RURAL ROUTE CHANGES

Herbert Matthews Is Transferred

Postmaster William G. Smyth has been notified of the elimination of Rural Route 6 out of Chestertown, the transfer of Herbert Matthews and his substitute, Carl Graham, of that route, to Rural Route 1 and a re-division of five remaining routes in Kent among the four remaining carriers.

Postmaster Smyth will visit Washington tomorrow in an attempt to seek an adjustment in the re-alignment of the Kent routes to avoid what seems to be several needless shifts.

It was understood, following the retirement of David B. Kendall from Route 1, after more than 30 years of service, that there would be a consolidation of the routes, dividing the territory among five remaining carriers.

The shift of Mr. Matthews to Route 1, which goes into Queen Anne's county, is permanent. The re-alignment has not gone into effect, as yet, since Postmaster Smyth hopes to have the situation straightened out.

FIRE COMPANY BAND WINS

The Chestertown Volunteer Fire Company band won the prize for being the best band at the Easton Fire Company parade on Wednesday of this week. There was plenty of competition as it was one of Easton's largest parades and a record breaking crowd was at the carnival.

OPENING PRICE $8 PER TON

The Kennedyville Corn Cannery started operating on Tuesday of this week and 1100 cases of corn were canned on the opening day.

The price paid for the corn this week was $8 per ton as against $12 last year and $15 in 1930.

The sugar corn crop in that section is reported to be fair considering the lack of rain. Kennedyville is one of the sections in the county that is suffering heavily for the lack of rain.

"MISS PINKERTON"

You may not notice it when you see "Miss Pinkerton" at the New Lyceum, Wednesday and Thursday, August 24 and 25, but the most natural bit of acting in the picture was accomplished by Joan Blondell while she was unconscious.

On the second day of shooting on this, her first starring picture for Warner Bros., the scene called for Joan, playing a trained nurse, to be fast asleep in a cot at the foot of her patient's bed.

The day before had been a grueling one, and Joan had also put in the entire evening going over her script and memorizing her lines. When she came down to work in the morning she confessed that another three hours in bed would have worked wonders.

But she went right into the scene, consisting of Joan being apparently asleep while her patient stealthily creeps out of bed and disappears.

Joan stuck to her role throughout and in between four takes—but it took the director, Lloyd Bacon, and his assistant to awaken her when it was all over.

NOW AND THEN

Have you been on the bridge these nights to see the falling stars? It is true that the moon shines so brightly that one cannot see them very plainly, but they are falling just the same. In Missouri, they have fallen as many as twenty or thirty an hour. Scientists will have an excellent chance to study these meteors. They are supposed to be the star dust from Tuttle's comet which is thought to have exploded in 1862.

Just think of it having taken seventy years to reach the earth! No wonder that, when gazing at the heavens, the psalmist exclaimed, "When I consider thy heavens, the work of thy hands; the moon and stars which thou has made; what is man, that thou art mindful of him, and the Son of man that thou visiteth him?))

If Addison had written nothing else he would be remembered for the following ode:

The spacious firmament on high,
With all the blue ethereal sky,
And spangled heavens, a shining frame,
Their great Original proclaim.
The anwearied Sun from day to day
Does his Creator's power display;
And publishes, to every land,
The work of an almighty hand.

Soon as the evening shades prevail,
The Moon takes up the wonderous tale;
And nightly, to the listening Earth,
Repeats the story of her birth:

Whilst all the stars that round her burn,
And all the planets, in their turn,
Confirm the tidings as they roll,
And spread the truth from pole to pole.

What though, in solemn silence, all
Move round the dark terrestrial ball:
What though no real voice, nor sound
Amidst their radient orbs be found:
In reason's ear they all rejoice,
And utter forth a glorious voice;
For ever singing as they shine:
"The hand that made us is divine."

Joseph Addison, 1672-1709.

Children are very quick to catch the spirit of their elders. One little girl sometime ago said, very sadly: "No camp for me this year 'cause there is depression."

A small boy, who had gone to school for a week, and was charmed with it, came home on Friday, in angry mood: "Gosh, he said, "if they haven't laid me off for two days a week."

She had so much to say that those around her could only listen. Having a tooth ache, she went to the dentist. "Did your wife have an X Ray picture taken of her jaw?" asked a friend of her husband. I don't know he replied, but if she did it must have been a moving picture.

In vain have the politicians tried to get Calvin Coolidge into the limelight again. He is content to write articles at one dollar a word and sell insurance. When urged to speak for Hoover he declines for he says he has hay fever. Someone at an insurance meeting has described him thus:

Before the throng
He stands again,
One of those strong
And silent men,
Less chatty, far,
Than a granite boulder,
And smokes a cigar
In a long white holder.

Ye of profound
Vocal endurance
Who talk us around
To life insurance,
I twang the lute
With glad relief
In praise of your mute
And glorious chief."

CHESTER RIVER REGATTA

NORTH-EAST WIND BLOWS BUT NO STORM. ONE CUP WON PERMANENTLY

With a stiff breeze blowing for the Bay Race on Friday, fine weather continued throughout the regatta.

At the start of the race the wind was rather light. The "High Tide", took a long tack down the bay while the competing boats were taking short tacks and working toward the first buoy off Swan Point. The wind increased and shifted a little to westward which enabled the High Tide to make a long run up the bay and round the first buoy without making another tack. She beat her nearest competitor around the first buoy by nine and a half minutes, gaining five more minutes on the other two legs of the race. The High Tide is owned and sailed by Mr. Eugene du Pont, of Kent County and Wilmington, Delaware.

The Jay Dee and Flying Cloud, both square sterned Chesapeake Bay log sailing canoes, places second and third respectively. and the race between these two canoes was an interesting race in itself.

The star Boat race was close and exciting with Miss Patsey Raskob winning in her boat, "The Ripple."

Friday's program was concluded with the free-for-all sailing handicap from Love Point wharf to Spaniards Point which was won by The Elusive, owned by A. Wood, of Beach Haven New Jersey. A dance was held at the Club House that night.

Mystery Out Of Race

Saturday's program opened with the spectacular Chesapeake Bay log sailing canoe race which started at 9.30 a. m.. The big disappointment of this race was the failure of the Mystery, the newly constructed double ended canoe from Oxford, to start. Just before the start the Mystery sailed up the river toward the bridge and had not returned when the starting gun was fired. It was later reported that on the practice run up the river the boom on the forsail broke and the time was too short to rig another sail. A message sent to ask that the race be postponed until a new sail could be rigged, did not reach the committee until after the race was started. This race was won by the Mayflower, owned by Mr. Howard B. Strong, of Chestertown with the Bell M. Crain taking second place.

Cup Won Permanently

Miss Josephine Raskob won the the trophy presented by the Pioneer Point Farm employees for the third consecutive time in the Ladies 110 H. P. Stock Runabouts event This gives permanent possession of this cup.

cup and is the first cup to be won permanently at a Chester River Regatta.

Hold Lucky Number Race

The free for all handicap sailboat race, run similar to the Lewis class system in trap shooting events, caused quite a bit of comment. The winner was declared by drawing a number from the box and the boat that placed in the race corresponding to the number drawn, was declared winner.

Dances Are Populad

The dances held at the Club House Friday and Saturday evenings were well attended. The music was furnished by Freddy Fetter's orchestra for the two evenings and brought much favorable comment.
