It was a good start and I sincerely hope it will result in a larger loyalty to the interests of the kingdom of God. The following services are announced to which you are cordially invited.

Wednesday, Oct. 12, 7:30 P. M., Evening Prayer, followed by choir rehearsal.

Thursday, Oct. 13, meeting of Men's Club at 8 P. M. in the Parish House.

The 10:00 A. M. service on Oct. 9, affords a good opportunity for Parents, teachers, and older people to attend Church with their children, the Sunday School. Too largely has the idea become prevalent that Sunday School is for Children, Church Services for adults. If this thought has had the ill effect of causing older people to shun the School, it is having the even worse effect of causing children to shun Church. One of the most vital of religious institutions is the FAMILY PEW, where father, mother, and children sit together and worship the God and Father of us all. If some of the Services seem too long for little children, (or for some restless adults) this monthly 10 A. M. service will hold no one too long, for it lasts but 35 minutes at most. Parents and older members of the family are invited to sit with the children in their classes this week, and later the members of the school may be simply sent to be with the family in their own Pew.

"Yeah?" growled the old married grouch. "Well, over here there are plenty of them between five and six feet tall who are worn to a frazzle earning money for families who are trying to keep up with the Jones'."

CHAMBER GROUP MEETING

ADVOCATE TRADE AMONG COUNTY RESIDENTS

Out of the second group meeting called by Dr. Paul E. Titsworth, president of the Kent County Chamber of Commerce on Tuesday evening of this week, came the decision that Kent County business could be considerably improved if better cooperation existed between Kent's farmrs and townsmen.

As an immediate step in the right direction, farmers are invited to telephone the Kent County Chamber of Commerce, Chestertown 115, listing the produce they have for sale with prices, and townspeople are also invited and urged to make their wants known at the Chamber office so the farmer can be notified. This step is in no way intended to interfer with the established stores in the several towns in the county. For some time the stores have not carried much in the line of farm produce because of the fact that such keen competition is given them by door-to-door hucksters, most of whom are not Kent Countians.

An equal number of prominent farmers and townsmen made up the personnel of the group meeting and discussed informally th possibilities of closer cooperation which would tend to permit the country to lift itself out of the depression by its own bootstraps.

The fact that Kent's products have not found a ready market in county towns was shown to be for a large part because Kent's farmers had about given up trying to build up local trade among individuals.

As at the meeting the previous week of another group of citizens, the suggestions of a curb market was offered as a wep out. Such a market would give townspeople good selection and would give the local farmer an outlet for his produce. Those housewives who are obliged to miss the door-to-door huckster are frequently in a quandary as to how to supply their families with farm produce and seafoods, both of which should be easily available in this section.

The success of the various "bakes" was cited as to what could be done with fresh vegetables, honey, proserves, jelliesl and other outputs of farms and a series of sales of the sort was suggested.

Until some of the proposed plans are worked out the Chamber is glad to place its machinery at the service of producer and consumer and urges use of the proposed system. Money spent by Kent Countians in Kent County can do much to set the county on is feet again and a little thoughtful planning by those who have money to spend can place cash in the hands of our rural citizens who have produce to sell.

Another outstanding suggestion was made that Chestertown merchants, in particular, and all county merchants, in general, advertise a comparison of prices between their own goods and those of the various mail-order houses. This sort of advertising news could be done in a perfectly ethical manner and would do much to break up the mail-order habit that many of our citizens have adopted. Investigation of local goods and prices will show that many items can be had here as reasonably or cheaper and of equal grade as from mail-order houses. At times like these, all conscientious citizens should give spending out of home districts the greatest consideration and if equal value can be had for the same mony the preference should most certainly be given to home mrchants.

Farmrs in Kent have been adopting a "Live-at-home" program. Every man, woman, and child in Kent can hasten a return of prosperity in the county by adhering to a similar working and spending program.
