BY A WOMAN

My friend was surprised to see the changes in Cross St. As she remembered it there was the old school house which was the most important building there. A long low brick structure it was without any pretense to architectural beauty, but the children were well taught and made to behave. The principal, at that time, was Mr. Joseph Peterson, a man strong of brain and of muscle. It was the knowledge of the latter which the boys especially respected. He fully observed the admonition of Solomon, and did not spare the rod. Many a time he made the dust fly from the pants of some one who had disobeyed the rules. As we have said before, he was strong and well built, and one time when he was attacked by a father and two brothers of a boy whom he had just dusted, he overcame all three without any effort.

In spite of his discipline, he was much beloved, especially by the upper grades, and they prepared their lessons well and enjoyed them. Sometimes a wary one, who had neglected to stuhy, would astutely draw rim out to talk, of something else, thus having the time for reciting to pass, but that was not often. And when he resigned his position, he told the news to a weeping crowd. Another teacher, who stands out in my friends memory, was Miss Anne Leaverton, essentially a gramarian. Somehow she made that usually unpopular study, so interesting to her pupils, that they analyzed and parsed in a way which showed how they enjoyed it.

Still another teacher in the upper grades, was very competent, Miss Millie Downs, she became Mrs. Cecil, but always loved to visit the old haunts, and her pupils, until she passed away this fall. Miss Lottie Spencer, now Mrs. S. C. Roberts, and Miss Hallie Ruth, who has since become Mrs. Thomas Wroth, taught the lower grades at that time and good thorough teachers they were too, and much loved.

Next to the school house was the Methodist Protestant Church of which we shall speak ater. When this congregation moved up town to their present spacious church, they sold the old one to the school and several new teachers were added but that was later on.

The station was at the end of High stret. There, was only one train a day and that left at six aclock in the morning. It was a chilly experience to get up by lamp light in the winter, at 5 a. m. and hurry up to the station. It was hard on wedding parties too. Very early in the morning they would have to be married if they wished to go away either by boat or train though a very rough riding stage was generall avalable o take them to either place. But this did not keep them from marrying and the young women, at that time, who had no vacation available married early, for the Clerks at the Court House, and lawyers offices were then of the masculine gender. But to go back to Cross St., there was a famous black smith shop. Chapman & Lambert's. How the sparks would fly and how merrily the anvil would ring as the busy workers there plied their daily tasks. Two of the workers, my friends remembered so well, for after their work was done, they seemed always to be together and the girls would call them Damon and Pythias. Where Mr. Lewis now keeps store, was an old house, once occupied by Dr. Peregrine Wroth, a man, famous in the annals of Chestertown, but his home, like many others, had gone down and was a rooming house at that time.

After school was over in those days each girl joined her favorite chum, and they would take long walks together chestnuts or find apples to eat; country for that was a great recreation in those days when no fear of the rapid moving automobile was known. Sometimes great crowds of the girls and boys would go out together to isfy their healthy appetites, and a right fy their healthy appetites, and a right merry they had together.

LA MODE

There is such a vogue for gloves these days, that I thought the following would be interesting to our readers.

Refined Ladies Of Other Days Wore Gloves Even When Dining

PARIS (U. P.)

Max Von Bohen, who writes so entertainingly about Modes and Manners cities some amusing bits of information about gloves of 100 years ago.

"In Paris in 1823," he said, "gloves were worn at meals, and even when playing the harp and clavier. There was little variation in cut or trimming and change of fashion was chiefly confined to color. For a time yellow was so very much the mode that 'gant jaune' became the slang phrase for 'dandy' in Paris. There were frequent changes in the length of ladies' gloves; according to fashion's whims they might be wrist length, elbow length or almost shoulder length.

"In the '70s, when Sarah Bernhardt, who had thin and ugly arms, was at the height or her fame, she introduced a fashion for gloves so long that they formed innumerable wrinkles up the arm. For a time black gloves were worn with light dresses, then fashion repented; the stitched seams on the backs were sometimes broad and again narrow, and sometimes of a contrasting shade."

Russian London

In London they like the new Russian headdress, first originated in Paris. It's an idea for the evening; a hair band in mental which is worn for dinner or the evening instead of a hat. It's decorations are flowers and shells in silver and gold and semi-precious jewels, worn high on the head and tied with a ribbon in back. The idea is copied from the headdress of the Russian dancers.

As You Desire It

It doesn't make any difference. Decorate your hat however you like; it will still be in the height of Parish fashion. For example, two little pompoms of ermine stuck on the front of a black velvet turban. Nobody but a Parisienne or somebody from the backwoods would think this one up. Cute, just the same.

Plaid and Lace

They are keen on the plaid dress in London—the wool plaid dress, so useful for many an occasion. But they are beginning to relieve its severely tailored effect with a lace collar. Not a flimsy lace, but a heavy lace, preferably thread lace or crocheted wool, to fit in with general tailored effect.

RECIPES

Chocolate Drop Cookies

1-2 cup butter.
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1-2 cup milk
2 squares unsweetened chocolate
1 1-2 cups sifted flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
1-4 teaspoon nuts.

Melt the chocolate and add the butter and sugar. Add the egg without bating and the flour to coat the chopped nuts. Then add the nuts and the sifted dry ingredients to the liquid mixture. Stir this thoroughly and add the vanilla. Drop the batter by teaspoonsfuls in a grased baking sheet or an ordinary baking pan, invrted. Bake in a quick oven (about 375 to 400 degrees Fahrenheit.) If desired, spread the cookies while hot wtih white or chocolate frosting so the tops are covered with a thin coating of the icing.

Oatmeal Drop Cookies

1-2 cup fat
1 cup sugar
1-2 cup milk
1 cup raisins
1-2 cup chopped nut meats
1-2 teaspoon soda dissolved in 1 teaspoon water
1 1-2 cups fine oatmeal
1 1-2 cups flour
1 egg
1-2 teaspoon salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon

Cream the fat and sugar and add the beaten egg. Sift the dry ingredients, except the oatmeal, together and add with the milk to the egg, sugar and butter mixture. Add the soda which has been dissolved in the water, and then the oatmeal, which has been mixed with the nuts and raisins. Mix well. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet and bake to a golden brown in a fairly hot oven. Remove from the pan while hot.

Macaroons

2 egg whites
1 cup sugar
2 cups of a flaked toasted breakfast food
1-8 teaspoon salt
1 cup shredded cocoanut
Almond flavoring

Beat the egg whites with the salt until stiff. Add the sugar and beat thoroughly. Fold in the cocoanut and toasted flakes which have been crushed in the hands. Add the flavoring. Place by teaspoonfuls on oiled paper and bake in a moderate oven for about 20 minutes, or until delicately browned and well set.

Orange Drop Cookies

2 cups flour
1 cup sugar
4 tablespoons butter
1-2 teaspoa salt
4 tablespoons orange juice
2 eggs
4 teaspoons baking powder
2 tablespoonsfi grated orange rind.

Cream together the grated rind of the orange and the butter. Gradually beat in the sugar, the beaten eggs and the orang juice. Add the flour and baking powder which have been mixd together. Drop the batter by teaspoonfuls onto a greased baking shet or an inverted pan and bake in a quick oven.

WORTON

Mrs. Viola Conoway with several friends, of Dover, spent Sunday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Clayville.

Mr. and Mrs. McCall Rasin, of Cambridge, visited his mother, Mrs. Henrietta Rasin Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Lewin Burris and daughter, Ann, of Elmira, N. Y., who spent some time this week with his sister, Mrs. Mowbray Hadaway left this morning for Florida, where they will spend the winter.

Mrs. Edith Seward is spending sometime in Wilmington.

Miss Mary Beulah Hadaway, of Wilmigton, visited her parents here last Sunday.

A little miss of 4 came tearfully to her mother one morning with the complaint, "How can I button my dress when the button is in the back and I'm in the front?"

HEALTH CONDITIONS IN MARYLAND

Reports of the State Department of Health for the nine months ending on Septmber 30, show that health conditions as indicated by the general death rate and the infant death rate have been unusually favorable during the current pear. There were 15,623 deaths reported—923 fewer than were reported during the corresponding period of 1931. Of the total during the current year, 7,933 occurred in Baltimore City, and 7,703 in the counties. There were fewer births reported than during the corresponding period of 1931—22,287 in comparison with 22,198 during the first nine months of 1931, but there were fewer infant deaths in proportion to the number of births, 1,456 infant deaths being reported in comparison with 1,718 in 1931. Of the infant deaths reported during the current year, 630 occurred in Baltimore City, and 826 in the counties. During the corresponding period of 1931, 767 infant deaths were reported from Baltimore City and 951 from the counties. Of the total births reported during the current year, 10,828 occurred in Baltimore City and 11,459 in the counties.

In pointing out the significance of some of the figures, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the State Department of Health said: "Two of the yardsticks used in measuring the health of a community are the general death rate and the death rate of infants. Both rates have reached unusually low levels this year. The general death rate for the entire State for the last five years has ranged from 13.2 to 13.6 in every thousand of the population. The general death rate for the entire State for the nine months ending on September 30, was 12.5 in every thousand of the population, the lowest figure we have ever been able to reach for the entire State. The rate for the corresponding period of last year was 13.4.

"The infant death rate for the first nine months of the current year was 65.3 in comparison with 77.4 of the corresponding period of last year. This means that during the current year there were 65 deaths under one year to every thousand live births, and that last year, there were 77 infant deaths to every thousand live births."

The records show that there were 3,159 deaths from heart disease in comparison with 3,220 during the corresponding period of last year, 1200 of pneumonia in comparison with 1649 during the first nine months of 1931; 1161 of tuberculosis in comparison with 1222 in 1931; 995 from diseases of the digestive system in comparison with 1106 in 1931; and 106 maternal deaths in comparison with 141 during the corresponding period of 1931. Two of the leading causes of death which showed an increase were cancer and diabetes. There were 1438 deaths from cancer in comparison with 1383 last year, and 320 from diabetes in comparison with 274 last year.

The deaths from heart disease, nephritis, cancer, cerebral hemorrhage, pneumonia, tuberculosis and diabetes, reached a total of 10,314 and constituted two thirds of the total deaths from all causes and in all age groups.

CONTROL MICE IN ORCHARDS

If mice are present in your orchard or did damage there last winter, they may do more damage this winter, especially if the winter is severe.

Poisoning is the most effective means of control. Prepared poisoned bait may be obtained at cost. The County Agent can aid you in securing the bait and can supply information regarding its use.

Milk Meeting At Massey

On Friday, November 4th, the patrons of the Milk Plant at Massey will hold a meeting to select delegate to represent that group at the annual meeting of th Inter-State Milk Producers' Association to be held in Philadelphia on November 29th and 30th. Officers for the coming year will be elected by the local group.

Doubtless some attention will be given to explaining the requirements of the New Jersey and Suburban Philadelphia Health Officers who can and will reject the milk from Plants or individuals if it is not produced in conformity to the new regulations.

Prepare For New Milk Regulations

The regulations, while stricter than those in effect previously, will not be difficult for most dairymen to meet. They must be met without doubt. Some have felt that the temperature required will force many small dairymen off the market. This need not be the case. The Extension service has a plan for using ice very effectively, economically and with assurance that the temperature required will be readily met. This plan is not so convenient as is the use of artificial refrigeration but it is inexpensive and adequate for those not able to finance the large cooling units. The County Agent will gladly explain and demonstrate the simple cooling device.

PUTTING HIS FOOT IN IT

Frenchman: "Ah, you climb the Matterhorn! That is a foot to be proud of."

Englishman: "Pardon me, sir, you mean 'feat.'"

"So you climb it more than once, eh?"

All Are "Jugulars"

Children in the vicinity of Forty-ninth street and Wentworth avenue were playing croquet.

One boy stood apart from the group and deftly kept three of the wooden balls in the air. The game was forgotten as admiring youngsters crowded about the young juggler.

"Say, you really know how to do that," one of the group remarked, with open mouth. "How did you learn to do it?"

"Oh, I guess I just inherited it," the boy said, still keeping the three balls in the air, "there's a jugular vein in every member of my family."—Indianapolis News.

J. WM. KIRBY,

A Lesson in Keeping Family Ties Closely Bound..

Mrs. Jones is sad and lonely tonight—children away at school and her husband out of town on business.

Mr. Jones is pacing restlessly about his hotel. "By George," he mutters, "I'll be glad when my traveling days are over."

Something has happened! Mrs. Jones is all smiles. Wonder why!

It's Mr. Jones calling. "Oh, I'm all right, Dear," he says, "I was just lonely and wanted to talk to you and find how things are. Yes. You bet! Will be home Thursday."

Mrs. Jones is as thrilled as a girl over the call. But she is thrifty and wonders what it cost.

She finds that this call, 100 miles away, cost only 35¢ (it was a night station-to-station call). And that she could talk 135 miles for 45¢, 275 miles for 75¢* and 400 miles for $1*. *Excluding Tax

Now that she knows out-of-town telephoning is so cheap she is going to have regular chats with the children away at school—as well as talk to Mr. Jones.
