MORATORIUM ON MILK REGULATIONS PENDING

Milk producers are much interested in a meeting to be held on Friday, March 31st, at Philadelphia between the Directors of the Inter-State and the Philadelphia Milk Dealers.

The Association seeks a moratorium on the requirements as to milk temperature and barns and pound regulations. The regulations laid down by the New Jersey Legislature and Suburban Philadelphia towns were strict and costly to install. Various Boards of Health realizing the economic situation have "eased up" on the enforcement of the regulations. This has made it possible for the milk dealers to "ease up" on requirements if they care to do so. Local shippers have been notified to meet the temperature requirement by April 1st.

Much concern has arisen among local milk shippers—many are seriously considering shipping their milk to a condensery which does not demand such stiff conditions. It buys at a flat price which is well below the weighted average of the basic and surplus plan now in use. It is rumored that farmers must sign a contract, for three months as a minimum, in which they agree to ship all their milk to the condensery. It is hoped and many expect that the milk company now using our milk will, in view of the existing conditions, withdraw its insistance on the temperature regulations as announced.

It is expected that farmers will defer action on changing their market until after the outcome of the meeting on Friday is announced. It would be most unfortunate to change markets and prices if the temperature regulation is not to be enforced. In fact, it is very doubtful economy to change markets even if the temperature requirement is demanded and enforced.

Litter Contest Stresses Efficient Pork Production

The 150 Day 1500 Pound Litter Contest sponsored by the Maryland Stockmen's Association and the Extension Service stimulates interest in the methods and practices most conducive to large, quick and cheap gains in pork production by the litters entered.

The contest idea and the prize competition add zest to the effort to make cheap pork, using approved methods of feeding, breeding and management. Swine offer an important market for farm gains and feed and usually pay the farmer a better price than does the "cash market" Feed used by livestock is kept off the market and thereby stabalizes the grain market to an appreciable extent.

Prizes for the contest are again offered by the Schluderberg-Kurdle Co., of Baltimore. It is hoped there will be many entries of litters in this pork production contest. Details and entry blanks are available from the County Agent.

Pigs Respond To Cleanliness

These days every farmer seeks for efficient and inexpensive ways of handling his enterprises, knowing that profit must come from economic production rather than from high marketing price. In swine production the least expensive treatment and at the same time the most effective is applied cleanliness. This implies keeping pigs away from infection and infestation and contagion. Cleanliness is readily achieved under the McLean County System which means cleanliness from a few days prior to birth until the shoats weigh 80 to 100 pounds or more. The sow is scrubbed clean with soap and water a few days before the pigs are due. She is placed in a clean house which has been scraped and cleaned, then scrubbed with hot lye water. The sow and her litter are kept in the clean house for ten days to two weeks. The clean sow and litter in a scrubbed house are taken to clean ground for pasture well away from round worm egg infested hog lots, remain free of round worms and therefore makes better use of feeds, makes larger and cheaper gains. See County Agent for Entry Blanks.

Bull Sale April 21

High class bulls from cows with fine recorsd will be available to farmers at their own prices on April 21st, at Ellicott City. The leading breeders of Holsteins in Maryland put on this the second sale of the sort. Calves and older bulls are available. Prices are extremely low, now is a splendid time to acquire high class breeding stock at little cost. Details may be had from the County Agent.

Control Parasites

Parasites are expensive luxuries for your livestock to entertain. Internal and external parasites yield to treatment. It is sound economy to free stock of this tax which saps vigor, retards growth delays marketing, lowers quality and increase cost of production. Your County Agent will advise regarding ways and means to control parasites.
