NOW AND THEN

CALLED BACK

In his heart a man's a savage and a woman's just the same,
Something primitive beats strong within us all.
We may play at being civilized but tire of the game
When the mountains, woods and streams begin to call.
And we cannot be contented
Until the air is piney scented
With burned incense to the God of Out-o'-doors.

In the woods the race was cradeled countless centuries ago,
And the wilderness still calls us back to roam
Over mountains sides and valleys.
We all hear it and we know
Its the ancient primal summons to come home.
Fools may struggle to ignore it
In the end all bow before it
And burn incense to the Gods of Out-O'-doors.

Come put on your boots and flannels!
Get out there where you belong!
Shake the grimy dust of cities from your feet,
Go where life is worthwhile living and where singing's worth the song—
When you're tired sleep and when you're hungry eat.
Set your tiny campfire glowing;
You'll find peace beyond all knowing
Burning incense to the Gods of Out-O'-doors.

BY GENE LINDBERG.

A lover of nature handed me the above poem, and asked me to publish it. The poem expresses the longing of so many, to lay aside household or office duties and seek the great outdoors. There is a call of the wild in the sunflecked landscape and the invigorating air.

The Flower Show was certainly a very good one this year. In spite of the dry weather, there were a large collection and many varieties of flowers. The larger acommodation of the Washington College gymnasium made it possible for the flower lovers to exert their artistic taste. Lillies and water hyacinths were growing in their natural surroundings while around the pond were large stones and shrubbery. Washington's Home, Mt. Vernon, was shown with the grounds artistically arranged while everywhere one saw handsome plants and lovely blooms and over it all music was provided by the radio. Everyone seemed to lend a hand to make it a success.

NEEDED WORDS

I wish there were a word
For roses damp with dew;
I'd seal it in this letter
And send it off to you;

Or for the sound of waterfalls
After a summer rain,
That I might mail the melody
For you to hear again.

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

(BY REV. FRANK WHITE)

Some years ago my attention was attracted to the bulletin in front of a church, on which, in large letters, was printed, "If absence makes the heart grow fonder, how dearly some people must love the Church."

From those who regularly attend the Church, the question frequently comes, "Why do so many people absent themselves from the Church?" From those who seldom or never attend, the question is coming 'Why go to Church?"

Through the gracious courtesy of this paper, I am permitted to place before you, without elaboration, two reasons why we should all go to Church.

1st. The Church invites us to the worship of God. The character of God and the relation He sustains to the universe is the evidence that He ought to be worshipped. He is the Creator, the Law Giver, the Judge. His will is supreme. The universe heads up in Him. He is, moreover, perfectly holy, wise and good. It is in worship that we keep in touch with Him. One has said, "Public worship is the noblest form of culture of any single practice known to mankind." One will say "I can worship without going to church. Let me quote Theodore Roosevelt, "As he says," I know that one can worship the Creator in a grove of trees, or by a running brook, or in a man's house just as well as in a church. But I also know as a matter of cold fact the average man does not thus worship. In the place that is dedicated to worship of God; there will men incline their hearts toward Him.

2nd. The Church of Christ was organized to publish the Good News of God's redeeming love revealed in Jesus Christ. It seeks to gather men into the family and fellowship of God. In proportion as it succeeds in drawing men up to the standards of life set for us in Jesus Christ, so will it succed in creating a new order in the world, herein the "Golden Rule" shall govern and "Brotherly Love" be made to prevail.

Let us all catch the spirit of this "Go to Church Sunday" and then, continuing our attendance, help to increase the sum of goodness and goodwill throughout old Kent.

LEGION OF VALOR AT TOLCHESTER

VISITS TOLCHESTER ON BAY OUTING

Members of the Army and Navy Legion of Valor, who were in convention in Baltimore this week, spent Tuesday afternoon at Tolchester, the trip across the bay being made on the Emma Giles.

The Army and Navy Legion of Valor is an organization of men who have received either the Distinguished service cross or the Congressional Medal for bravery in the wars of the United States.

Included in the party were veterans of the Civil, Spanish American and World Wars. Among the Civil War veterans were: Mr. and Mrs. Bishop, of Seattle, Washington. Mr. Bishop is 92 years old and made the trip across the continent to attend the convention. He was decorated for saving the Union flag during the Civil War in a battle when it was about to be captured.

Major George Parker, a frequent visitor at the home of Mrs. J. D. Maxwell, is the commander of this organization. Representatives of the local American Legion Post and the Salisbury Post greeted the visitors at Tolchester.

LORD'S DAY MEETING SUNDAY

TO BE HELD IN M. P. CHURCH TOMORROW

The annual Kent County Lord's Day meeting will be held in Christ M. P. Church, Chestertown tomorrow, Sunday, at 7.30 p. m.

The speakers will be Mr. Charles H. Gundersdorff and Dr. W. W. Davis. Mr. Gundersdorff is the leader of the Adult Bible Classes in Maryland. The citizens of Kent County have a great treat in store for them in the address of this gifted laymar of the Lutheran Church.

The meeting will begin promptly at 7.30 o'clock and every citizen of Kent County is invited to be present. Quite a number of the pastors and congregations of the County are uniting in this service which insures it being one of the greatest meetings of the kind ever held in the County.

ATTACKS DEPUTIES WITH AXE

George Hoagland is in the county jail at Chester, Pa., in default of $1000 bail, and charged with attacking two deputy sheriffs with an axe when they attempted to levy on furniture in a house in which Hoagland was visiting.

He was subdued only after a struggle which ended with the prisoner considerably bruised and the deputies with their shirts torn off.

85 NEW STUDENTS AT W. C.

CLASSES TO START MONDAY

Washington College opened its 150th year on Monday when 85 new students registered this week for Freshman week.

Among the 85 new students, 23 are from Kent County, 28 are from other counties on the Eastern Shore, 16 are from other parts of Maryland and 17 are from other states. Of the total registration of 85 students a total of 68 are from Maryland, showing the value of Washington College as an educational institution in this State.

The college is not only growing in the number of students but its increased faculty and educational advantages are attracting the attention of higher educational organizations in all parts of the country.

THE BAY BRIDGE

For years the question of a bridge across Chesapeake Bay from Tolchester to Miller's Island has received columns of publicity both in the Baltimore and Eastern Shore papers. The question has brought about a great deal of enthusiasm at times only to die out and be revived again.

After laying dormant for a few years the possibility of the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation financing the project has again caused a great deal of justified enthusiasm and the Chesapeake Bay Company has applied for a loan of $7,400,000. At the present time this corporation is not loaning money for bridge construction but if they decide to include bridges in their loaning program it is thought that the Chesapeake Bay bridge will be among the first projects considered. The bridge company states that the survey has been completed and that they have actual bids on the construction which would enable them to start work within two weeks after the money is available.

The State has, through a recent act of the Legislature, agreed to build the road approaches at both ends of the bridge.

The petition, which has been filed, includes the following specifications:

Major details in the bridge plan, as outlined in the questionnaire and revealed publicly for the first time, were as follows:

Th bridge would run from Harts Island, near Bay Shore Park, on the Western Shore, to Tolchester, on the Eastern Shore, where it will tie in with Route No. 21.

Seventeen months of work would be required to build it and more than 3,000 men would be employed constantly on the project, the other 3,000 being employed in steel mills, fabricating plants, transportation and other industries tributary to the project.

Those directly employed would work a thirty-hour week under a stagger system, in accordance with the terms of the Congressional act authorizing loans on such projects.

The cost of the project, including reserve for contingencies, would be $7,500,000, and the figure is based not on estimates but on actual guaranteed bids the company already has collected so that it may award the contracts at once if the loan is approved.

Two surveys by leading national firms of traffic engineers indicate traffic over the bridge should be sufficient to make it more than self-supporting and self-liquidating, with all allowances made for taxes, operation costs and maintenance, as dictated by engineering experience on similar projects.

The toll charges would be $1 for light and $1.25 for heavy passenger automobiles, with 15 cents for each rider in addition to the driver, and $1.25 to $2.50 for commercial vehicles, depending on size and load. No commutation rates have been worked out as yet.

The bridge would be made up of 250-foot steel spans and have no draws, being arched gradually so that at two channel points it would clear the water by 140 feet. The minimum clearance at other points would be fifteen feet.

Its concrete roadbed would be twenty-two feet wide, allowing ample room for passage of the largest motor vehicles and, in emergencies, three passenger cars.

It would be so constructed that, if called upon, it woud support two solid lines of twenty-ton trucks.
