NOW AND THEN

There was such a lovely sunset a few evenings ago. The sky was a brilliant pink which melted away to orchid and gold as it neared the horizen. The crescent moon, a tiny bright rim stood out from the pink background. But soon it had disappeared and was seen no more that night.

THE CRESCENT MOON

Wee crescent Moon, why do you go so soon?
The silent hills are bidding you to stay;
The summer breezes say,
"O do not go away!"
And quivering trees, weighed down with fair festoon,
Sigh, "Linger, lovely Moon."

To wavelet's tune, we hear your child the loon,
And the dim echoes ringing in the sky.
Are you so very shy
You dare not heed that cry
Oh stay with us, and do not leave so soon,
Slim, shining, crescent Moon!

DIANA KEARNY POWELL.

"Music hath charms to soothe the troubled breast" has surely been proved through the ages. It was told in Greece fable, that, as Arion played his flute the stones slowly took their places thus making the famous walls of Troy.

Many from town went down to Easton to hear the noted singer, Mr. Charles Thomas.

He agreed to sing for the benefit of the Children's aid if they would sell five hundred dollars worth of tickets. Many more than that were sold and the Children's Aid must have had a fine sum. The Audience were delighted with the music Mr. Thomas voice was in fine trim and he graciously gave the enthusiastic audience encore after encore. Mr. Terris, too, played many fine pieces on the piano. Those who went were certainly fortunate to have an evening so full of music.

Those who read Mr. Hyde's article in last Sunday's Baltimore Sun were disappointed that the writer did not enlarge on the many historic spots and the many beauties of Kent county.

Some one has very aptly made two classifications of all the people in the world—those who lift and those who lean. Some of the leaners are not so of their own volition, but Fate, or whatever in your creed you may call it, has in some instances been too overpoweringly hard. And they have fallen into the habit of leaning. The work of charity in the world then is to lift the leaners up and by helping them to help themselves, make lifters instead of leaners.

Another historian will have to be blacklisted. He says that George Washington, while President, never missed collecting his salary.

PAUL HARRIS ADDRESSES ASSEMBLY

SPOKE ON WAR PREVENTION

Seldom has a speaker at the Thursday morning assembly at Washington College received the close attention and prolonged applause as did Paul P. Harris, Jr., of Washington, D. C., who is in charge of the Student Work for the National Council for the Prevention of War and who spoke before the student body on October 6.

Mr. Harris is a ready speaker who punctuates and emphasizes his points with a running fire of dry wit. He declared that his job is to try to stop war. He stated that he did not agree with those who contend that war is a part of human nature. Struggle, conflict, and fighting are parts of human nature but that war is not is proven by the fact that when war is declared, selective draft is necessary and a tremendous amount of machinery to put it over is essential.

In closing, the speaker described the scene at the Disarmament Conference in Geneva which represented a human map of the world where nations were gathered together for a continuing and flexible program for world peace. His last shot to the student body was that he had given his message but that it takes some intelligence to know what a message is about.

BUYS WOODLAND

Mr. Henry Brown of Quaker Neck, recently sold to Mr. Bert E. Wallace, of Dundalk, Maryland, sixty (60) acres of woodland, a valuable body of timber rectangled shape, facing the state road. This is an aditional purchased by Mr. Wallace, who few months ago, bought of C. C. Brown, two old Colonial estates, adjoining, both waterfronts, reaching from Lankford Bay to the Bight on Chester River—the purchase of the woods, was acquired as an addition to the two farms, for a combination for the utility side of the valuable timber, and later, the park-like woods just purchased, be used in a plan of landscape work to further improve his two Colonial Homes. Both deals were consummated by the Square Deal Farm Agency.

WESTERN PICTURE FULL OF ACTION

"The Vanishing Frontier" Is Film's Title

Johnny Mack Brown Is Featured Player

Hard riding, swashbuckling drama and tender romance make "The Vanishing Frontier," which comes to the New Lyceum Theatre on Friday and Saturday, October 14 and 15, with Johnny Mack Brown, the star; and Evalyn Knapp, ZaSu Pitts, Raymond Hatton and J. Farrell MacDonald in the featured roles, one of the best action pictures that has come this way in some time. This is the kind of theme that belongs almost exclusively to motion pictures, for the camera alone can translate into living action the exciting drama of the Western plains.

"The Vanishing Frontier" is a story of old California when the state suffered under military control following the gallant effort of the Spanish-Americans to establish a separate state. Kirby Tornell, the hero of the piece, is a son of one of the old Spanish families who turns bandit to liberate his people from the oppression of military rule. The story deals with Kirby's exploits in behalf of the oppressed, and with his love for beautiful Carol Winfield, daughter of the military governor of the state—a love which almost costs his life.

Johnny Mack Brown and Evalyn Knapp do a fine job of keeping the story on a glamorous level. Brown, especially, has never given a better performance than as the dashing young desperado, who makes love as ruthlessly as he fights.

But the teaming of J. Farrell MacDonald and Raymond Hatton was a stroke of genius. As Kirby tornell's two most trusted lieutenants, the two provide most of the comedy and the film's outstanding performances. They should be teamed again in other pictures, for it looks as if any film that featured them would be worth seeing.

ZaSu Pitts as the maiden aunt of the heroine, George Irving as General Winfield and Wallace MacDonald as a military leader are also responsible for excellent performances.

Lieutenant and Mrs. Francis E. Fitch, of Westport, Connecticut, are the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. David B. Ford on Queen street. Their son and daughter, Aralee and Charles Fitch, who have been guests here for the past three weeks, will return home with them.

TOWN COUNCIL MEETS

DISCUSS MINOR CHARTER CHANGES

The regular monthly meeting of the Mayor and Town Council of Chestertown was held on Monday of this week.

The Council decided to lay a curb and gutter in front of the store and shop property of H. D. Orem and son on Cannon street.

Minor changes in the new charter were discussed and a committee will be appointed shortly to study these changes so that they may be made at the next session of the Legislature. The principal change will be in reference to the eligibility of a person to register until the town taxes are paid. The charter now rules that no one is entitled to vote in town elections until the town taxes are paid which entitles one to vote if they pay the taxes on election day. The proposed change would require the taxes to be paid in advance of the election so as to avoid the confusion that has here-to-fore existed on election day.

The repealing of obselete town ordinances was also discussed, such as an ordinance which requires that the oil street lamps shall be lighted and turned out at a certain time.

The next meeting of the Council will be held the first Monday in November.

GIRLS 4-H CLUB NOTES

(BY MISS HELEN SCHELLINGER)

The Fairlee 4-H Girls' Club met Saturday, October 1, 1932, at the home of Mrs. William Walter Morris, one of our local leaders.

The purpose of this meeting was to elect officers. As the President and Vice President were both absent, we had the election of officers first, so that the new President could take charge of the meeting. The officers elected were:

President, Margaret Hendrickson.
Vice President, Virginia Coleman.

The meeting was then called to order and some new business discussed. New rules were made, suggested by the members. Meetings are to be held the second Saturdap in each month so that Miss Schellinger may spend part of the afternoon at Flatland and part at our meeting.

Virginia Coleman, Virginia Miller and Beatrice Berger were appointed on a Membership Committee to get the Junior members that graduated from Fairlee School into our club. We do hope they will all join as we want a large group.

Marian Reinhart, Elizabeth Elliott, Thelma Gorsuch, Thelma Urie, Edna Morie Dieker, President, and local leader are going to meet Tuesday, Octobr 11, at Elizabeth Elliott's to plan our program for the Year. We discussed the project we would take up this year. The girls all decided they would like to study meal planning and call it The Hard Time Supper Club. Names were drawn for a meeting place each month. Ruth Redding will have the meeting in November.

After the business meeting was adjourned, we went out in the kitchen and had demonstrations with the light bread Miss Schellinger Virginia Miller and Elizabeth Elliott demonstrated coffee rings. The schooner Australia, recently reconditioned by Captain Charles Batchelor and his son, Elmer, after having been damaged by being ashore in Chester River, is again trading in and out of Chester River.

This two mast schooner is the oldest vessel recorded in the United State mercantile marine and her official number in United States merchant vessels is 25.

Her history dates back to the war of 1912 when she was captured from the British. Her history before that time is unknown.

When captured she was barkentine rigged, having the formast square rigged and the other two masts schooner rigged. She was later cut in two parts and ten feet added to her length and changed to schooner rigged. At the time of her capture her name was "Alma."

Her name was changed subsequently to Australia and ownership passed to Charles C. Dudley, operating out of Pocomoke City. The Australia registers 35 tons gross, is 67 feet long, 18 feet 9 inches beam and 4 feet molded depth.

THE NEW POST-OFFICE

AMONG FOUR ON PREFERRED LIST

According to an article published in the Washington Post on October 6th, the new proposed post office for Chestertown is one of four that predominate n the list of 227 post offices to be built throughout the country.

The relief measure provided that where leases expire prior to July 1, 1934, the Government must construct buildings.

The ten year lease of the present Chestertown post office was signed January 1st, 1925, and expires December 30th, 1934, which means that if a new lease is not to be signed the new building must be completed before that date.

Federal officials have been considering a site for a new postoffice for Chestertown for the past pear.

Several years ago a location adjoining the railroad station was approved for a building to be erected to be used for postoffice under the rental plan, but a protest made by a large group of business men against that location resulted in the enlarging of the present post office quarters.

While a number of sites are under consideration by the Post Office Department, no definite decision has been made.

The relief measure allotted $100,000,000 for this construction, of postoffices but under the economy law, Comptroller General McCarl ruled that each item must be cut 10 per cent, limiting the entire expenditure to $90,000,000. Yesterday's announcement said a small number of cities still are under consideration for new buildings, and that as soon a sufficient data is available "a supplementary statement will be issued authorizing as many of these projects as can be justified."

The allotment for the Chestertown Post office was $75,000.
