WHAT HAS HAPPENED TO WHEAT, CORN AND COTTON DURING HOOVER ADMINISTRATION

What happened to wheat, corn and cotton prices during two years of the Hoover Administration—1929 and 1931—compared with the year of 1928, together with the shrinkage in values of 75 crops in the same period, are set forth in the following figures inserted in a post-session issue of the "Congressional Record" by Representative William A. Ayres of Kansas:

I have obtained from the Department of Agriculture a comparison of farm prices of three important crops for the years 1928, 1929, and 1931.

These prices are the United States average, based on prices to the farmer for these crops as reported to the Department of Agriculture on the 15th of each month from all sections of the country.

In 1928 the high average price received by the farmer for wheat was $1.43 3-10 per bushel. The low average price for that year was 94 4-10 cents. For 1929 the high average price to the farmer for his wheat was $1.12 1-10 per bushel. The low average price was 86 8-10 cents per bushel.

These were the wheat prices to the farmer during the last two crop years prior to the enactment of President Hoover's farm plan into law.

For the 1931 wheat crop, the highest average price the farmer received for his what was 59 9-10 cents, while the low average for that year was 35 4-10 cents.

It will be noted that this low average for 1931 was only about one-fourth the high average received for wheat in 1928.

The average price to the farmer for the entire wheat crop of the country in 1928, according to the Department of Agriculture, was $1.00 1-10. For 1929 it was $1.05 1-10. But for 1931, under the Hoover Farm Board policies, it dropped to 38 1-2 cents. As a matter of fact, there were many times in many places when the farmer actually received as low as 30 cents, and in some cases as little as 25 cents per bushel for his wheat, but I have given the average prices for the whole country as reported on a given day each month to the Department of Agriculture.

I give the same figures for the corn and cotton crops for the same years:

In 1928 the high average price for corn received by the farmer was $1.025; the low average price was 75.-2 cents.

For 1929 the high average price was 97.2 cents; the low average 78 cents.

For 1931 the high average was 61.7 cents; the low average was 33.4 cents.

For 1928 the average price for the entire country which the farmer received for his corn was 84.5 cents; for 1929 it was 80.9 cents! for 1931 it was 32.9 cents, according to the preliminary reports of the Department of Agriculture.

In 1928 the high average price of cotton to the farmer was 21 cents per pound; the low average was 17 cents.

For 1929 the high average for cotton was 18.8 cents; the low was 16 cents.

For 1931 the high average was 9.6 cents; the low was 5.3 cents.

For 1928 the average price for cotton to the farmer was 18 cents per pound, for 1929 it was 16.8 cents, and for 1931 it was only 5.7 cents.

If any further indication of what has happened to the farmer under the policies of President Hoover and his Farm Board is needed, it may be found in these figures showing the total value of the principal farm crops of the country for 1929 and 1932:

For 1929 the Department of Agrifarmer of 75 principal crops produced in the United States at $8,088,494,000.

It is suggested that this information will be of value to farmers in the campaign when Republican orators tell them what the Administration has done for them.

BUILDING LOG CANOES

Old-time log canoe building, an ancient art which has been dormant for more than 50 years in Somerset County, is being revived and three of this once-famous type of vessel which was extensively used more than half a century ago on the Chesapeake bay, have been constructed and launched.

The old type canoes have been commissiond and will soon be used in the oyster trade in the service of hauling Tangier oysters to the marts of the country.

Capt. Thomas Shores of St. Stephens, is the builder of the log canoes. They were constructed for Capt. Tom Simpkins and Capt. W. O. Murray, of Mount Vernon.

Two of the log canoes have been christened the George W. Simpkins and the Mary E. Simpkins and are the property of Capt. Simpkins.

The George W. is 34 feet long and has a 6-foot 9-inch beam and is powered with an 8-horsepower motor.

The Mary A. is 38 feet in length, with a 7-foot beam and is powered with a 24- horsepower engine. It has a cabin and compares favorably with boats of its size in service in the bay.

It is said that half a century ago this type of boat was all that was in use in Chesapeake Bay traffic and it was a difficult matter to find anything but boats of this type plying up and down the bay.

Within the past two years a number of log sailing canoes have been built for racing in the vicinity of Oxford but at Crisfield work boats of this type are being built.

Former Senator J. Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, delivered a patriotic address in Snow Hill on Wednesday under the auspices of the Junior Order United Amedican Mechanics.
