the boys sat in a daze until they were loaded and carried away.

Here a family of father, a skeleton of a wife, and five starved children attempted supper with a piece of baloney, A bystander contributed money for milk.

One veteran proudly exhibited a bayonet cut on his hand. Another burns where he had grabbed a tear gas bomb and thrown it back.

They had their stories: "We are coming back and give them a dose of their own medicine."

"What makes me sore was having them boys scouts chase us out." —and so on.

Then Johnston—followed by Governor Ritchie's very sensible decision to discourage a camp in Maryland.

Who asked them to the party? When it was over why didn't the Vets go home—did they have homes or are they just vagrants? Was Mr. Hoover polite to send the guests home? What would Lincoln have done?

Summing it all up: Somebody blundered.

Are we easy? Is the Public Service Commission worthy of existance?

Our mails are crowded with propaganda about how well private owned utilities supply the needs. These private owned utilities are protected by law so that they have a monopoly.

In Chestertown we have a public owned water system. We have a very good quality water and get good service at a reasonable rate. The system is getting pretty well worn and we have been bothered several times this year with the water being shut off.

However we have plenty of water and plenty of pressure.

Our Electric Light Company which is private owned gives us uninterrupted service. We have plenty of electricity of the "Jump-jack" variety. Up she goes and down she comes. At that it answers our needs very well.

But boy, this Gas Company is the one that has us down. Its lungs are too weak to stand the gaff and its breath is bad. Often times the quality is not so hot and the pressure low.

The complaint about pressure was made some time ago. We are promised a booster pump. What we got was a load of junk on top the gas tank. It helped at that.

Somebody kicked about the price. A representative of the company came to Chestertown and meet with members of a civic organization and told them the price could not be reduced.

He must have left here with a smile, thinking, "My them countrymen was easy" and probably got a smack on the back from the big boys when he got to headquarters with a remark, "Thats the boy Charlie, this company needs more men like you."

Whether the gas company can reduce prices or not we are not prepared to say. We would like to see them, of their own accord, or else have the Public Service get after them and have a couple of more bricks thrown up on top the tank, or anything else to get more pressure.

BETTERTON

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Sykes, of Baltimore, are occupying Mr. Littleton Crew's bungalow at Betterton for the summer season.

On Sunday last two chartered boats brought a Jewish excursion to Betterton for the day. The officials of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad were entertained at the Royal Swan Hotel. Church Hill and Prices Methodist Sunday Schools held their picnic here on Tuesday. An old fashioned square dance was held at Owens' Pier on Friday night and the Wednesday evening German and Childrens' carnival add to the entertainment of the guests.

Mr. Walter Stone, Jr., has gone to Friendship, Maryland, where he is filling the pulpit of the Methodist church there until October when he will return to Western Maryland Theological School where he is studying.

Mr. Jack Duyer is building a new home near the school house here.

Mr. Ray Silcox has been quite sick at the home of his sister, Mrs. John Crew. Mr. Silcox is now improving.

Miss Anna Hamilton and nephew, Duvall, of Philadelphia, are the guests of Mrs. John Crew.

Mr. and Mrs. Wells Fisher and children, of Baltimore, spent the week with Mr. and Mrs. Herman Crew.

Miss Bessie Jett Cain and Miss Sarah Harris both students at Johns Hopkins Summer School were the week end guests of Mrs. Evelyn Harris.

Mr. Charles Conwell found a wedding ring that had been lost by Mrs. Medford Crew, twenty-five years ago in the yard. Mrs. Crew who is now a resident of Philadelphia was a guest in Betterton when the ring was found and returned to her.

Mr. and Mrs. Littleton Crew, Jr., of Baltimore, were the week end guests of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Littleton Crew.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Elliott, of Philadelphia, are visiting Mrs. Florence Workman.
