MRS. F. D. ROOSEVELT BECOMES EDITOR

AID TO MOTHERS STRESSED

"BABIES, JUST BABIES," TO BE PUBLISHED BY MACFADDEN, INCLUDES FICTION AND GENERAL ARTICLES

The first issue of "Babies; Just Babies," a new magazine edited by Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the Democratic Presidential nominee, and her daughter, Mrs. Curtis B. Doll and devoted exclusively to the interests of young mothers, will be released on Sept. 15, Mrs. Roosevelt announced at her town house, 49 East Sixty-fifth Street.

Mrs. Roosvelt and her daughter will be in full charge of the editorial department of the magazine. The business end will be handled by representatives of the publisher, Bernard Macfadden. The magazine will have a national circulation.

Mrs. Roosevelt declared that in her travels through the country she had noticed many young mothers without sufficient knowledge of caring for their babies. Feeling that educational material supplied by a magazine such as "Babies; Just Babies," would do much to help these mothers, Mrs. Roosevelt accepted Mr. Macfadden's offer.

While the publication will consist mostly of articles on the feeding and care of children from birth to five years of age fiction and human interest articles also will be included.

Mrs. Roosevelt said that she and Mrs. Dail already are examining material submitted or the first issue, and are setting aside that part of it best suited for publication. One of the articles tentatively planned for inclusion in the initial number is called "Bachelor Motherhood," It was written by Crosby Gaige, the atrical producer, and concerns his experiences in raising an adopted son.

Shepherd Butler, an official of the Macfadden Publishing Company who is to act as an editorial adviser, was familiar with Mrs. Rosevelt's literary ability from articles written by her for his and other publications and with her editorial ability from her work as a former editor of the "Woman's Democratic News." Mrs. Roosevelt's interest in child welfare work also was well-known to Mr. Macfadden, he declared.

For six years prior to her husband's election as Governor of New York State, Mrs. Roosevelt served as editor of the Woman's Democratic news. This is a monthly miniature newspaper published by the women's division of the Democratic State Committee. It was founded in 1923 by Mrs. Roosevelt, Miss Nancy Cook, executive secretary of the women's division of the State committee, and Miss Marion Dickerman, principal of the Todhunter School in New York, in which Mrs. Roosevelt owns a part interest and also teaches several classes. The paper has a statewide circulation of about 5,000 copies.

Mrs. Daniel O'Day, vice chairman of the Democratic State Committee in charge of women's activities, succeeded Mrs. Roosevelt as editor of the News in 1929. Mrs. Roosevlt, however, is still an associate editor of the publication and a regular contributor.

Girls Share Jobs

The Manhattan Industrial High School for Girls, New York city, is carrying out a new cooperative placement plan. After pupils have taken the regular trade instruction for a full year they are formed into teams of two who share one job, each working a week while the other attends school. This means that the school course will take three years instead of two, at the completion of which most of the pupils will be 17 years old and much more easily placed than a younger age.—U. S. Chidren's Bureau, Washington, D. C.

Toilet Hints

To Shampoo

When shampooing the hair, remember the liquid or jelly shampoos are far better than the soap in bar form. It is simple enough to shave and melt a medium-sized bar of soap over a slow fire (in a pint of water). As soon as the soap is dissolved it may be strained through two layers of cheesecloth and be allowed to cool before using. The excess may be poured into a clean glass container and alowed to jell. When the jelly is used it should be mixed with warm water and the lather worked up in the palm of the hand before it is applied to the hair.

Of course, thorough rinsing is the most important part of the shampoo. The vinegar rinse following the shampoo will help to cut the soap curds. If the hair is light, pure castile soap is good to use. For dark hair either tar soap or tincture of green soap.

LA MODE

Skirt lengths fall in three classes; daytime, on an average of ten inches from the floor; late afternoon, ankle length; evening, floor length, sometimes dipping a bit toward the back. A few whimsical trains are seen.

The waistline shows a tendency to rise above normal, particularly for formal occasions, when it plays at being princess or follows the dictum of the Directorate, which lifts it to unnatural heights.

The color program places black in the lead. It is preferably brightened by white accents, in fur (ermine), lace or fine embroideries. The whole scale of reds is a close second to black, ranging from purplish-fuschia to orange-flame. Greens and browns hold their own in the Fall spectrum.

Sleeves are something to dream about. They balloon and puff in the most accepted Victorian manner, or cling and taper on more classic lines. Some descend well over the hands. Whatever they do they command attention.

Necklines continue to rise with fashion's tide. In daytime frocks they mount to the collarbone. Many a smart dress ha a trick arrangement that permits of wearing the neckline high or low. While the grand decolletage for evening still hods the centre of the stage, many gowns are carried close to the throat in front.

RECIPES

Mayonnaise Dressing

In a basin put the yolks of two raw eggs and season them with salt, a little cayenne pepper, an inch of English mustard and a dash of Worcestershire sauce. Gradually pour over the yolks two scant tablespoons of vinegar, whisking the mixture brisky all the while. When the vinegar is absorbed, add a cup of olive oil, letting the oil trickle down in a thread, constantly stirring the sauce meanwhile. Finish by adding one tablespoonful of lemon juice and one of boiling water. Mayonnaise should be served very cold.

French Fried Eggplant

(Department of Agriculture)

A deep fat frying kettle is necessary to make the fried eggplant that one is given in a hotel or restaurant. Otherwise this delicious way of preparing eggplant is not difficult. The old-fashioned idea that the eggplant had to be soaked several hours in salt water is no longer accepted. However, for most deep fat frying, the food is first coated with egg and bread crumbs, and time allowed for this coating to dry. The following directions are supplied by the Department of Agriculture:

French Fried Eggplant

1 medium-sized eggplant
1 egg
1 tablespoon water
1-4 teaspoon salt
Fine dry grated bread crumbs
Fat for deep frying

Pare the eggplant and cut it in strips about 1-2 inch thick and 3 inches long. Beat the egg slightly, add the water and the salt. Dip the pieces of eggplant into the beaten egg and then roll each piece in the bread crumbs and It the strips stand an hour or longer to dry the coating. Heat the fat in a deep vessel to about 365 degrees F and cook the eggplant about 5 minutes or until golden brown. Drain the egg plant on paper and serve hot.

Orange Bread Pudding

1 cupful bread crumbs
2 cupfuls scalded milk
1-3 cupful Sugar
2 tablespoonfuls butter
2 eggs
2 tablespoonfuls sugar
2 oranges (juice and grated rind)

Add the bread crumbs and butter to the scalded milk and soak for 30 minutes; then add the egg yolks, beaten with the 1-3 cupful of sugar, and the orange juice.

KENT FREE OF HOG GHOLERA

NO OUTBREAKS REPORTED DURING JULY

No hog cholera was reported in Kent County during the month of July and if local farmers can maintain this record it will be a big help during the coming winter. While there is very little hog raising on an extensive scale in the county, very few farmers are not in the business on a small scale, and while the cash income from this crop is not large a great deal of dependance is put in the meat for food during the year. Every effort that is made to keep the hog cholera record clean will be justified.

In the 17 outbreaks reported in the State during July, 241 hogs were involved. Thirty, or approximately 12 per cent. were dead, and 34, or approximately 14 per cent, were sick before the outbreaks were reported. Of the 241 hogs involved in the outbreaks, approximately 70 per cent. were in garbage feeding plants.

Of the 17 outbreaks reported, 12 were in herds of 9 hogs or less, 3 were in herd of 10 to 14, and 2 were in herds of 50 and over.

More than 3,000 years ago, Moses stated most of the basic sanitary laws by which we today prevent and control the spread of disease. It is doubtful if Moses would have recognized a microbe if one came up and spoke to him. However, it was apparent that if the sick came in contact with others, often the illness was spread. Even the materials used or contaminated were found to be a source of danger. Read Deutoronomy and Leviticus for a detailed account of the methods of disease control before the Christian era, and hundreds of years before microscopes and microbes were dreamed of.

In the last 50 years, the discovery of many valuable vaccines, serums and other biologics has partly blinded us to the idea that these products, essentially are merely aids to sanitation and are not in themselves an answer to our problems. Maryland stockmen do not hesitate to use these aids in the control of hog cholera—our most costly swine disease—when it is necessary. But the majority have learned that feeding cholera—infected bones, rinds, and scraps of pork in the kitchen refuse is responsible for about 85 per cent. of the outbreaks, and that new stock and sick, roving hogs cause about 10 er cent. Proper feeding and proper fencing constitute prevention of most cholera outbreaks here and permit pork profits.

SHOPPING JEFFERSONS'

This, dears, is Regatta Week. And don't, I beg of you, crush me with the reply, "What of it?" or "And so what?" When Chestertown stages anything so smart and fashionable as a real honest-to-goodness Regatta, you good citizens should put your chins a little higher, lean on the visiting yachtsmen and dress up for the occasion! Aha! You knew I'd drag that in, didn't you?

Well, I mean it. There's just time before the celebrations begin to do something about a new dress,—and without going to Baltimore, too.

Take those filmy, cool chiffon dresses at Jefferson's—you'd be so easy on the eyes of the visitors in one of those flowery things,—and it'll set you back only $3.85. And those grand creamy beige slippers to go with it, reduced from $6 to $1.98.

Besides the chiffon specials there are some heavenly silk prints, and triple sheers, guaranteed to take ten years off your age—(not recommended for twenty-year-olds!)

Or for watching the races by day, or visiting the yachts at anchor or just putting on the dog around town, haste thee, nymph, and clutch one of the last of the imported hand made linen frocks. Such colors, such handwork, such—oh, well, anyhow they're swell and only $1.98!

H is for hats in this Nursery Rhyme. Every one of Jefferson's hats on Sale for SIXTY NINE CENTS. And if your eyes are sharp you'll find some beauties midst the crowd.

And do go down and look at the thin materials in Jefferson's window. So soft and sheer and colorful. Reduced to 19c a yard.

Oh say! If the printer does right by me this time, I'll mention again those gorgeous scarfs. You will want one or two surely this week.
