Thursday was "home coming day" for the island town of Tangier, Va. Hundreds of former residents went to go aboard boats here for the 12-mile trip down the Chesapeake Bay for the day's festivities. The town is unique—it has no automobiles, no horses, no wagons and only one street. Visitors have dubbed it the "pedestrians paradise."

DRIVE AGAINST OBSCURED LICENSES

The following information was received this week from the office of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles:

An intensive drive, which began August 1, against dirty, disfigured, obscured, swinging and poorly-lighted license tags will be continued indefinitely, according to Col. E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

"Reports of the State Police show that during the week of August 1 several hundred motorists were stopped and warned about tags," the Commissioner said.

"The situation has reached a point where it cannot be corrected by a mere warning—plenalty will be more effectual.

"This campaign is for the strict enforcement of the law governing the display of license tags.

"I am reminding all motorists that the fines provided for such cases range from $10 to $100."

In the Circuit Court for Kent County
In Equity No. 2762

The object of the Bill filed in the above entitled case is to procure a decree for the sale of the real estate therein mentioned and for the distribution of the proceeds thereof to those entitled.

The Bill states:

1. That Emma A. Carey who later married and became Emma A. Crittendon, was in her life time and at the time of her death, seized and possessed in fee simple of the following real estate situated in Kent County, Maryland.

All that lot, piece or parcel of ground situated in or near the village of Chesterville in Kent County, Maryand, upon the southern side of the public road or street leading through said village to Urieville from Millington, and adjoining the lot purchased by John A. Schwatka of William T. Spry, and which is described as follows: Beginning at a point in the center of said public road or street being also the point where the northwest corner of the said Schwatka lot is located and running thence with the third line of said Schwatka lot reversed by magnetic bearings south twenty and a quarter degrees west nine perches and ninety six hundredths of a perch to a stone on the said Spry lands; thence with said Spry lands the two following courses and distances North sixty nine and a quarter degrees west twenty four and fifty two hundredths of a perch and north twenty and a quarter degrees east nine perches and sixty two hundredths of a perch to the center of said public road, then with the said public road reversed south sixty nine and three quarters degrees east twenty four perches and five hundredths of a perch to the place of beginning containing one and one half acres of land more or less, being the same tract of land conveyed to the said Emma A. Carey by Henry C. Layman, et al., by deed dated October 3, 1887, and recorded among the Land Record Books for Kent County, Maryland, in Liber S. B. No. 10, folio 143 etc., a certified copy of which deed is filed herewith and marked Exhibit A.

2. That the said Emma A. Crittendon being possessed of the above real estate departed this life on May 26, 1930, testate, leaving the above described real estate to her brother, Thomas Burris in trust during his life time, and at his death to Nora Bedell, the heirs of her brother, Charlie Burris, and her brother, John D. Burris, and certified copy of said will is filed herewith and marked Exhibit B.

3. That Nora Bedell whose husband is W. James Bedell resides in Darby, Pennsylvania. That John D. Burris whose wife is Beulah Burris resides in Kent County, Maryland. Burris with his wife, Evelyn Burris, resides in Wilmington, Delaware; and Clifton A. Burris, a son and his wife, Ruth D. Burris, reside in Wilmington, Delaware; Ebbie Cooling, a daughter and her husband, E. Nelson Cooling, reside in Cecil County, Maryland. That a daughter, Cadie V. Becht and her husband, Frederick Becht, reside in West Philadelphia, Pennsylvania. All of said parties are over 21 years of age.

4. That the said Thomas Burris departed this life on November 4, 1930, in Kent County, Maryland.

5. That said real estate under said will is now the property of the said Nora Bedell, W. James Bedell, John D. Burris, Beulah Burris and the heirs of Charley Burris as above set forth.

6. That the said real estate is not susceptible of partition without material loss and injury to the parties entitled to an interest therein as above stated, and that, in order to make division of said interest, it will be necessary that the said real estate be sold, and the proceeds thereof divided among the parties according to their several interests.

It is thereupon, this 1st day of August, 1932, ordered by the Circuit Court for Kent County, in Equity, that the plaintiffs, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said Kent County, once in each of four successive weeks before the 5th day of September next, give notice to the said Nora Bedell and W. James Bedell, non-resident defendants, warning them to appear in this Court in person, or by Solicitor, on or before the 19th day of September next to show cause, if any they have, why a Decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

Imaginary Ill Health Refuge From Boredom?

It is a curious fact that there are more health pessimists among the well-to-do than among the poor and among those who work hard for a good living, Ruth F. Wadsworth, M. D., remarks in Collier's Weekly. You need time and money and an otherwise care-free mind to worry about what is going to happen to your health next.

The wage-earner has a certain amount of indefinite dread of illness at the back of his mind because he knows illness is expensive and disabling. But it never occurs to him to read medical treatises in order that he may think up some interesting disease which may hit him.

I sometimes think persons turn to the possibility of disease as a refuge from boredom. At first the idea is a fascinating one, but suddenly they are hoist by their own petard. The idea becomes an obsession and they really feel sick.

Living becomes an expensive affair. They go the round of the specialists and sanitariums, trying to find some one who will give them a positive and dire diagnosis. Often an unnecessary operation will effect a cure. Any operation is painful enough to jolt one out of imaginary ills.

Camel Compels Tribute From Desert Traveler

Unlovely, striking, ill natured brutes are camels, but withal the finest pack animals in the world, and the only one capable of surviving in a wilderness of thorn bush, sand and relentless sun.

You never come to feel the slightest affection for a camel. But after a hard trip through a difficult country, a country that would kill a beautiful horse in a week and a tough mule in two, you are astonished to find your camels thriving, actually putting on flesh on a diet of thorns in heat almost unbearable to a white man.

You watch them curiously at their slow, unhurried pace, carrying their 350 pounds, never stumbling, never shying and never showing the slightest need for that precious commodity, water. And at the finish of the trip you feel like taking off your sun helmet every time you meet a camel.—James F. Baumj in Atlantic Monthly.

The Peony in Medicine

A pharmacist, whose fussy solicitude for peonies stirs the gardener in our make-up, told us that, once upon a time, all doctors were called paeoni. The plants they used as medicine were called paeonine. It's all because the peony was the first medical plant known. The Greeks, he went on, had a high regard for the common garden variety of peony as an antispasmodic. Mongolians, to this day, have a kitchen habit of using the root of the white peony in their soups; grind the seeds to mix with their tea—another observation muffed by the lady of "The Good Earth." Modern physicians don't think much of the peony's medicinal properties, are content to let it serve as a memorial flower.—Indianapolis News.

House Ventilation

While air-conditioning, with its present application in home construction, only recently has become a part of the general public consciousness, its beginnings may be traced back to the earliest dwellers in caves, tents and primitive shelters, who dug holes in walls and roofs to supply ventilation, says an authority. He opines that as civilization advanced, "the first recognition of the need of fresh air came from the necessity of securing a supply of fresh air in mines." Henceforth, he says, attention was given to the necessity of ventilation independent of heating.

Early Encyclopedias

Pliny's "Natural History" was notable of the encyclopedias of antiquity. It retained its popularity through the Middle ages and was the source of much information in medieval compilations, one of which was the "Etymologies of St. Isadore" (Ca. 560-636). Two centuries later Rabanus Maurus published his "Concerning the Universe," which was largely a condensation of Isadore. The greatest of medieval encyclopedias was the "Speculum Majus" of Vincent of Bauvais, chaplain and librarian of Louis IX of France.

No Solvent for Wood

The United States forests products laboratory says that there is no general solvent for wod, due to the fact that wood is composed of many materials, all of which have different properties. The lignin contained in the wood can be dissolved either in alkali or in acid sulphate solution. Neither of these reagents, however, affects cellulose, which is soluble in concentrated acids, cupramonium solution, and a few other solvents. None of these cellulose solvents dissolves lignin.

Determing Truth

"Truth," wrote the late Sir William Bayliss, "is more likely to come out of error, if this is clear and definite, than out of confusion, and my experience teaches me that it is better to hold a well-understood and intelligible opinion, even if it should turn out to be wrong, than to be content with a muddle-headed mixture of conflicting views, sometimes called impartiality, and often no better than no opinion at all."
