A GREAT RELIEF

The giant liner was plowing its way across the Atlantic ocean.

Near the bridge stood a rather nervous-looking passenger who, when the captain came out on deck, went up and touched him on the shoulder.

"Could you put my mind at ease, captain?" she asked.

"What is it?" asked the captain.

"Well," said passenger, "what would happen if the ship struck an iceberg?"

"The iceberg would go on as if nothing had happened," replied the captain, with a shrug of his shoulders.

"Oh, thank you, captain!" said the passenger, with a deep sigh of relief. "I feel much relieved now."—Answers Magazine.

Touch of Formality

"Who is this total stranger you have brought home with you at this late hour?"

"My dear," answered Mr. Meekton, "I knew you were going to start one of your pitiless investigations and I decided to demand the right to be represented by an attorney."—Washington Star.

A STRICT RULE

The Lodger—I just lost my job, Mrs. Inkeep. Can you lend me a couple of bucks till I get another?

His Landlady—Sorry, Mr. Everbroke, but it's against my principles to give currency to an idle roomer.

Out of Her Line

"Why are you leaving?" asked the lady, in surprise.

"I got the wrong idea about what you wanted," the nurse replied.

"What do you mean?" demanded the lady.

"Merely that what you want is a wild animal trainer, not a nurse, for those brats," snapped the nurse.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Suspicion

"Miss Passeigh is a delightful musician," said the young man.

"Y-yes," said the young woman.

"But she insists on playing continually in a minor key."

"Of course. It's the only means she has of suggesting that she isn't of age."

Honest

To a tramp who wanted to earn a bite to eat a woman said: "If I thought you were honest I'd let you go to the chicken house and gather the eggs."

"Lady," he replied with dignity, "I was manager at a bathhouse for 15 years and never took a bath."

Dissimilarity

"Are you happier since you can go to the polls and vote like a man?"

"Yes," answered Miss Cayenne. "Only I don't vote exactly like a man."

"But you're supposed to."

"Not invariably. When my lead pencil breaks I permit myself to leave out the profanity."—Washington Star.

OUGH!

"I'm refusing you, I hope I make myself plain."

"No, but if you take off some of that powder and paint, you might."

Scared to Bathe

Hobo—Madam, could you lend me a cake of soap?

Lady—Soap? What do you want with that?

Hobo—Well, madam, me partner's got de heecups an' I want to scare him!

Responsibilities

"Why don't you thank me for electing you?" said the friend with local influence.

"I do," answered Senator Sorghum. "But I'm afraid that if my troubles get any thicker I'll forget about thanking you and begin to blame you."

Overseas Duty

"Buddy, if you had to enlist again for overseas duty, what branch of the service would you go in?"

"The peace delegation."—Pathfinder Magazine.

Lazy

"Why don't you dress better? Clothes make the man."

"Yes, but in my case the man won't make the clothes."—Alten Woche im Bild.

Too Crowded

Soprano—Did you notice how my voice filled the auditorium last night?

Contralto—Yes, I did. Several people left to make room for it.—Philadelphia Evening Bulletin.

Much Sought For

The business man dashed into the employment exchange.

"Look here," he said to the clerk, "I'm looking for a cashier."

The clerk looked somewhat surprised.

"Why, sir," he said, "I thought I furnished you with one last week."

"I know," came the irritable reply. "That's the one I'm looking for."—Stray Stories.
