Women's Page

BY A WOMAN

WOMEN IN PUBLIC

Lovely women no longer lead retired lives. They are everywhere these days, in Congress, in the business world and in sports. Some one has said that thus taking her place side by side wit men, is a great disadvantage to her in the long run; that by taking the men's places, she increases unemployment and prevents young men from marrying and making homes for sweet women.

Be it as it may, we find that they are taking an active part in politics. Mrs. Gann is certainly doing her part. It seems that the vice president is leaving it all for Dolly and she is able to hold her part up well. Mrs. Roosevelt seems to be going every place with her husband, and is doing much by her charm of manner to win votes for him. Both she and Mrs. Hoover are choosing silk dresses for their campaign work a fashion which will encourage the growth of silk worms, and dishearten the raiser of sheep. Altogether the women are showing that they can ably compete with the lords of creation where words are needed.

HEALTH

Sweet Are The Uses Of Adversity

When the editor of the Amarillo, Tex., daily paper wrote his now famous editorial entitled: "I like the Depression," he started something. He struck the old chord—"Sweet are the uses of adversity"—and developed a thesis that has proved helpful to large numbers of money sick, depressed, down hearted persons. It was inevitable, and fortunate as well, that many who were, or had been physically sick saw an opportunity to write I-like-the-depression stories, in which they heartened the physically sick by writing of ther own experiences.

The theme is not a new one in medicine. Thirtyfive years ago Dr. William Osler wrote a story which he entitled, "The Advantages of Having Bright's Disease," or something like that. In a sense, it was a hard luck story, for he told of several of his patients whose dooms he had pronounced years before when he had discovered that they had Bright's disease. These stiff necked people had refused to die on the schedule the great professor had laid down. Some had lived twenty or thirty years thereafter and had achieved greatly in spite of their handicap. Doubtless some of them outlived the physician who had diagnosed their diseases and passed the death sentence. For them, the diagnosis had been a great boon in that it caused them to readjust their lives—just the sequence that made our Amarillo friend happy because of what the depression has done for him.

WHAT TO WEAR

We at least know the worst about the fall fashions and have become reconciled to such changes as were bound to occur. On the whole, there is not much about which to complain—and a good deal for which to be thankful. Not being formal to the point of discomfort is one. Clothes seem simpler at any rate. If we are wise we will select the simpler ones, for as sure as anything can be, they are going to be the winners in the long run.

We lead off with black for street wear, attractively relieved with white or red, and we show a great disposition not only toward black dresses, but hats and coats as well. Whether you go way back to the Medieval or only a little way back to the Empire or Victorian eras, clothes are so modernized that it really matters very little excepting to your figure. Look to your sleeves, and look to your necklines and your waistline can wander about the midsection without being unduly criticized for either its rise or fall.

MODES FOR ARRANGING HAIR

Choosing their type for the winter season is occupying the minds of women and girls who belong in the fashionable circles of the capital. Even before the fall wardrobe is really decided on, it is necessary for the modern woman to decide which of the new styles of arranging her hair and the kind of figure she wishes to show herself in this season. Some of us will have to look twice at our most intimate friends when they first appear at fashionable functions this year if they have changed their type.

Many girls who effected the brushed straight back from the face hair dress last spring willmake their bow to us this season in hair a startling glory of tiny ringlets all about the face and forehead in the "halo" effect. The matrons and some of the young girls, too, have taken their cue for their new type of hair-dressing from the pictures of the ladies of the day of Marie Antoinette and pompadours will be much in evidence, and nothing changes the type as much as a pompadour. The pompadour, however, calls for softness and lack of overemphasis and height and, of course, no suggestion of the hair pad, which made fixing the hair a horror at the turn of the century.

RECIPES

(Bureau of Home Economcs)

Scalloped Potatoes

6 medium-sized potatoes
1 pint milk
2 tablespoons chopped parsley
4 to 6 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour

Wash the potatoes and cook in boiling salted water until half done. Skin the potatoes and cut in cubes. Grease a baking dish or pan, place in it a layer of potatoes, sprinkle with some of the flour and dot with the butter. Continue until all the potatoes are used. Pour in sufficient milk to almost cover, and make in a slow oven until the potatoes are brown on top and soft throughout. If they become dry add more milk. If they cook too rapidly the milk will boil over, and will not only be difficult to clean from the oven but will also make a disagreeable odor all through the house. Serve the potatoes from the baking dish, and just before it is sent to the table sprinkle the chopped parsley over the top.

Sweet Potatoes With Apples

3 medium-sized sweet potatoes
4 medium-sized apples
1-2 cup sugar
3 tablespoons butter

Wash the sweet potatoes and cook them n their skins in boiling water. Cool and skin. Cut the potatoes and apples into slices. Place in alternate layers in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle sugar over each layer. Add a little water and bake until apples and sweet potatoes are soft and brown on top.

Cooked Salad Dressing

1 cup mild vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon butter
2 eggs

If the vinegar is not mild, it should be weakened by substituting 1-4 to 1-2 cup of water for the same quantity of vinegar. Hard cook the eggs. While they are still warm remove the shells and rub the yolks to a paste. Add the dry ingredients and the butter. Cream these together thoroughly. Add the heated vinegar, a little at a time to make a thin paste. Press the whites through a ricer or chop them very fine and add to the mixture. Serve on lettuce or other salad greens.

Coconut Blancmange

1-3 cup flour
1-2 cup sugar
1-4 teaspoon salt
2 cups milk, scalded
1 cup coconut
2 egg whites, stiffly beaten.
1 teaspoon vanilla

Combine flour, sugar and salt. Add milk gradually, place in double boiler, and cook until thickened, stirring constantly. Add coconut and cool. Fold in egg whites and vanilla. Chill. Garnish with tart jelly.

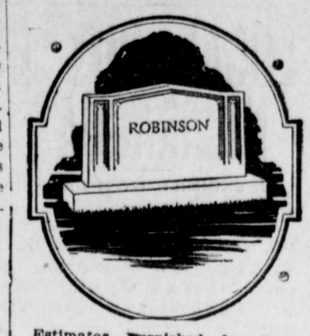

Illicit whiskey valued at $3,000 was confiscated and destroyed, and one man was arrested as Federal Prohibition officers raided the dwelling house recently occupied by Richard Wardell, at North East, early yesterday. More than 200 gallons of the alleged contraband was poured upon the ground and lay in deep puddles on East Cecil avenue.
