SHOPPING 'JEFFERSON'S'

A lady from Baltimore visiting in Chestertown just walked into Jefferson's a minute ago and after wondering about for a bit remarked with pointed emphasis, "well, I can't believe my eyes. To find a shop of this quality in a small town! Are there enough people in this little place who appreciate fine things to warrant a shop like this?"

Aside from the insult to those of us who call Chestertown home, there is distinct food for thought in the incident. Jefferson's IS different. Not that they carry a huge stock or a tremendous variety. In a small town that would be folly. But every single item in Jefferson's is hand picked for smartness, high quality, and usefulness. Of COURSE, their prices are low. But that's no longer news. Folks that aren't completely dead from their necks up want a whole lot more than a low price. And here at Jefferson's you can depend on getting clothes you could wear with a high head among the most expensively dressed women in the world.

Now to point the moral and adorn the tale, let's look at these new hats. Feel the softness of the exquisite fur felt. See here—these stitches. Hand made, every bit. Then see how skillfully the design is handled, up here, down there, a perky bow, just so. All cannily planned to pull your face up to 1932. Smartness. What's it worth to look so well that your friends say enviously, "what HAVE you been doing to yourself,—you look 10 years younger?" It's worth heaps more than the very moderate cost of $4.95 for these signed French reproductions.

That's Jefferson's! You see?

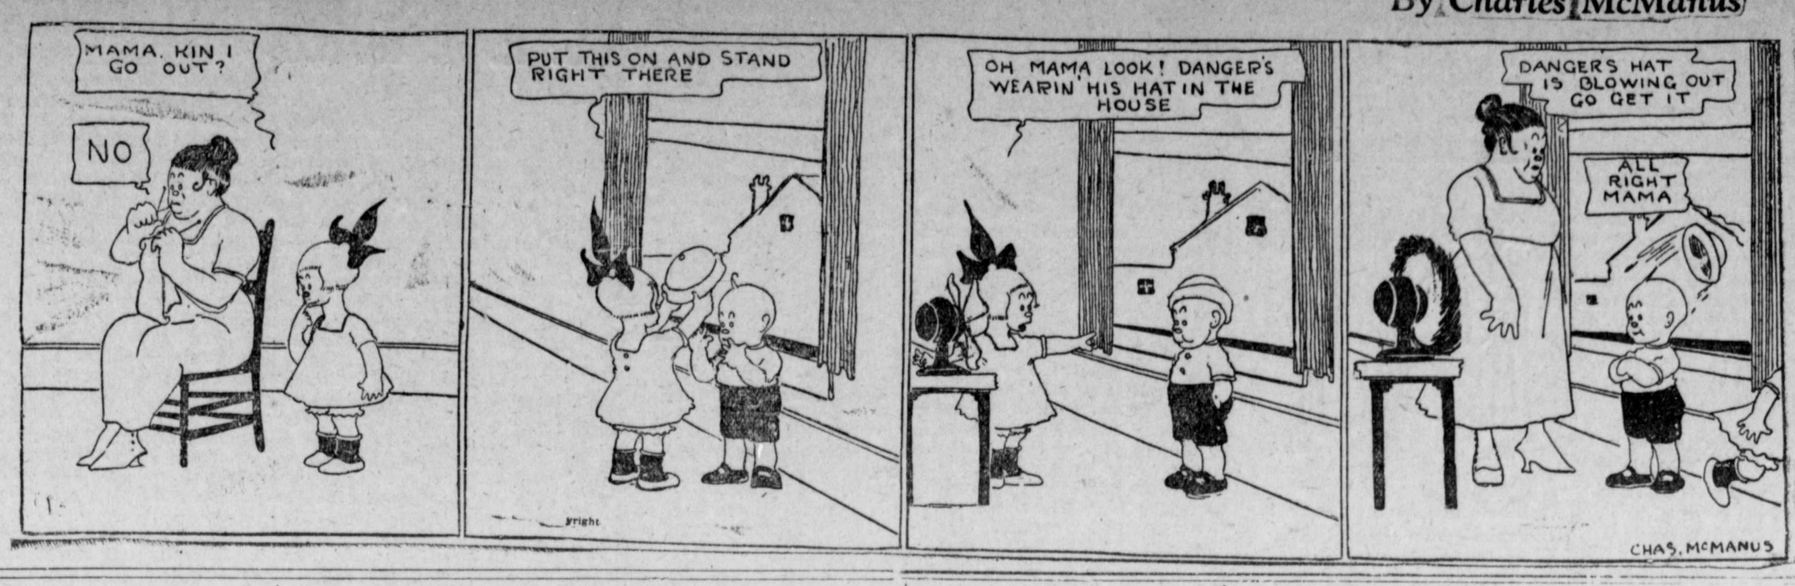

Even the bargains at this little shop are a special kind. There are quite a few shoes for instance in odd sizes that sold recently for as much as $6 a pair. They're grand shoes, fine leather, smart colors and styles. Find your size and take them along for $2.95.

And oh say! Look at the cotton crepe in plaids and tweed prints that are heavy and look expensive, yet cost only 29c a yard. You see? That's Jeffersons!

Telephone Dictation Expedites Business

Alice Raum taking dictation by telephone. This is a daily occurrence in many business offices now.

Telephone dictation as a means of expediting business routine is now being utilized by many large companies. It has been found that much time is saved, interruptions are prevented and greater efficiency of stenographic forces is experienced.

Instead of calling stenographers to their offices to take shorthand dictation of acknowledgments, short letters and brief reports or memoranda, business men and women are telephoning such items to typists in a centralized bureau. In some cases the stenographers type as the dictator talks; in others notes are made for transcribing later.

Office management experts find this practice interesting because it opens a new field for further efficiency pioneering. It suggests the telephone's possibilities for even more versatile service.

Telephone dictation is now being used successfully by the Chesapeake and Potomac Telephone Companies and other Bell system companies. The stenographic bureau includes a group of typists equipped with telephone operator's sets. The individual who is ready to dictate calls the official telephone switchboard operator and asks for "telephone dictation." He is then connected by telephone to one of the typists who is not engaged and proceeds with his dictation.

Second Sour Pickle—Well, you know, she's a sweet pickle.

"Pooh, that's nothing; we live in a real house on the installment plan."

Ocean Depths Explored

Bottles that seal themselves four miles below the surface of the Pacific, thermometers that record deep sea temperatures and fish living in black bottles reveal to scientists many odd facts of the sea. At the University of California's Institute of Oceanography a group of scientists are plumbing the ocean's depths trying to learn why the ocean is saltier in some areas than in others and what goes on at the bottom of the sea.

Fish nearly black and others transparent have been brought up from the depths.

Half-Masting the Flag

The custom of flying the flag at half-mast is said to have arisen out of the old naval and military custom of lowering the flag in time of war as a sign of submission. The vanquisher always lowered his flag while the victor fluttered his own flag above it from the same staff. To lower a flag therefore was a sign of respect for one's superior, and a sign of mourning and respect. It is said that in the Seventeenth century Spanish ships displayed a flag at half mast as a signal of distress.

Basis for Old Relief

Popular belief that the fertility of the soil is increased in spots where lightning strikes probably has some scientific basis, says Pathfinder Magazine. The electrical shock may have an effect in rendering the minerals in the soil more soluble and making the elements of fertility more available to plants. This belief is only distantly related to another one, namely, that lightning fixes nitrogen and that the general soil fertility is improved through this fixation.

Splendid Life Rules

Be true to your friends; stand by them in their adversity; never forget a good deed. Stand by the man who gave you credit at the bank when the banker would not, by the boy who stood by you when the breath of slander touched your reputation. Stand by the girl or woman who has stood by you. Stand by your mother and sister, for they will never forget you. If you have been elected to congress, do not placate your enemies with post offices. You cannot buy friendship worth having. Prize your friends; make as many of them as possible; be faithful to them—and make as few enemies as possible without sacrificing your principles.—Uncle Henry's Sayings, in Wallace's Farmer.

Tribute to Walter Scott

"The greatest figure Walter Scott ever presented to the world was himself," said John Buchan, a member of the British parliament, at a celebration in the author's honor. "A partaker of our mortal frailties—for he had many—he is yet an example of the stature to which, by the grace of God, a Scotsman and a Borderer can attain. As long as the Tweed runs to the sea, as long as there are human hearts in our glens to hope and to dream and to endure, the memory of Walter Scott will rest like a benediction on the land he loved."—Detroit News.

Taxicabbing to the Marne

Paris taxicab drivers performed their feat of carrying an army to the front in the first days of September, 1914, when thousands of taxicabs were impressed into army service by order of General Gallieni, the military governor of the Paris district, at the time when the Germans were nearest the capital. The cabs were employed to rush General Maunoury's forces to the front to take part in what became the first battle of the Marne. Back and forth the taxicab brigade rushed, each cab carrying five soldiers and the driver. In one trip this impromptu transport service carried 20,000 men to Meaux.

"Hung" Is Not Hanged

All bandits are "hung" in Manchuria! But it is not the result of a police or judicial efficiency. It is merely because the word for bandits in the Manchurian dialect is "hung hutze."

The derivation of this name is of interest. Translated literally, it means "red-beard" and was first applied to the bands of marauding Russians who used to pillage the border towns in the Eighteenth century. The term was later applied to all bandits.

Spectaculum to Spectacles

Artificial aids to the sight were invented (by Roger Bacon, the great Thirteenth-century scientist and philosopher, and others) at a time when Latin was the universal language of all science and scholarship. Hence it was natural that the invention should be given a Latin name. Spectaculum, something seen or looked at, was the name selected—"spectacle," a show or pageant, coming from the same source. Spectaculum later developed into the now familiar "spectacles."

WHEN you start at sudden noises, worry over trifles, can't bear the noise that children make, feel irritable and blue—ten to one it's your nerves.

Don't wait until your overwrought nerves have kept you awake half the night and paved the way for another miserable day. Take two teaspoonfuls of Dr. Miles' Nervine and enjoy the relief that follows. Take two more before you go to bed. Sleep—and wake up ready for the day's duties or pleasures.

Dr. Miles' Nervine is now made in two forms—Liquid and Effervescent Tablet. Both are the same therapeutically.

Reformation

"Crimson Gulch has completely reformed," said the traveling salesman.

"Yes," answered Cactus Joe.

"How did it happen?"

"I give the credit mostly to motion pictures. The boys got to thinkin' it was kind of undignified to be constantly mistook for original Wild West screen stars."—Washington Star.

The Remedy

"Well, how do you like my new suit?" a man asked his friend as they seated themselves at their usual table for lunch.

"Not bad," replied the other. "Only there's a wrinkle in the waistcoat. You ought to get rid of that."

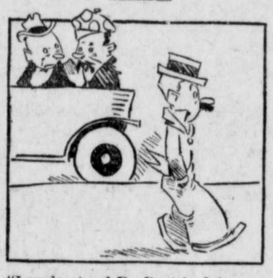

"So there is! Waiter! Where's the menu?"—Der Lustige Sachse.
