BY A WOMAN

ST. HILDA

It is very gratifying to women to know that among the long line of saints and martyrs there is found now and then a woman, for, though there might have been many of them, her secluded position kept her from the public eye. Sometime ago I wrote about St. Cecilia who did so much to establish good music and through her the organ was invented.

St. Hilda spent her life in educating the masses of ignorant people in those early days when so few knew how to read so they spent much of their time in drinking and carousing. She was born in the year 614, the daughter of Hereric who was nephew of Edwin the king of Northumbria. In those early days the seven different kingdoms of England were constantly at war and her childhood was darkened by the wars that rent Northumbria. She was possessed of a very bright mind and she felt impeled to help those around her to better lives by educating them, so she determined to go to France to prepare her self for that work, but when the bishop heard of this he sent for her and placed her as abbess of the monasary at Hartlepool where she introduced order and discipline. She became pre eminent in the field of education and discipline, and kings and bishops came to consult her about their problems. When Oswy, the king of Northumbria gained the victory over the Mercians, St. Hilda was quick to take advantage of his promise to give certain farms to the monatery which was called Whitby.

It was most beautifully situated, looking out upon the sea, and St. Hilda, not only ruled over this large establishment of learning but she cared for all the vassels and their families around.

There was one among these, a cow herd named Caedman very ignorant and uneducated but he had rare natural gifts which no oone suspected. When he attended the carousals so dear to the beer drinkiing Saxons, he would always retire when the ballads were sung and the harps were handed around.

One evening as he was lying among the cows, half asleep he seemed to hear a voice saying "Sing me something," "How can I sing?" said poor Caedmon," I have just left the feast because I cannot sing."

But the voice said again "Sing" What shall I sing" sked Caedmon "Sing the story of the world's birth."

Then somehow an inspiration came to him and in the night, amid the cows, he raised his voice and began to put into rude verse the story of the Creation. It was very rugged, but very fresh and welled up from his heart. In the morning, he thought over the words he had composed and during the day sang them to those around him. Someone went and told St. Hilda. so she sent for Coad on and he recited his poem to her. She recognized at once, the innate genius of the poor cowherd so she took him into her house and bade him spend his time in composing for she saw by the talent of the rude poet, means for teaching the people, the Gospel story. So he put the Bible into poetry and sang to them while playing on his harp. So it it through St. Hilda's wisdom that Caedmon was the first of the early English composers. Although St. Hilda was an earnest Christian, she was tolerant of the views of others and thereby increased her influence far and near. In the latter part of her life she suffered from an incurable malady yet to the end she carried on bravely—She died in 680 at the age of 53 years.

Few have accomplished as much in the short time alloted her, and her memory has gone down through the ages, Many girl's schools are named for her nd there are few large institution of learning that have not a Whitby Hall in memory of that early monastery over which she presided so well.

SAY IT NOW

Say a word for an effort made or a result accomplished! At home, at work, or elsewhere, the one who scatters words or praise helps to keep the world moving forward and men to reach the goal to which they set out. A word of praise to the struggling man is a friendly hand behind the back of a man climbing life's hill. The road is long, the incline so steep that the least push onward is a help. A word of praise is one of the few things in this world of which we can possess more in proportion to the amount we give away. Let us not be stingy in our passing out of kindly words.

LA MODE

Sporting

What's all this about femininity Have you seen the new B. V. D.'s for women? In English broadcloth—just like your brother's, but with adjustable, buttoned belt. Very practical for sports.

The Waist Line

One of the burning questions that is preoccupying style prophets just now is the future location of the waistline. The other day I read articles by two eminent French stylists, one of whom predicted that waistlines would continue to soar; while the other reported that they would drop with unexpected suddenness to a subnormal line. My own hunch is that the waistline will be placed at the natural level, though either a high or low waistline (or both) will often be indicated by the cut or color composition of the frock. This opinion is based upon the fact that Frenchwomen as a whole have not taken up the very high waist, except for evening; besides, it would take a season or two to re-accustom our eyes to really low waistlines.

Light as Air

What is said to be the lightest raincoat in the world is shown by one of the shops. It is made of Japanese silk, can be rolled into a palm of the hand, is sheer, waterproof and contains no rubber. It may be dry cleaned, laundered and even ironed.

Ruffles

Ha, Ha. Well, if you happen to see one of these French ladies in her newest lingerie, you'll laugh, too. The lingerie is all smoothy fitted where bulges would be out of place, but everywhere else it is ruffled and trimmed with ribbon and edged with lace till grandma would eel quite at home iin it.

RECIPES

Spanish Cream

1 tablespoon gelatin.
3 cups milk.
1-2 cup sugar, scant.
3 eggs.
1-4 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.

Soak gelatin in the milk about five minutes. Place over hot water and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Add sugar. Pour slowly on the yolks of the eggs, slightly beaten. Return to double boiler and stir until thick. Remove from stove and add salt and flavoring and fold in whites of eggs, beaten until stiff. Turn into one large or individual molds and place in refrigerator. (This will separate and form a jelly on the bottom and custard on top.) Unmold and serve with whiped cream, sliced oranges or any fruit juice.

Cottage Cheese Ring Salad

1 tablespoon gelatin.
1-4 cup cold water.
2 cups cottage cheese.
3-4 teaspoon salt.
1-8 teaspoon paprika.
1-2 cup cream or milk.
Cut fruit
Mayonnaise
Lettuce

Soak gelatin in cold water about five minutes and dissolve over hot water. Mash cheese very fine, add seasonings, cream and gelatin. Turn into a ring mold and chill. When firm, unmold on a bed of lettuce and fill center with the fruit mixed with mayonnaise.

Rice Bavarian Cream

1 tablespoon gelatin.
1-2 cup cold water
1-4 cup sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 cup cooked rice
1 cup cream or evaporated milk
1 teaspoon vanilla

Soak gelatin in cold water about five minutes and dissolve over hot water. Add to hot cooked rice and sugar, salt and vanilla. Beat well, cool, cool, and when it begins to thicken add whipped cream. Turn into mold or pile in individual glasses. When firm, unmold and serve with fruit or chocolate sauce.

A small dish of charcoal placed in the corner in the refriegrator will absorb all odors. The charcoal should be renewed every two or three weeks.

Children tired of playthings which are always before them. Try storing some of the toys now and bringing them out when their owners begin to complain of having nothing to do on rainy days.

Peonies, chrysanthemums and carnations will last longer as cut flowers if, when they begin to droop, an inch is cut off the stem, and the cut end is plunged into very hot water for a momen; then place them in a vase of fresh cold water.
