FROZE TO DEATH SUNDAY

FATHER AND SON PERISH IN DORCHESTER MARSHES

As a result of a ducking trip into the marshes of Dorchester county a father and son are dead and another son is recovering from the exposure. The dead are William MacKnight and his son, Thomas, of Hurlock. An account of their hardships, as told by the surviving son, which equals the vivid tales of death in the arctic follows:

The boy, Samuel MacKnight, who is recovering from the effects of an all-night exposure to the 15-degree temperature, said his father took him and his brother, Thomas, 18, in his arms when they could not longer walk, and, with his back to the biting wind, tried to shelter his two sons all he could.

Thomas was dead when the trio finally was rescued; the father, William MacKnight, died shortly afterward.

The father was still conscious when rescuers reached them, but he apparently realized his death was near.

"It's all up," he said, as he lapsed into unconsciousness.

The youth's story showed them to have been the victims of almost every kind of mishap.

They left their home in Hurlock Saturday morning for the marsh where the father and Thomas had hunted ducks for several years, It was Samuel's first hunting trip.

Accompanying them was an elderly man, William Woolen. Mr. Woolen decided to remain in the blind, but the father and two sons pushed into the treacherous marshes.

As the weather became colder, Mr. Woolen decided to go to the nearest house, some two miles distant, and get warm, so he left a note attached to the automobile at the blind and walked to the house.

Darkness fell, and there was no sign of the hunters. Mr. Woolen said he thought it possible the younger son had fallen in the water and that they had built a fire to dry off his clothing. He was not unduly alarmed.

In the meantime, Mrs. MacKnight and her daughter, disturbed because the hunters had not returned, drove to the blind to see if anything was wrong. When they were unable to find the father and sons, they were forced to return.

A series of mishaps had occurred as the hunters started home. Their boat was swamped by the high waves and they had to swim to shore. They started walking and the elder son became exhausted.

It was then that the father sat down and sought to shield his boys from the wind.

Mr. Woolen by this time had become thoroughly alarmed and organized a searching party, headed by George Langford, a resident of the section who had been forced to abandon his plans to accompany the MacKnights on the hnuting trip because of the death of his father.

As they searched the marshes Langford fell in one of the small streams and the entire group had to return to Langford's home. A physician was sesured from Vienna, 12 mlies distant, to attend Langford.

Mr. Woolen then organized another searching party, with Ward Hughes, an elderly man, owner of the marsh, in it. At that time, they were successful in finding MacKnight and his two sons, but Hughes was so exhausted, they had to take him back to his home, leaving the MacKnights who were unable to walk, in the marsh.

A third expedition was organizaed this time the party traveling in a motor boat. The high wind, however, had blown the water out of the shallow creek and the motor was disabled before they had proceeded far, making it necessary to use the oars.

When the party finally reached the MacKnights at dawn, they found Thomas dead a nd Samuel stretched on top of his father feebly moving arms and legs in an attempt to keep from freezing.

Samuel explained his father had cautioned him to keep moving, and rescuers said even after he was placed in the boat in a semi-conscious condition he continued to wave his arms.

SHOPPING JEFFERSON'S

This week I'm going to eat a couple hundred of my own words, or maybe wrap them around my neck to keep my ears warm. All the things I've said about "red flannels", the insults I've penned concerning undies that are as sleek, and slim as quilts, these words now jeer at me from the frosty window and icicled eaves.

Anyway I've been looking over the cozy little numbers Jefferson's is displaying to keep you from turning an unbecoming blue, and I must say "red flannels" ain't what they used to be.

This Munsingwear stuff, for instance, fits without a wrinkle, and hasn't a scrap of that hateful scratchiness that makes a hair shirt a luxury. Silk and wool suits for women are specially priced at $1.95 and $2.50. And for those sensitive souls who simply shudder at the thought of wool, (but find gooseflesh no aid to charm) there are soft winter weight cotton things, shirts and pants, long or short, reduced to a mere 85c per garment. In the cause of feminine beauty I must admit it's wiser to be warm than diaphanous, (during December, anyway).

This famous Munsingwear is also made for children, you know, and Jefferson's have a splendid lot of it at exceptionally low prices. Babies' double-breasted wrap around shirts, silk and wool are only 75c and 95c now. Single breasted are 49c. They won't shrink or grow harsh in washing and they do keep a baby so comfy. There are also cotton and wool Munsingwear undershirts for children, beautifully cut and finished for $1.95. These were forme $2.50.

And the celebrated Dr. Denton Sleeping Suits for youngsters have been reduced tremendously. Sizes 1 and 2 are only 95c and sizes 3 and 4 are $1.19. This is an opportunity you really would be foolish to overlook.

Jefferson's also carry a line of carefully smart 3-4 hose of silk and wool for children at 25c a pair.

Last of all let me mention for bargain hunters that all the winter coats here are selling for a song. One that was priced at $40 is now marked $19. Others may be had for as little as $5—fur collars and all. Nobody needs to shiver at that rate.

Wake Up Your Liver Bile —Without Calomel

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas bloats up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Refuse substitute. 25c at all stores. ©1931, C. M. Co.
