SCHOOL DAYS — By DWIG

SCHOOL NOTES

CHESTERTOWN HIGH SCHOOL

By Janet MacVean

The whole student body of C. H. S. wishes to express its sorrow because of the approaching departure of Mrs. Greene. Next Monday Miss Frances Stavely will take her place as teacher of French and music. Although we are glad Miss Stavely can be with us, we regret that Mrs. Greene must leave.

The Junior class has been studying business letters and their composition. This week each Junior had to write a letter applying for a position. After a few had been read, one student was appointed prospective employer and an applicant for a position was interviewed. The results of several of these interviews were very funny. However, if a graduate of C. H. S. approaches you for a position, don't credit his skill in applying to the number of times he has been turned down before.

Kathleen Coleman has typed sixty words a minute. Can you beat it?

The Commercial Seniors are making shorthand notebooks for exhibition at a high school conference to be held at Beacom College late in April. Some of the covers are works of art.

The "Dragon" and the "Reflector" have not been idle of late. A bowling contest was held last Thursday and a card party Friday, both for the benefit of the "Dragon." A "Dragon" supper, as you know, is planned for Thursday, March 30, and a bazaar will be held Friday, April 7, for the "Reflector." Come one, come all.

Experiments will start next week on the six small white rats. Five will be fed experimental diets while the sixth will be used to show the effect of abnormal diets on the others. Also, Mr. Stenger's biology class has acquired the skull of a horse.

The 9A section had their first Home Economics Club meeting this week. The meeting was opened by a Home Ec. song. The business meeting consisted of voting on the name, flower, and motto of the club. Then Janet Briggs and Frances Atwell spoke for the modern girl against Shirley Fox and Louise Clark Ford the old-fashioned girl. "The Tale of a Tummy" was told by Charlotte Cornelius. Betty Coleman and Jessie Brooks showed the class a comparison between the costumes of a modern and an old-fashioned girl. The meeting closed with a repetition of the Home Ec. song. All the girls are waiting for another meeting soon.

Did you know—that our inauguration ceremonies closely resembled those of the Indians, that Indian children are named for the first object the mother sees after their birth, that Indian music and dances show a distinct sense of rhythm and, believe it or not, of harmony, that the tomohawk was used chiefly for execution of Indian evil-doers, that an Indian's paint shows his name and tribe, that white children are spoiled? All these things Chief Sunny Skies told us last Wednesday.

The movies which have been shown in the county this week were shown at C. H. S. Tuesday morning. Those who attended enjoyed them very much.

The track team is practicing every afternoon now, and volley ball practice will begin when the ground is dry. It's surely getting to seem like spring.
