FIRE SCHOOL NEXT WEEK

The Third Annual Short Course for Firemen, comprising a three-day program of intensive training in modern fire fighting and fire prevention methods for the firemen of Maryland and nearby states, will be held at the University of Maryland, September 6, 7, 8, under the direction of Dr. A. N. Johnson. Dean of the College of Engineering. Included in the course will be instructions. practical demonstrations and drills in aerial-truck maneuvers, ladder and rescue work, salvage operations, problems in ventilation and fire fighting in frame buildings, electricalwiring problems, use of the gasmask, and the care and use of equipment.

Sherwood Brckwell of Raleigh. N. C., Fire Marshal of the Tarhel State, will be drill master for the third consecutive year. He will be assisted by Chief Edward H. Warr o fthe Baltimore Fire Insurance Salvage Corps; Deputy Chief Howard Travers of the Baltimore Fire Department Training School; O. E. Fearn, Superintendent of Machinery of the District of Columbia Fire Department; Joseph O'Brdien, electrical inspector of the Fire Insurance Underwriters of Baltimore, and G. W. Grove and H. R. Burdelsky, experts from the U. S. Bureau of Mines.

The Fire College at the University of Maryland, which is sponsored by the Maryland State Firemen's Association. is similiar to schools now operating in twenty-eight states, many of them in connection with the engineering departments of the state universities and cooperating with state firemen's associations. Last Fall the Maryland short course was attended by 110 firemen representing fifty-two fire companies in Maryland, Virginia, and North Carolina. Indications point to a much heavier enrollment this year, as each of the 140 member companies of the Maryland association is expecting to be represented, while a number of applications already have been received from neighboring states.

Members of the Fire College committee of the Fire College committee of the Maryland State Firemen's Association cooperating with the University are T. W. Venemann of Riverdale, Chairman; Chief Karl A. Young of Mt. Ranier, and Alfred L. Geiger of Kensington, former president of the Montgomery County Firemen's Association.

Just at a time when we should have been in the middle of the crop. Worcester County peach shipments are about over. Some of the finest peaches ever grown here have ripened on the trees of Worcestr orchards this short season.

NOW AND THEN

THE PARTRIDGE

BY ALICE MATHEWS

Watch who's meeting us today
In the path of setting sun,
As in fright, so swiftly away,
Near the budding cinnamon.
Little nut brown Partridge goes
Toward some graying green repose.
Mark you, how he whirrs the ground.
Is there not a plaintive sound?
In the rush a Partridge knows,
Visions he not Autumn Woes?
Certainly, when all is done,
Bloody beak and booming gun,
That's the dream that brings the quake
To the Partridge in the brake.

I heard a mourning dove this morning. It had reason to mourn for the decree has gone forth that September 1st, is the beginning of the open season for doves and men everywhere will be after them with shot and shell. Poor little dove, ever since the time when we heard of her as the chief mourner for poor dead cock robin in that wonderful book, "Mother Goose Melodies," we have thought of her as mourning, and her gentle coo seems to be calling for help and sympathy. Had we the making of the laws there would be no open season for them.

Well, Chestertown had a fine view of the eclipse. Everywhere around were seen people gazing at the sun through dark glasses. It was surely a wierd sight, the sun being nearly obscured by that dark opaque body, the moon. And yet this same moon will soon, be flooding the heavens with silvery light, borrowed, we know. from the sun. The September moon is one of the most brilliant and it was considered long ago the time for harvesting, so they harvested by the light of the moon.

The Republican leaders are trying to get Theodore Roosevelt to come over from the Phillipines to assure the people that there are Roosevelts and Roosvelts; that his is the only true brand and that they should avoid worthless inmitations.

Rough riders and the big stick belong only to the clan from which he springs.

Poor Franklin spurned by the clan. He never went to Africa to shoot big game, he never discovered the river of Doubt. Quoting from H. I. Phillips, the renowned humorist, he is to say. "We're the Roosevelts—the right ones—
Who are famed as fighting men:
Writers, hunters, Bwano Tumboes,
Rearding lions in their den;
We're Republicans forever
And it stands to reason that
There is something wrong about one
Who could be a Demmycrat!

So, good people, I implore you
As you go to cast your votes
Read the label and make certain
What the trademark there denores;
Heed the patent holder's warning
Which I broadcast through the land
That the Rooseelt caled Franklin
Desn't bearn the "Colonel" brand.
For he's just a distant cousin
(And I'm giving you straight dope)
That we can not even see him
With a great big telescope;
Here's our final word of caution,
For the time is very ripe:
When you want a Roosevelter
GET THE COPYRIGHTED TYPE!"

BOY DROWNS NEAR TOLCHESTER

George M. Erman, 17 years old, of Baltimore, was drowned at 3.15 o'clock Wednesday afternoon while floating on a raft on the Chesapeake Bay, off the Tolchester Estates about a mile and a half above Tolchester.

He with a small boy, John Caldwell were on a lightly constructed raft in about 9 feet of water and the raft tilted throwing Erman, who could not swim, in the water, all efforts made by Caldwell to save his companion were futile and he drowned before further assistance could reach him.

A party composed of G. O. Billmire, of the Tolchester Estates, J. D. Hynson, of Rock Hall, Samuel Elburn, of Tolchester, Steve Kendall, of Rock Hall, and L. Lynch, of Tolchester, searched for the body without success until 10 o'clock that night. A call for assistance was sent to the Coast Guard depot at Curtis bay, and a crew, under command of Lieutenant McCabe recovered the body at 7 a. m. Thursday morning.

The two boys who attended St. Mary's Industrial School were on a vacation with their parents at one of the cottages on the Tolchester estates.

SCHOOLS OPEN

HERE'S TO THE BEGINNERS!

Here's to the youngsters who will start on the long, long road to the three R-s, in a fw days. Wishing them happiness and success and above all, HEALTH, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health has this to say to the parents:

"Only a few days remain before the the schools will re-open and of the thousands who will be starting schoolward none will be making a more important change in their daily routine, and need to be more carefully safeguarded than the beginners, just starting their school careers. If you have not had it done during the summer, take these youngsters to your family doctor and to your dentist. Let the children have as thorough a going-over as you would give to your automobile if you were getting ready for a long, trying journey.

"If your doctor or your dentist finds conditions that need correction, have them attended to before the childdren start to school Teachers who have kept a careful check of attendance and progress of children in the grades, all agree that the children who start, in good physical condition and who are free from preventible physical handicaps, lose less time and make the grade much more easily than those do who are dragged down by ill health.

"The State Deartment of Health in cooperation with the State and local Parent-Teacher Associations, has been urging parents to have their five and six year-olds examined by their own doctors and dentists, during the summer months, in preparation for their enrollment in school. Child health conferences arranged by the County Health Officers in cooperation with the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the State Department of Health, have been held as usual throughout the counties. In addition, the Department's Child Healthmobile, with a doctor and dentist in charge, has visited a number of counties in Southern Maryland and on the Eastern shore for the purpose of reaching mothers and young children in the more out of the way places.

"Between four and five thousand young children have been examined at these conferences and through the efforts of the Parent-Teacher Associations a number of other childlren have been taken to their own doctors, but as the State Department of Education is preparing for an enrollment, in the beginner's grade, of four times that many, it is obvious that a great many of the children who will enter school this fall, have not had the benefit of such safeguarding care.

"You would have your machine inspected if you were going to start on a journey. Don't think less of your children than you do of your automobile."
