WILL ROGERS PLAYS LEADING ROLE IN "DOWN TO EARTH"

Feature At New Lyceum November 23-24

Back to his native Oklahoma again after filming his recent pictures against various foreign locales, Will Rogers has the star role in "Down To Earth," his new Fox offering which shows on Wednesday and Thursday, November 23 and 24 at the New Lyceum Theatre.

With the recital of a business man's efforts to balance his dwindling income against his family's social ambitions and extravagance as its theme the picture is being hailed everywhere as the most timely as well as the funniest production of the noted humorist's career.

Rogers fans will recall the hectic adventures of Pike Peters and his family abroad in "They Had To See Paris," his first talking picture. In "Down To Earth" the whimsical "Pike" reappears after his trip, once more guiding the destines of his oil company. The recent Wall Street crash, however, has seriously affected his holdings, and he becomes worried over his family's expenditures. The failure of a bank in which he is interested brings matters to a crisis, hastened when his wife's social aspirations wreck his attempts to negotiate a loan from the local bank.

This combination of bad luck proves the final straw—and Pike goes berserk. His original and surprising methods of getting his family back on its feet again form the climax of the story and round out the unfolding of the picture.

Irene Rich again enacts the role of Mrs. Peters, with Dorothy Jordan, Matty Kemp, Mary Carlisle, Theodore Lodi, Brandon Hurst and many other noted players in the supporting cast. Homer Croy, the author of "They Had To See Paris," wrote the story for the new ocering, with Edwin Burke making the screen play and David Butler directing.

P. E. MEN'S CLUB MEET

REV. WHITE LECTURES ON ALASKA

The regular monthly meeting of the P. E. Men's Club was held in the Parish House on Thursday evening. The feature of the program was an illustrated lecture on Alaska delivered by Rev. John White, Rector of St. Paul's Parish.

After finishing the Seminary, Rev. White went to Nome, Alaska, in the mission work and the slides, which were shown in the lecture, were made by him. Rev. White is a full-fledged "Sour Dough," a native term given those who has seen the Behring Sea freeze up in the fall and stayed in Alaska through the winter and saw the ice move out in the spring. Many people who live in Nome are not eligible to this honored title as they leave when the ice starts forming in October and go back when the ice moves out in June. His illustration showed many types of the natives of that section, the great white wastes in the winter time, and the gold mining operations. The talk was very interesting and instructive. He also displayed a number of native souvineirs which he brought back. Mrs. White was with him in Alaska and lived through many of the hardships of Alaskan winters. Their son, Jack, was born in Alaska.

NOW AND THEN

NOVEMBER ROSE

November rose, there is no gift beside
The love you brought to me that eventide.
I knew the glamour that the summer knows,
Pale tints of spring, and winter, wrapped in snows.
They moved me deeply—may they long abide.

But you are more than these. You opened wide
Your lingering glory as the summer died—
The loveliest month yet tinged with unseen woes,
November rose.

How well the red-leafed splendor glorified
That Indian Summer ,when the warm air vied
With gentle winds, enchanting earth's response.
Those crimson petals that shall never close,
Still bloom in dreams of my sweet autumn bride,
November rose,
DIANA KEARNY POWELL.

November seems to be a month of memories. It begins with All Saints Day, when we remember those who have left us for a season; and then following comes Armistice day the day on which the soldiers who have given all, are remembered, and when the President of the United States with the military met together at the tomb of the unknown soldier to do him honor, while he rests beneath the glistening memorial stone "in honored glory." This stone is perfect in its way the whitest of Carara marble, while the figures of Valor, Victory and Peace are carved in bas relief on one side. Then there is Thanksgiving Day, a day instituted by our forefathers a year after they had landed on Plymouth Rock. The winter had been severe, and many of the settlers had died, but they celebrated the feast of Thanksgiving to Almighty God, having as their guests the neighboring Indians. May it be celebrated this year in the same way remembering the unfortunate people around.

The Garden Club met for the last time until next spring at the Toulson's handsome new home, each member carying a shrub or flower of some kind for the garden which is to be. A lovely thing is the garden club. It makes the homes around so much more attractive. The little verse that was written for the beautiful garden of Edward Bok, and engraved on the Carrillon which he raised in honor of the birds, is very fitting here.

The kiss of the Sun for pardon;
The song of the birds for mirth:
One is nearer God's heart in a garden
Than anywhere else on earth.

The vote on Election Day was larger than usual. Many a disappointed one who having the right of franchise, did not have a chance to part with it for money. One old colored woman said brightly "Oh yes I'se voted." When asked whom she voted for, she replied "I don't know but he was the right man."

To the memory of my dear Uncle, Rev. Sewell S. Hepburn, D. D.

He lived his more than four score and ten;
Whene'er he heard the voice of duty call;
He played his part among his fellow men,
Respected loved and , honored by them all.

In public life he stood for what was right;
He had his share of sorrow and of joy;
But all through youth and age he kept the light
And buoyant spirit of a happy boy.

And so the years went on until one day
The shadow of the unseen toward him crept;
And while with powers undimmed he went his way,
God's finger gently touched him, and he slept.

QUITE SO

The office boy had gone out on what would ordinarily be a ten-minute errand. At the end of this period he had not returned! in fact it was three-quarters of an hour before he appeared.

"Where have you been?" demanded his irate employer.

"Gettin' a hair-cut," laconically replied the youth.

"What—shouted the man—getting a haircut on Company time; what's the big idea?"

"Well," said the office boy, "it grows on Company time doesn't it?"

W. C. LOSES ONE POINT

DEFEATED BY HARVERFORD 7 to 6

Washington College lost to Haverford last Saturday at Philadelphia by the narrow margin of one point, the much discussed kick for goal.

Washington's touchdown came shortly after the opening of the second half when Nicholson recovered the ball after Haverford's full-back fumbled a punt, and on the next play Higginson caught a long pass from Berry and galloped across the line. Higginson was put in the game as a substitue for Johnson. Reinhold missed the kick for goal which gave the locals a six point lead.

Haverford's touchdown came late in the third period when a long pass put the ball on Washington's one yard line and the ball was carried over on the next clown. The try for goal was successful which gave that team the one point lead, neither team scoring again. Berry, Reinhold, Dobkins, and Ward were the outstanding stars of the local team.

The point for goal, which decides many foot ball games, is the subject of much discussion among foot ball authorities, the opposition claiming it practically is a one man opportunity to win or lose a game but it has held for many years against all opposition. This game was Haverfords first win and score of the season.

The lineup and summary follows:

Haverford		Washington
Kane	L E	Johnson
Hunisicvker	L T	Blissard
Hager	L G	Dickerson
Wilson	C	MacDonald
R. D. Smith	R E	Gamber
Hopper	R T	Ward
Hansen	R G	Carey
Tierman	Q B	Dobkins
Moose	R H	Berry

Pleasants	F B	Nicholson

Score by periods.

This Civil War veteran was Mr. Henry Stewart age 91 years. He enlisted from Queen Anne's county when a youth, not far from where he now lives. Colonel Schwab, Commander of the Frank M. Jarman Post, represented both the Spanish-Amercian War, and the late war.

Following a turkey dinner, served by Sargeant Lambert, who was a mess sargeant in the late war, Colonel Schawb introduced Mr. Robert Archer, Post State Commander(who talked on American Legion work in the State. Colonel Schwab then called on various members of the Post for remarks.

TO DEEPEN C & D CANAL

Deepning of the Chesapeake and Delaware Canal to twenty-five feet from the present twelve-foot depth was approved on Monday of last week at the annual meeting of the Joint Executive Committee on the Improvement of the Harbor of Philadelphia and the Delaware and Schuylkill rivers, in Philadelphia.

Mayor Moore, of Philadelphia, who also is president of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association, which has been active in urging the Federal Government to deepen the waterway connecting the two bays, was present at the meeting to urge the Philadelphia group's approval of the project.

Federal hearing on the project was held before Colonel Earl I. Brown, district engineer, in Baltimore, November 16th, at which time 100 witnesses testified. Baltimore already is on record as favoring the deepening as it will considerably reduce the steaming time of ships to sea bound to Europe by enabling them to use Delaware Bay rather than make the long voyage down the Chesapeake, then up the coast. The deepned canal also will bring Baltimore to the approximate distance of New York as Philadelphia.

TURNS CAUSE ACCIDENTS

HAND SIGNALS WOULD DECREASE ACCIDENTS

An increasing number of accidents caused by the disregard of hand signals were reported last week, according to E. Austin Baughman, Commissioner of Motor Vehicles.

"If autoists would follow the simple and reasonable system of signals many accidents could be avoided," Mr. Baughman said. "For instance, the straight extended left arm with the finger pointing to the left cannot mean anything but that the operator is going to make a left-hand turn. In doing this the driver should ease himself over to as near the middle of the street as possible.

"The signal for a right-hand turn, that of extending the arm well out so that it can be seen from the rear and making a slowly circling forward movement with the forearm, is equally easy to understand.

"When this signal is made and the intention is to turn right the operator should draw as close to the curb on the right-hand side of the street as possible as the aproaches the intersection.

"This will clearly indicate to the following cars 'come on, I am getting ready to turn out of the way and you may pass me.'

"Needless to say, the extended left arm, at a slight downward angle, with the palm facing the rear, will indicate tht the opertor is going to stop."

"There is really no excuse for accidents which occur because of the failure to use these signals."
