KENT SEAL SALE $395

The twenty-sixth annual Christmas seal sale, conducted by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association in Kent County was $395.

Professor Louis C. Robinson, Superintendant of schools for Kent County, was the local chairman. The receipts todate are $100 short of that of last year although complete returns have not been made.

Tuberculosis thrives on the misfortunes of men. Nothing should interfere with the state-wide effort of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association to combat and check this disease in these times of economic strain.

There is greater need than ever for work among Maryland's undernourished children from tuberculosis homes. In fact, this undertaking has become so important that if funds are available, the Miracle House will be operated as a year round institution.

There has been a marked increase in the attendance at the free chest clinics this year. This activity is considered to be one of the oustanding pieces of tuberculosis work in the country.

Other important activities must be continued. Sanatorium care, health education, industrial work, and medical research are all rendering invaluable aid in the campaign against tuberculosis in Maryland.

FORMER COUNTIANS ARRESTED

IN CENTREVILLE CHARGED WITH CHICKEN STEALING

Three white men are in the Centreville jail awaiting a hearing on a charge of stealing a large number of chickens from Roger Jester, near Ingleside.

Those arrested are:

WILLIAM CHRISTOPHER, white, formerly of Kent county, now residing near Millington.

JOHNNY LOCKWOOD, white, formerly of Still Pond, but who is reported to have moved to Millington.

WILLIAM HOLDEN, white, recently of Delaware, but who a few weeks ago changed his residence to Templeville.

The three white men were arrested by Constable Louis B. Perkins and J. Orem Cecil on charges of stealing 135 hens from the farm of Roger Jester, near Ingleside. The fowls were traced to Hartley, Delaware, and are alleged to have been sold to Nick and Lena Dusco. Officers report that Dusco told them the hens were brought by Christopher, Lockwood and Holden in ten guano sacks.

Following the arrest of three white men Sunday charged with the theft of a quantity of chickens from the farm of Roger Jester, near Ingleside, one member of the trio, William Christopher, made the following confession:

"I, William Christopher, make this following statement without any promise or threats being made to me:

"On December 31, 1932, I went to the home of my sister, Clara Holden, in Templeville, Md., with William Holden and John Lockwood. While there Holden suggested we steal some chickens from Mr. Jester. I said that I did not want to go but was persuaded to go by Holden and Lockwood.

We left Templeville that night about 9.30 o'clock, and went to a place that Holden and Lockwood said was Jester's place. While there Holden and Lockwood stole seven or eight bags of chickens. I was holding the bags for them to put the chickens in.

"We took the chickens to Nick Durso and Holden asked for Jakek. Lena Durso said that Jake was not home, but to put the chickens in the coop which Holden and Lockwood did. We then went to Templeville and the next day about 9.30 a. m., Holden asked his wife to go with me to Durso's and collect the money for the chickens. Lena Durso said that Jake was not home. We then went back to Templeville and returned to Durso's at 3 p. mm. As we got to Durso's lane we were arrested.

"This above statement is made by me and is true to the best of my knowledge and belief."

Signed,
WILLIAM CHRISTOPHER.

SAFE GUARD AGAINST INFLUENZA

Reports from widely-separated parts of Maryland to the State Department of Health show that the wave of influenza that has been sweeping across the United States has reached this part of the country. With these reports before him, Dr. R. H. Riley, Director of the Maryland State Department of Health, issued the following warning:

" Colds, grippe, influenza, or whatever we may call them are believed to be spread from person to person through discharges from the nose and throat. To protect yourself and others from such diseases, here are some things to be remembered and some precautions to be observed.

1. "Influenza is highly infectious. Practicaly everybody is susceptible to it. No matter how many times may have had the disease, you may contract it again. Therefore, keep away from people who are sneezing, coughing, or sniffling, or who are actively ill with colds, influenza, or pneumonia.

2. "Keep away from crowded places.

3. "Have your own towel and drinking cup and always wash your hands before eating.

4. "Keep yourself as fit as possible, by drinking plenty of water, by eating simple, nourishing food, by some exercise out of doors every day, by dressing according to the weather, by having plenty of sleep in a well-ventilated room, and by keeping the bowels regulated.

"Reports from other places indicate that the influenza prevalent this year has been rather mild in character and lasts for only a few days, but that in many instances, there is a second flare-up within two or three days that may be much more severe than the first attack. Mild attacks of this sort, if neglected, may open the way for serious complications or after-effects.

"Another characteristic observed in connection with this year's type of influenza is the marked prostration that accompanies many of the attacks. As a rule prostration means a lowering of the powers of resistance. Lowered resistance often opens the way for pneumonia and increases in pneumonia are always to be expected whenever we have serious outbreaks of influenza or grippe, unless special precautions to prevent after-effects are taken by those who are ill or who care for the sick.

"Therefore, if you feel an attack of grippe or influenza—or even of what you may think an ordinary cold—coming on, go to bed, send for your doctor, and do exactly as he tells you to do."

KILLS BANDED GOOSE

Bearing an aluminum leg tag with a bibical quotation on one side, and on the other the request: "Write Jack Miner, Kingsville, Ontario, Canada," a wild goose was killed last week by Howard Melvin, near Queenstown. The verse from the scriptures read: "Be Not Afraid; Only Believe"—Mark 5-36.

Miner tags all the ducks, geese and other smaller migratory birds that visit his bird sanctuary, to study their routes of migration and also how long they live. Furthermore, it gives Jack Miner full information as to States and provinces killing the greater number of birds; how long they stay in the United States and how long they remain in Canada.

All records are given to the Canadian Government for safe keeping to us for educational purposes in the schools, colleges and universities of the country.

All tags placed on ducks and geese have printed on one side a verse of Scripture—Jack Miner's unique way of spreading the Gospel. He is by no means a religious fanatic, but is a strong believer in God's Word, and uses the fowls of the air to spread such select verses of Scripture as: "Have faith in God," "No good thing will He withheld from them that walk uprightly," and many other similar promises. Jack Miner says, "It has been the means of many a Bible being opened by men who had scarcely ever read the Scriptures. Even in many prisons, prisoners had read in daily papers of such birds being killed and that they carried a verse of Scripture. This caused the prisoner to turn his face toward God and repent.

WATERS OF QUEEN ANNES COUNTY SHOWING GREATER YIELD THAN LAND

The following interesting article is taken from the Centreville Observer of this week:

In an address delivered at the weekly luncheon of Centreville Rotary Club, Conservation Commissioner Swepson Earle, regarded as one of the foremost authorities on shellfish life in America, outlined a series of sea-food facts and predictions of general interest to Queen Annes countians.

Saliant, litle-known points emphasized by the Commissioner were:

1. That Queen Annes county's 75 square miles of water are more profitable, pro rata, than the county's 380 square miles of land.

2. That the crab industry, which had nearly reached exhaustion in 1924, is being restored by leaps and bounds back to prosperity.

3. That a plan is being developed for the marketing of crab meat throughout a large area which should automatically create bigger profits for watermen.

4. That a spirit of complete cooperatin now exists between the Conservation authorities in the propogation and develpment of shell-foods.

5. That the system of shellplanting, inaugurated by the Conservation authorities in the propagation and development of shell-fods has been very successful.

Commissioner Earle, who is a native of Queen Annes county, was invited by the Rotarians to be their guest-orator. The facts presented were of unusual interest.

A reduction in the rates charged by the Claiborne-Annapolis Ferry Company for transporting automobiles between Annapolis, Claiborne and Matapeake, was announced this week by B. Frank Sherman, general manger of the company. The new rates, which will become effective January 15, were authorized by the board of directors.

A survey of two broad highways, one to pass through Salisbury and other east of the city, has been completed by the State Roads Commission to solve the traffic problem on the North-South route. Each of these two projects are expected to be presented to the State Legislature which body must give its sanction and provide the necessary funds for the project considered most practical.
